U. S. CRY: ANNIHILATE JAPS

Nippon's Cruelty Stuns Nation; Congress Asks Vengeance

CALL FOR NEW BLOWS AGAINST PACIFIC ENEMY

Attack by Massed Fleet Urged.

IT STARTS TOMORROW.

Lt. Col. W. E. Dyess' own story of the "Death March of Bataan" begins in The Sunday Tribune. The late hero of the air force in the Philippines tells how American soldiers were beaten, starved, and tortured by the Japs. He tells a great story of American heroism. It starts tomorrow.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—A capital stunned by disclosure of barbarous atrocities practiced by the Japanese against American and Filipino prisoners of war today called for intensification of the war in the Pacific.

Lt. Col. William E. Dyess.

From the White House to Capitol Hill indignation mounted against the Japanese and swelled into a cry for vengeance which echoed thruout the country. One senator said the mikado should be hanged.

The reaction here to the disclosure of the atrocities was sensational. Never in the memory of living man had the capital been so stirred.

The capital awaited the publication of the full story of wanton murder, savage torture, and inhuman privation, which THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and 100 associated newspapers are to release to the nation beginning Sunday.

The "Death March."

It is the story of the late Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess, army air forces hero, of Albany, Tex. It will tell of the Japanese murder of thousands of American and Filipino prisoners of war during a six day, 85 mile march on Bataan.

The release of the story, which Dyess named "Death March of Bataan," was made possible when the army and navy jointly lifted their ban against atrocity stories at midnight last night. The news services gave a condensation of the story.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said the impending publication of the complete story of the death march on Bataan should encourage Americans to dig deep into their pockets to buy war bonds so that Japanese bestiality can be wiped from the earth.

Jap War Principals.

Secretary of State Hull said the United States has been massing information about brutal treatment of American war prisoners so action can be taken against responsible Jap war criminals when the conflict ends in American victory.

At the White House, Press Secretary Stephen T. Early charged the Japanese have been withholding tons of medicine, clothing, and other supplies sent to American prisoners thru the International Red Cross. The interception of such supplies was one of the reasons for release of the Dyess story.

On Capitol hill virtually every senator and representative who rose to speak on questions before congress expressed horror over the atrocities.

British Tortured, Too.

In London, Foreign Minister Anthony Eden substantiated the report of Japanese bestiality by telling the house of commons that the Japs killed thousands of British empire prisoners of war by torture, starvation, or refusal of medical attention.

In commenting on Jap atrocities Hull said it would be necessary to

PAL TELLS WHAT MADE ED DYESS A GREAT LEADER

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Qualities that made Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess a great commanding officer, a comrade beloved by his brother officers, and the idol of his men were told yesterday by Capt. Samuel Charles Grashio of Spokane, Wash., who was Col. Dyess' closest friend.

They were together during the aerial and ground fighting on Bataan and thru the horrors of the Death March. They languished together in three Jap prison camps and on a prison ship.

Capt. Grashio, who escaped with Col. Dyess' party last April, returned to the United States last Oct. 9. Yesterday he would talk only of Ed Dyess.

"What I did doesn't matter," Capt. Grashio said. "All I want to do is make the people who will be reading his story understand what a grand fellow—what a great officer and man—Ed Dyess was.

"Never Acted Like Boss."

"I have been in the army air forces nearly three years now and I have seen a lot of officers and their commands. But I never have seen any relationship such as the one between Ed Dyess and his junior officers and men. He never acted like the boss of the commander. He hardly ever raised his voice.

"One of the things that made us love him was that slow Texas humor. There were times when some one would deserve a calldown and would have gotten it from any one but Ed. But he knew how to employ that dry humor in just the right way, and the lesson always stuck."

Grashio said one of Col. Dyess' most admirable qualities was his refusal to grow excited, no matter what situation he might be facing. This was especially true just before and during Dyess' three historic raids on Subic bay when the Texan earned the title "One man scourge of the Japs." Grashio accompanied him on the last trip in a P-40 to keep Jap planes, if any, away.

"Just Same Old Ed."

"All during that afternoon he was just the same old Ed Dyess," Grashio asserted. "When I followed him over the bay on his last trip and looked down I could hardly believe my eyes. He sure had made a mess of it. Ships were burning, all of Grand Island seemed on fire, and the rest of the convoy ships were rushing up and down like rats in a trap, which they were.

"Ed stayed with those of us who weren't going out in the last planes when he could—and maybe, should—have done so. Everybody knows that story now of course. I'll always think that because he did stay with us, many of us lived who might not have otherwise.

"It was Ed who kept us together on that march and in the prison camps. He was a champion of the enlisted men.

"He would worry about whether they were getting enough to eat. He always wanted to hear their troubles and he never failed to go to the front for them. Once when some extra food was sent in for the pilots who were getting too weak to fly, Ed wouldn't let it be issued until he could find out how the enlisted men felt about it.

Capt. Grashio then related an incident which he said illustrated better than any other the complete unselfishness and deep kindliness of Col. Dyess.

Gave Food He Needed.

At Cabanatuan, the second of the three internment camps, epidemics of dysentery, yellow jaundice, and malaria swept among the prisoners. Dyess was suffering from all three. He had a small store of food with which he was trying to build sufficient strength to fight the diseases. Then he learned that another officer, with whom he didn't get on very well, was without any food except the daily dole of rice.

"This other officer was one of the very few men I know of who didn't get along with Ed," Grashio continued. "Ed called me to where he was lying and said: 'Sam, take this can of fish and some of the other stuff and give it to So-and-so. Now Sam, don't you tell him who sent it, or he won't accept it. Just make up something, but see that he eats it.' I did as he told me, but we all thought he should have kept it for himself."

BRITISH SLAIN BY THOUSANDS IN ORIENT: EDEN

Foe's Savagery Told to Parliament.

Britain Indignant

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 29 [Saturday].—London newspapers today gave vent to the bitterness felt in Great Britain over Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's disclosure that the Japanese had murdered and inflicted cruelties upon British prisoners in the orient. The Daily Mail demanded that the Japs be outlawed after the war.

Other newspapers said the American people were "boiling mad" following the revelation that the Japs had starved, tortured, and killed American and Filipino prisoners seized in the Philippines.

It was admitted there was a possibility of renewed demands from the United States that Japan be made enemy No. 1 instead of Germany. But, according to the Daily Mail's New York correspondent, "informed opinion" in the United States already is trying to prevent this.

LONDON, Jan. 28 (AP).—Thousands of Britons have died in prison camps in Asia, the victims of "unspeakable savagery" inflicted by their Japanese captors, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden gravely told the house of commons today. He said that repeated British representations have brought only "evasive, cynical or otherwise unsatisfactory" replies from Tokio.

Eden, citing only a few of many authenticated cases of torture, drew a grim picture "of the barbarous nature of our Japanese enemies." A shocked house heard that allied soldiers with their hands tied were "systematically bayoneted from behind." It also was told how a British officer captured in Burma was clubbed across the face with a sword and then tied to a stake with a strangling rope noose around his neck.

Suggests Russian Action.

The Japanese "have violated not only the principles of international law but all canons of decent civilized conduct," Eden said.

He answered in the affirmative when asked whether it would be possible "to request the Russian government, who are not engaged in hostilities with Japan, to make direct representations."

"We will consider everything," including this suggestion, the foreign secretary replied. "We have tried everything and will continue to try everything we can think of to remedy this state of affairs."

Text of Statement.

The text of Eden's statement follows:

"I fear I have grave news to give the house. Members will be aware that a large number of postcards and letters recently have been received in this country from British prisoners of war in the far east and these almost universally suggest that the writers are being treated well and are in good health. There is no doubt, from what we know about particular areas, that some of these communications are in terms dictated by Japanese authorities. I regret I have to tell the house that information which has just been received by the government no longer leaves room for doubt that the true state of affairs is a very

THE HEROES OF BATAAN

Buy War Bond or Be Drafted! Citizens Told

Wahoo, Neb., Jan. 28 [Special].—Emil E. Placek, war bond chairman of Saunders county, today threatened retribution thru the draft and ration boards against citizens who do not buy as many war bonds as he thinks they should in the 4th war loan campaign.

Emil E. Placek.

A former Democratic state senator and former Saunders county judge but now president of the First National bank of Wahoo, Placek asserted he is compiling lists of citizens who do not meet his personally imposed quotas of war bonds.

He said the lists will be furnished the draft and ration boards "so that such individuals or their sons who have been deferred may be reclassified" or their requests for "additional gas coupons" or farm machinery priorities will be "seriously" affected.

Ignores Treasury Order.

When the treasury department in Washington heard of Placek's scheme, it rebuked the chairman and ordered him to cancel it, threatening him with removal from his post as county bond drive leader. Placek, however, refused to do so.

Placek's threat to call on the draft and ration boards to back up the bond campaign was published at his request in the Wahoo Wasp, a weekly newspaper. It states that "upon instructions from Washington, the chairman of the war bond drive in each county has been asked to prepare a list of all persons who have refused to buy bonds and also those who have subscribed less than their quota." He then went on to make the threats of draft reclassification and gas withholding.

Called "a Military Secret."

Placek explained that he had received his instructions "from people in Washington connected with the drive," but said they did not come from the treasury department. He described the source as "a military secret."

In outlining his method of bond selling, Placek disclosed that he has a card index of every taxpayer in Saunders county [population 17,892] compiled by the students of the Wahoo High school. When the reports of his 300 bond solicitors come in, he will compare the purchases with the financial standing of the buyers, including their bank accounts.

Citizens who have not bought as many bonds as he thinks they should, Placek said, will be named on the lists destined for the boards.

When asked how much a citizen with $1,000 in the bank and no debts should invest in bonds, he said the amount should be between $100 and $200 in this drive and the same amount in the next one.

Members of the draft and ration boards said that Placek had promised lists to them, but that what they would do with the lists was "another question." One member said he thought Placek had "stuck his neck out."

'I HAVE BEEN THERE' COMMENT BY DYESS ON TRIBUNE CARTOON

Carey Orr's cartoon, "The Heroes of Bataan," which appears above, was described by the late Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess as the most realistic presentation he had seen of the American war prisoners' plight. When representatives of THE TRIBUNE called on Col. Dyess at an army base hospital in West Virginia last Sept. 5—four days after the cartoon's original appearance—he had a clipping of it at his bedside.

"It is amazing that an artist who never has been there could produce a drawing so true to life," he said. "I have seen and have been a part of scenes just like that many times. You would think it had been drawn from life."

A few weeks later, Orr and THE TRIBUNE presented Col. Dyess with the original of the cartoon. It now hangs in the home of his widow, Mrs. Marajen Stevick Dyess, at Champaign, Ill.

Liberty Ship Splits in Two; Crew Rescued

AN ALEUTIAN ISLAND BASE, Dec. 25 [Delayed].—The Russian crew of an American built Liberty ship, which broke in two in the Bering sea, was safe today after being rescued by United States navy craft. This was the fourth Liberty ship to be so severed in the Pacific area in recent months.

All the Russians, including four women, and the still floating stern half of their ship were brought to an Aleutian base. The other half of the ship also has been salvaged.

Severed During Storm.

The vessel, named the Valery Chaklov by the Russians after its delivery under lend-lease broke in two during a storm. The 10,000 ton Russian ship, out of Vladivostok, split vertically amidships as if a gigantic cleaver had struck it.

Distress signals were sent out and two other Russian ships steamed to the wreckage and stood by. Because the Russians were unable to determine their exact position with the sun and stars blotted out by the storm, it was three days before United States navy craft were able to find the wrecked ship and rescue survivors.

Four Women in Crew.

The four women in the crew were a doctor, two stewardesses, and a bookkeeper.

[Another Liberty ship, the John P. Gaines, broke in half in the Aleutian area in November. The 13th naval district at Seattle, in announcing the loss Dec. 7, said 11 men of the 100 aboard were missing. The ship was American operated. Two other Liberty ships were reported similarly wrecked recently under the battering of north Pacific storms.]

35 American Japs, Angry, Offer Blood to Soldiers

Allies Smash Nazi Air and Land Attacks

ALLIED HDQ., Algiers, Jan. 28 (AP).—Allied land and air forces have dealt the Nazis a crushing twin defeat in the battle for Rome, smashing an enemy assault on the British-American bridgehead at a point 21 miles from the Italian capital and destroying 28 German planes in sky fights over the landing beaches, the allied command announced today.

The Nazi setbacks came as German prisoners declared that Adolf Hitler himself had ordered the German 10th army to "stand or die" on the Cassino front, some 80 miles from Rome.

[The German controled Paris radio in a broadcast recorded by the British ministry of information in London said: "German military quarters are expecting another allied landing in Italy shortly. Increased allied naval activity has been observed. Besides the 5th and 8th armies another army is to participate in the battle for Italy."]

Bridgehead Six Miles Deep.

The site of yesterday's ground clash, in which British troops routed elements of the German 29th armored division, was near the little village of Carroceto, 10 miles north of the week old allied beachheads at Anzio. In addition to inflicting casualties, the British took more than 100 prisoners and drove the enemy back toward the Appian way.

Gen. Alexander's Italian headquarters said the bridgehead was at least six miles deep at all points and that allied spearheads had pushed considerably farther inland. The stretch of beach in allied hands was about 24 miles long, extending an equal distance on each side of Anzio.

German artillery rained shells into the bridgehead, including salvoes from big guns mounted on armored trains just outside Rome. Reconnaissance disclosed that the Nazis were assembling heavy armored forces, including 60 ton "Tiger" tanks, in preparation for an assault against the landing troops.

Battle 100 Nazi Planes.

American and British fighter pilots had a field day in breaking up the enemy's first really big aerial onslaught. The Germans hurled 100 fighters and fighter-bombers into an attempt to halt the flow of reenforcements and supplies onto the beaches.

Midwestern flyers downing German planes during these battles were Lt. L. Baleski Jr., Ada, Mich., 2d Lt. Elbert K. Benz, Anderson, Ind., and 2d Lt. Wilson Eagleson, Bloomington, Ind.

American Flying Fortresses and Liberators and their escorting fighters shot down 22 other German planes in bombings of three Nazi airfields in the Marseilles and Montpellier regions of southern France, bringing to 50 the number of enemy craft destroyed during the day. Seven allied planes were missing. The pilots of three were saved.

Planes of the allied tactical air forces pounded at the Nazis' communications thruout the area below Rome, trying to block the movement of reenforcements. In all, 1,400 sorties were flown during the day. Among the towns heavily bombed was Velletri, on the Appian way only 18 miles from the edge of Rome.

American, French, and British troops storming the so-called Gustav line made some additional progress on both sides of Cassino despite Nazi resistance.

Hauls Blaze to Firemen and Gets It Extinguished

No one could have been more surprised than Peter Renkema, driver for the Evanston Trucking company, when he glanced around yesterday at Main street and Chicago avenue in Evanston and discovered that a load of refuse which he had just collected from a hotel was on fire. Renkema drove to a fire station at Grove street and Sherman avenue, nearly a mile away, where firemen extinguished the blaze.

TRADE TIE WITH AXIS SEVERED BY ARGENTINA

Cuts Off Financial Relations, Too.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 28 (AP).—Argentina's military government today severed all financial and commercial relations between Argentina and Germany, Japan, and other nations dominated by the axis. This action followed the nation's severance of diplomatic relations with the axis on Wednesday.

Gen. Arturo Rawson.

The government of President Pedro Ramirez also ordered the cutting of all radio and cable communications with Germany, Japan, and the axis satellites. It was announced in Buenos Aires that Sweden had agreed to take over German and Japanese interests in Argentina.

Society Leaders Arrested.

Until Wednesday Argentina had been the only American country still maintaining relations with the axis. In announcing the rupture with Germany and Japan, Ramirez said the discovery of an axis spy ring in that country was the reason and that a number of persons had been arrested.

A report reaching here said persons high in Argentine society were under arrest, but so far their identities had not been revealed.

Argentina's government was split wide open as a result of the country's severance of relations with the axis.

Resigns as Ambassador.

Gen. Arturo Rawson, a comrade in arms with Ramirez in the June revolution of army leaders, resigned as ambassador to Brazil because he was pro-allied. Three cabinet ministers, the mayor of Buenos Aires, and several minor government officials also resigned because they were pro-axis.

Rawson served as president for 48 hours after the successful coup last June 4, giving way to Ramirez. On Wednesday Rawson, in a congratulatory message to Ramirez after the latter had announced severance of relations with the axis, said the action "fulfilled" the purpose of the uprising.

An open break between the two revolutionary leaders became evident yesterday when Ramirez in a curt message signed by his secretary, Col. Enrique P. Gonzales, rebuked Rawson. He said that a rupture of relations with the axis was not the purpose of the revolution, but that the uprising was for "national recuperation and affirmation of Argentine sovereignty."

Cabinet Members Quit.

The government's rupture with the axis caused Dr. Gustavo Martinez Zuviria, minister of justice and education; Gen. Luis Cesar Perlinger, minister of interior, and Gen. Diego Mason, minister of agriculture—all strong nationalists—to resign from the cabinet. Martinez, under the pen name of Hugo Wast, has written a trilogy of violently anti-Semitic books.

In addition to the cabinet members, several other strong nationalists—the mayor of Buenos Aires, and two federal interventors in the provinces of Tucuman and Cordoba—resigned as the result of the break.

Gen. Clark Under Nazi Gunfire; Escapes Injury

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Mark Clark, commander of the 5th army, came under direct German gunfire today during a visit to the Anzio bay beachhead south of Rome, but escaped injury altho several men near him were hit. In a broadcast from Algiers, CBS said that when the enemy fire began Clark dropped to the ground, later helped care for the injured men and then "went right ahead with his inspection and conferences with field commanders as if nothing had happened."

assemble "all the demons available from anywhere and combine their fiendishness to describe the conduct of those who inflicted these unthinkable tortures."

He said the government already had protested against the atrocities. He acknowledged the protests have been of no avail.

Hull said the government is investigating all reports and compiling information so that war guilt charges will be brought against offenders after the war.

Early said the American Red Cross has disclosed that it never has received any official information from Jap prison camps in the Philippines. The Japs have refused to permit the International Red Cross to send a delegate to visit the camps.

A delegate was permitted to watch unloading of Red Cross parcels for prisoners from the exchange ship Gripsholm, but was not permitted to go to the camps to see if the parcels were delivered.

Early expressed doubt that some 15,000 tons of relief supplies sent from west coast ports on Russian ships to Vladivostok for transshipment to prisoners ever would reach American hands. Arrangements with the Japs for transshipment have not been completed thus far, he said.

Demand Fleet Action.

On Capitol hill reaction was featured by calls for speeding the war in the Pacific, including a demand that the fleet strike out for Japan.

"All fleet units should be mobilized for immediate movement on Tokio, which must be blown out of existence," said Rep. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the house military affairs committee.

"We ought to quit fooling around with islands and outposts and steam right into Tokio and blow it to Hades."

There was no indication from any other source that military leaders had any intention of revising, as a result of the Dyess story, strategic plans calling for the annihilation of Germany and then turning full might on Japan.

Congressional Comment.

However, the report did bring congressional expressions for giving more materials to Gen. MacArthur, who is opposed to the island hopping program. Other congressional comment follows:

Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.]—The war and navy departments should have released the story long ago—the American people can take it.

Sen. Clark [D., Mo.]—Hang the mikado and bomb Japan out of existence.

Sen. McFarland [D., Ariz.]—The Japs will pay and pay dearly thru their blood and the ashes of their cities. We will not resort to torture. But, let them be lined up and shot—and suffer the tortures of hell.

Sen. Maybank [D., S. C.]—It makes us wonder whether there is room in the world for a race capable of things of that kind.

Sen. White [R., Me.]—This will stir the bitterest resentment across the country.

New Depths for Japs.

Sen. Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah] [a former educator in the orient]—There is no doubt that the Japanese army has slipped to depths never before reached.

Sen. Tydings [D., Md.]—We must find the means to punish those responsible for this outrage.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley [D., Ky.]—Such conduct puts Japan as a nation beyond the pale of civilization.

Chairman Bloom [D., N. Y.] of the house foreign affairs committee—Let these Japanese know in plain and uncertain terms that we're going to hold them responsible for this nasty, damnable, despicable business. We'll hold the rats—from the emperor down to the lowest ditch digger—responsible for a million years if necessary.

Horror and Shock.

Sen. Hatch [D., N. M.]—Nothing demonstrates so completely the Japanese lack of civilized practices and the throw back to barbarianism as this report.

Sen. Green [D., R. I.]—My reaction is that of every American—horror and shock. But I am not surprised. The Japs will not stop at anything and it is weakness in us to be surprised at what they do when we consider Jap actions in the past.

Sen. O'Daniel [D., Tex.]—I am in favor of the army and navy doing everything they can now to stop this kind of butchery and mistreatment . . . to spare others from this horrible fate.

Make the Japs Pay.

House Republican Leader Martin [R., Mass.]—The outrages will arouse the American people to an even stronger determination to prosecute this war more vigorously and make the Japs pay for their barbarity.

Rep. Landis [R., Ind.]—For months many of us in congress have been advocating delivery of equipment and material to Gen. MacArthur so that he can go to the rescue of the men who were captured by the Japs because of the earlier failure to get supplies to him in the Philippines, but the material is going the other way to Europe.

Rep. Rogers [D., N. J.]—The Japs should be annihilated.

Rep. Engle [D., Cal.]—The Japanese are nothing but a savage, uncivilized people. I am glad the army and navy have finally seen fit to let the American people know what type of enemy they are fighting so we can get down to business and get this thing over with.

Sen Hill [D., Ala.]—Gut the heart of Japan with fire.

Sen. Russell [D., Ga.]—Every American soldier who has been in battle against the Japs is imbued with a personal hatred of them, terrifying in its aspects. The American Indian, with his scalping knife and stake, was a chivalrous cavalier compared with the Japanese.

The Sun Won't Rise.

Sen. Murdock [D., Utah]—To Tojo, to Hirohito, I want to say: Some day a morning will come when the sun will not rise on Japan.

Sen. Chavez [D., N. M.]—Even at this late date our military strategists can or should get busy in the Pacific.

Sen. Bridges, [R., N. H.], took the occasion to criticize the Roosevelt administration in its past relations with Japan. Bridges said the administration opposed his efforts in 1937 to halt shipment of scrap iron and steel to Japan "because it didn't want to offend Japan."

The war department emphasized Japanese captured by American forces and held prisoner receive virtually the same liberal rations as do our own troops, in comparison with the starvation diet of Americans held prisoners by the Japanese.

JAPS KILL BRITISH BY THOUSANDS IN ASIA, EDEN SAYS

different one so far as the great majority of prisoners in Japanese hands is concerned.

"The house is already aware that a very high proportion, perhaps 80 per cent, of the prisoners and civilian internees in Japanese hands are located in a southern area comprising the Philippine Islands, the Netherlands East Indies, Borneo, Burma, Malaya, Siam, and Indo China. The Japanese government have hitherto withheld permission for neutral inspection of any of the camps in question. We have not even been allowed to know numbers of prisoners nor have their names been indicated to us.

Cites Cruelties to Britons.

"For some time past information has been reaching his majesty's government regarding the conditions under which prisoners are detained and work in some of these areas, and as it was of so grave a character as to be likely to cause distress to relatives of prisoners and civilian internees in Japanese hands, his majesty's government felt bound to satisfy themselves that it was authentic before making it public.

"We now are satisfied and it becomes my painful duty to inform the house that in Siam there are many thousands of prisoners from the British commonwealth, including India, who are being compelled by the Japanese military to live under tropical jungle conditions without adequate shelter, clothing, food or medical attention.

"These men are forced to work building railways and making roads. Our information is that their health is rapidly deteriorating, that a high percentage is seriously ill and that there have been some thousands of deaths. The number of such deaths reported by the Japanese to us is just over 100.

Prisoners "Skin and Bone."

"One railway and one road concerned lead to Burma, and the conditions I have described apply thruout their entire length.

"One eyewitness reports of a camp in Siam:

"'I saw many prisoners clearly. They are skin and bone, unshaven, with long matted hair. They are half naked.'

"The same witness reported they wore no hats or shoes and this, may I remind you, was in a tropical climate where neighboring countries are virtually uninhabited, where there are practically no local resources which could provide medical or other material relief.

"Of one other part of this huge southern area we have some information. From Java comes evidence that leaves no doubt that many of our prisoners are confined in camps with no adequate protection from malarial infection and lacking in proper sanitation. Except, insofar as prisoners may sometimes obtain food from local resources, there are insufficient amounts to maintain them in health.

Japs Bar Inspections.

"Reports from other areas refer to the emaciated state of prisoners arriving from Java.

"Refusal of the Japanese government to permit neutral inspections of camps in the southern area is difficult to understand in view of the fact they have allowed visits by neutral inspectors, altho on a scale which we cannot regard as adequate, to camps in the northern area comprising Hongkong, Formosa, Shanghai, Corea and Japan itself. The British government is reasonably satisfied that conditions generally in this area are tolerable altho as the secretary for war has said on more than one occasion the scale on which food is provided is not adequate for long periods to maintain the health of the prisoners.

"I should add that conditions in Hongkong appear to be growing worse.

Relates Brutal Outrages.

"The whole story would appear very bad indeed, but I have worse to come. We have a growing list of cases of brutal outrage of individuals or groups of individuals. I cannot burden the house with the full details of these, but in order to give an idea of their nature, I must, I fear, quote one or two typical examples.

"The first two cases affect civilians. First is that of an officer of the Shanghai municipal police force.

"Along with some 300 other allied nationals he was interned by the Japanese in a detention camp for so-called political suspects at Haiphong in Shanghai. He incurred the displeasure of the Japanese gendarmerie and was taken from their office to another part of town. When he emerged from the building he was practically out of his mind. His arms and feet were infected where ropes left deep scars and he had lost 40 pounds in weight. He died within a day or two of his release.

"The second case comes from the Philippine Islands. Here on Feb. 11, 1942, three British subjects escaped from the Japanese civilian internment camp at Santo Tomas, Manila.

Flogged by Guards.

"They were recaptured and flogged by the camp guards. Two days later they were sentenced to death by the military court despite the fact that international law prescribes imposition only of disciplinary punishments for attempts to escape. The firing party used automatic pistols and the men were not killed outright. I now turn to cases affecting soldiers. A number of Indian soldiers captured in Burma had their hands tied behind their backs, made to sit in groups by the side of the road, then were systematically bayoneted from behind in turn, each man receiving apparently three bayonet thrusts.

"By some miracle, one man who collapsed subsequently recovered and escaped to our lines. That is how we know. The other case concerns an officer of a well known regiment who was captured in Burma. After being clubbed across the face with a sword he was tied to a stake and a rope was passed round his neck. Only by raising his body could he get enough air to keep him alive. He was then subjected to further torture. Fortunately an allied attack developed and the Japanese fled and the officer was rescued by a British tank.

"The third case concerned the transport Lisbon Maru which was being used for conveying 1,800 British prisoners of war from Hongkong. On board conditions were almost indescribable. The prisoners were seriously overcrowded, many were undernourished and had contracted diphtheria, dysentery, and other diseases. There was no medical provision and sanitary arrangements were virtually nonexistent. Two prisoners died in one of the holds where they lay and no attempt was made to remove the bodies.

800 Prisoners Drowned.

"On the morning of Oct. 1, 1942, the vessel was torpedoed by a united nations submarine. The Japanese officers and soldiers crew kept the prisoners under the hatchways and abandoned ship forthwith altho it was 24 hours later before the vessel sank. There were insufficient lifeboats, rafts, etc., on board. Some prisoners broke out and swam to land and they were fired on. In all, 800 prisoners lost their lives. I have said sufficient to show the barbarous nature of our Japanese enemies.

"They have violated not only the principles of international law but all the canons of decent civilized conduct. The British government repeatedly made the strongest possible representations to the Japanese government thru the Swiss government. Such replies as have been received have been evasive, cynical, or otherwise unsatisfactory.

"We have the right to expect that once they were aware of the facts that the Japanese government would remedy this state of affairs. The Japanese know well what are the obligations of a civilized power to safeguard the life and the health of prisoners who have fallen into their hands.

"This was shown by their treatment in the Russo-Japanese war and in the war of 1914-'18. Let the Japanese government reflect in time to come that the record of their military authorities in this war will not be forgotten. It is with the deepest regret that I have been obliged to make such a statement to the house, but after consultation with our allies who equally are victims of this unspeakable savagery, the government felt it to be its duty to make public the facts."

CANADA BLAMES TOKIO; TELLS OF HONGKONG EVILS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 28.—Japan has ignored protests by Canada about treatment of prisoners, or else made "hypocritical or cynical replies," Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King told the house of commons today. He expressed sympathy with the United States and other nations whose men have been subjected to "Japanese brutality and organized sadism."

"We share their feelings of pain and indignation," he said. Dealing with Canadian prisoners at Hongkong, he explained, reports indicate about 1,000 have been transferred to Japan, leaving 500 or 600 in Hongkong who are suffering "from failure of the Japanese government to provide adequate clothing, food, and medical care. Some supplies went forward to the far east on the Gripsholm in the first exchange in 1942.

"Acting with the United States, a shipload of supplies was made ready for sailing, but the Japanese refused safe conduct, he said. Supplies sent to Vladivostok for transshipment to Japanese prison camps are still there. The Japanese have obstructed the forwarding of mail to prisoners.

"Whether the Japanese government in Tokio is unable or unwilling to induce the military authorities outside Japan to act like human beings, the responsibility for inhuman treatment of prisoners rests none the less at Tokio. This guilt will not be forgotten."

REVEAL DYESS ESCAPE AIDED BY 2 FILIPINOS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippine Islands tonight disclosed that two Filipino prisoners at the Davao penal colony helped the late Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess and others escape from Japanese imprisonment.

In a statement released by his Washington staff, President Quezon, who is in Miami, Fla., said:

"The escape of Col. Dyess, Col. Melinik, and Comdr. McCoy was made possible with the help of two Filipinos who had been sentenced to many years imprisonment and were confined in the penal colony where the three officers were kept as prisoners of war. Upon learning of what they did I granted the prisoners absolute pardons."

CITES LATITUDE IN PUNISHMENT FOR WAR CRIMES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—The Japanese responsible for torture and mistreatment of war prisoners, under an interpretation of international law by Maj. Willard B. Cowles of the judge advocate general's division, are liable to whatever punishment an American military commission may find proper. That could be the death penalty.

Discussing the trial of war criminals in an address to the Inter-American Bar association today, Maj. Cowles stressed the wide discretionary powers military commissions have under the international precedents which have come to be the laws and customs of wars.

His address was prepared before the army and navy released the account of Japanese atrocities against the men captured on Bataan and Corregidor, and made no direct reference to them. However, he laid down general principles clearly covering the case of the Japanese, altho he emphasized the opinions were his own.

Plenty of Precedents.

For precedents for trial of war criminals by military tribunals, Maj. Cowles cited cases extending back to the Revolution, and, in this war, the Washington trials of eight Nazi saboteurs and the Kharkov trials.

"National military tribunals," he said, "in the trial of alleged offenses in violation of the law of war, may apply:

"1. General international treaties or conventions declaratory of the law of war, and particular treaties establishing rules of the law of war expressly recognized by the belligerent states;

"2. International customs of war, as evidence of a general practice accepted as law;

"3. Pertinent general principles of law, including criminal law, recognized by civilized nations;

"4. Judicial decisions and the teachings of the most highly qualified publicists of the various nations as subsidiary means for the determination of rules of the law of war; and

"5. Local laws, and military regulations and orders, during military occupation."

Few Limitations.

On the point of punishment, Cowles said "there are few limitations on the sentences which may be imposed by military commissions." He noted that the United States basic field manual on the rules of land warfare says: "All war crimes are subject to the death penalty, altho a lesser penalty may be imposed."

He said military tribunals have jurisdiction over offenses in violation of the laws of war so long as a technical state of war continues, and may extend beyond the peace by treaty agreement.

Italian Jews 'Worse Off Since Mussolini's Fall'

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the administrative committee of the world Jewish congress, today said the Jews in Italy were "much worse off since the fall of Mussolini." He estimated that 100,000 Italian Jews had been killed or deported by the Nazis in the last six months.

DYESS' WIDOW SAYS HUSBAND'S EPIC WILL STRENGTHEN AMERICA

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 28 [Special].—Mrs. Marajen Stevick Dyess of Champaign, Ill., widow of Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess, Bataan hero, said today she was sure that those who read his personal story of American suffering in the Philippines will gain new strength for the tasks ahead in helping this country remain free.

She declined comment on the Japanese atrocities other than to issue the following statement:

"It is tragic that my husband is not alive to see that the story he wanted so much to tell is now in every newspaper and on every radio. I think the strength and courage that enabled my husband to withstand the tortures of the Japanese prison camps and to dare the dangers of escape came from his overwhelming desire to tell the folks back home of the courage of the men who had fought on Bataan.

"I hope that every one in America, and in other lands, too, fighting alongside of America, will find a new pride in the men like my husband who were first in the front lines of this cruel war. My husband's courage never faltered, and I am sure that those who read his personal story will gain new strength for the tasks ahead of them in helping this country remain a free America."

JAP ATROCITIES VIEWED AS SPUR TO BOND SALES

Frank McNair, chairman of the fourth war loan drive, told a meeting of volunteer bond salesmen in drive headquarters yesterday that the official revelation of Japanese atrocities to American prisoners in the Philippines should boost bond sales sharply.

Total individual sales up to Thursday were $60,793,000, McNair reported, with Wednesday's sales overcoming a slump the first of the week, amounting to $5,291,000. The quota for individual sales is $251,959,800. The drive ends Feb. 15.

"No amount of sacrifices for war bonds can approach the sacrifices of the men who were tortured, starved, and done to death in such horrible fashion as described by our government," McNair declared.

JAP INFERIORITY FEELING BLAMED FOR BARBARISM

Maj. Pacifico Ortiz, a chaplain on detached service with President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines, said yesterday that Japanese feelings of inferiority, heightened by the magnificent stand of Filipino and American soldiers on Bataan and Corregidor, inspired the Japs to the acts of barbarism revealed yesterday.

Maj. Pacifico Ortiz.

Maj. Ortiz, who left Corregidor with President Quezon's party before its fall, declared, "The Japs regard themselves as underdogs and have an inferiority that makes them vicious and cruel when they finally gain the top hand."

TRIBUNE SERIES ON DYESS HAILED BY MORGENTHAU

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau tonight hailed "Death March of Bataan," the story of the late Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess on the torture, murder, and starvation of American prisoners by the Japs, as the answer to what the United States is fighting against.

He said the "most horrible and revolting tale in all history" should spur the purchase of war bonds not only in the current drive but regularly so that "Jap beasts" will meet the extinction they deserve.

In All History.

Morgenthau issued the following statement on the Dyess story, which is to be released by THE TRIBUNE and 100 associated newspapers beginning Sunday:

"Much has been said since the war began about what we are fighting for.

"Any one who reads this story told by Lt. Col. Dyess will be convinced that whatever we are fighting for, at least it is most clear what we are fighting against.

"Here is the most horrible and revolting tale in all history—and it is true. It is inconceivable that human beings could conjure up the tortures that seem to come so easily to the Japanese.

Bloodthirsty Creatures.

"These bloodthirsty creatures are our enemies, the same enemies who attacked Pearl Harbor, as the first step in creating a world to their liking—and to the liking of their friends, the Nazis.

"They are the ones we will have to fight to a complete finish—and it will be a long, expensive war, for these beasts are determined to save themselves from the extinction they so roundly deserve. Your war bonds will help get this job done—and will help your men to know that you are backing them up."

RAP NEW DEAL FOR HOLDING UP JAP PRISON TALE

Parents of Victims Call Delay 'Damnable.'

Men and women whose sons faced the barbarities of Japanese war prisons charged yesterday that "the administration at Washington held up this horrible story far too long—and for a purpose."

"That purpose," said Albert C. McArthur, president of the Maywood Bataan clan, "is very plain. It was simply to keep the American people from fully awakening to the horrors of the Pacific war and to keep off the administration's back the terrific demand that Gen. MacArthur be given the backing he should have had long ago."

In expressing that opinion, McArthur echoed the refrain in statements of most of the Chicago mothers and fathers of war prisoners.

They felt, they said, that their sons and relatives had been sent to the Pacific as a "stop-gap," a heroic band over whom the administration would wave a death and glory banner while it concentrated on the war in Europe.

Secrecy "Damnable."

McArthur, present head of the Bataan clan, was notified last June that his son, Tech. Sgt. Albert C. Jr., was dead in a prison camp on Luzon in the Philippines. He continued:

"I can describe the administration's holding up of this story for months in just two words. It's damnable.

"We have known for months about these atrocities. And all the American people should have known it long ago. It must be a year since we started to get it. If it had been told generally enough pressure long ago would have been put on Washington to compel it to back up the Pacific war properly and fight it as it must be fought."

Mrs. Oscar Heilig, who founded Maywood's Bataan clan in 1942 and now is a war plant worker, said she's "glad the true story is finally coming out. We feel that if the government would give Gen. MacArthur supplies, equipment and men he needs it would be only a short time until our boys are released."

Mrs. Heilig's son, Sgt. Roger J. Heilig, a prisoner in the Philippines, was a member of the famous 192d tank battalion.

Wermuths Urge Action.

Mrs. Clara Wermuth, mother, and Talia, sister, of Capt. Arthur Wermuth, Chicago's "one man army of Bataan," said their hopes and prayers are "for more men, more ships, more tanks and more planes in the Pacific."

"Something must be done now to take care of those left in the Philippines," said Mrs. Wermuth. "We want to know the truth. We want to know what is happening to our boys; it will give us the incentive to fight and win."

Talia, a dancer, added:

"As long as there is one American alive in the Philippines it is up to us to get him back. They went there to fight for us. Now it's up to us to keep faith with them."

But strangely enough the story of pain and humiliation heaped on their American prisoners deeply aroused those whose loved ones are fighting or are held prisoner in theaters other than the South Pacific. Typical of these was Mrs. Samuel Martinek of Route 1, near Norwood Park, whose eldest son, Sam R. Martinek Jr., is a German prisoner.

Japan Is Real Enemy.

"Altho my own son was captured fighting the Germans," Mrs. Martinek said, "I'm convinced our government should concentrate on the war with Japan. Japan is our real enemy; they're the ones who attacked our country; the Japs should be our first consideration."

Comments of others whose sons either died in Jap prison camps or who are still prisoners there, were:

Mrs. William Vertuno, 909 South 10th avenue, Maywood, secretary of the Bataan clan, whose son, Corp. Russell, 26, was reported missing in action after the fall of Corregidor—"All of this should have been told months ago. Then MacArthur might have had at least some portion of the help he had needed."

Lt. John Peterson of the Maywood police department, former president of the Bataan clan, whose son, Staff Sgt. Robert E., 22, is a prisoner of the Japs—"It's the same old story—a lot of those men could have been saved if MacArthur had gotten supplies even as soon as he arrived in Australia. Hampering him gave the Japs time to put that iron ring around Australia that we're still trying to break."

Mrs. Lucy Palermo, mother of a prisoner son, Illinois chairman of the National Bataan Relief organization—"Until now our appeals to give Gen. MacArthur full support have come to nothing. I'm sure the whole story of these barbarities was held up to prevent pressure. Now Washington strategists will have to do something about it."

Mrs. Ann Weissig, 4843 Elizabeth street, whose brother Corp. Alexander Antosiak, 22 years old, died in a Jap prison camp last May 26—"These reports should have been printed long ago. They make me want to go out and fight. Let such stories be told if this country wants more WACs, WAVES and other women recruits."

Mexico Pays $73,285 to Britain on Reparations

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 28.—Foreign Minister Padilla last night handed a check for $73,285 to Charles H. Bateman, British minister, to cover Mexico's annual installment of reparations to British subjects whose property was damaged during the Mexican revolution.

Entertains Army

INGRID BERGMAN.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 28 (AP).—American troops in Alaska are a shy lot, says Ingrid Bergman, Swedish born screen actress.

"We practically had to chase them," she said in an interview today after her return from a six weeks tour of camps in the north. "They asked many questions about Hollywood and how America looks now. And so many of them thought I looked like their wives."

Miss Bergman presented 60 shows to audiences ranging from 57 to 2,000 men.

HERO'S DECISION: HANG THE MONEY IF STORY IS TOLD

The financial arrangement under which Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess told his appalling story of Japanese atrocities for publication in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and associated newspapers is unique.

It is believed to be the first instance in which a returned hero of World War II. was assured of receiving all the revenue accruing from his story. Neither THE TRIBUNE nor any associated newspaper will share in the proceeds of the venture.

Further, THE TRIBUNE agreed to handle, without compensation of any kind, the sale of Col. Dyess' manuscript to a book publisher and to a motion picture producer. This obviated payment of fees or percentages by Col. Dyess to literary or Hollywood agents.

Collaborator Provided.

Nor was he required to pay for the services of a writer in preparing his material for newspaper syndication. The collaborator in one of the most popular of World War II. personal experience stories received 50 per cent of the proceeds. The writer of another account, almost as popular as the first, received 35 per cent. Col. Dyess did not have to divide the proceeds with anybody.

When THE TRIBUNE first learned of the Dyess story, efforts were being made to influence him to sell it to a national magazine. This newspaper believed his experiences to be of such moment and gravity that they should be told by the daily press of the nation, because of its vastly greater audience.

Col. Dyess was visited in an army base hospital in West Virginia, where he had been sent to recuperate after his return to the United States. He was told that THE TRIBUNE and associated newspapers would pay more than any magazine; that they would top any other offer made to him.

Money Minor Consideration.

The offer then before him was for $20,000—with no strings attached to his future book and movie royalties. Col. Dyess said money was a minor consideration. He added:

"The thing I must do—the thing I'm going to do—is tell the American people what the Japs have done and are doing to their sons and husbands and brothers out in the Philippines. I want the American people to understand Japanese psychology and the way they make war. I am going to tell my story thru the medium that will get it to the most people most effectively."

THE TRIBUNE man gave the facts: The best of the magazines could tell his story to 2 or 3 million subscribers a week. THE TRIBUNE and the associated newspapers that would publish the story have a combined circulation of 12 to 14 million a day, and the newspapers are estimated to have upwards of 40,000,000 readers daily. THE TRIBUNE then offered $21,000 for the newspaper rights alone and outlined verbally the additional provisions already mentioned.

With that, Col. Dyess raised himself from his pillow and held out his hand.

Story Big Thing to Him.

"It's a deal," he said. "In the last few days all I've heard is talk about percentages on this, cut-ins on that, and slices of something else. Nobody would talk about how they were going to present this story of the American prisoners in the Philippines, or about the number of people that would read it.

"That's all I'm interested in. I don't care about money and apparently you don't either. I want the story told and that is what you seem to want above everything else. We'll start work as soon as you can fix it up in Washington. And now, I've got to get some sleep."

In the days that followed Col. Dyess' receipt of official permission to tell his story, he recounted his personal experiences in his matter of fact Texas way. It was during the rest periods that Ed Dyess talked a little about what he intended to do with the money the story brought him.

He indicated that certain recognized military charities would receive a share and that certain of his comrades in the escape from the Japs also would benefit. This came up one day after he told an incident concerning one of his junior officers.

"I'm sure going to take care of that old boy when he gets back," Dyess said.

He confided his plans in full to his wife, Mrs. Marajen Stevick Dyess of Champaign, Ill. She has said since Col. Dyess' death in a plane crash last Dec. 22 that it was his intention, which she expects to carry out, that a large part of the proceeds from the publication of the story in newspapers and magazines and in book form, and from the radio and movie rights, should go to Army Air Forces relief, the Red Cross, and possibly other charities, and to certain of the men who escaped with him as well as some who were left behind, or their dependents.

STATES IN WEST VOW VENGEANCE FOR ATROCITIES

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 28 (AP).—The west coast, which before Pearl Harbor was the home of more than 100,000 persons of Japanese ancestry, tonight found words a poor palliative for stories of Japanese atrocities. There were many vows of vengeance.

At Salinas, Cal., home of 150 captured heroes of Bataan, Mayor Edson G. Thomas said nothing less than "complete subjugation" of Japanese "savages" would ease the memories of such "inhuman treatment." And the chamber of commerce called its stand, forever opposing the return of Japanese to California, "completely justified."

Unremitting Justice.

Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commanding general of the western defense command and former war-time military governor of Hawaii, said an "exact and unremitting justice" would be meted out for "dastardly and cowardly acts," but warned against retaliation in this country, saying such action would "do more harm than good."

The situation, so far as could be learned, remained quiet in the four Japanese relocation centers in the far west—at Tule Lake and Manzanar, Cal., and at Rivers and Poston, Ariz.

At the town of Tule Lake, six miles from the segregation center now housing 15,000 Japanese officially listed as potentially or actually disloyal, street corner groups renewed their angry protest at the recent move whereby the war relocation authority again took over control of the center from the army.

Sympathetic Toward U. S.

The Manzanar evacuees were "very much disturbed," Ralph P. Merritt, project director, said. He claimed the evacuees there were "practically all loyal people" and sympathetic with the American attitude.

Leroy Bennett, director of the Rivers, Ariz., center, said Japanese councils had been called into session to pass resolutions condemning the acts.

ESCAPED NURSE SURE NOW DEATH BETTER CHOICE

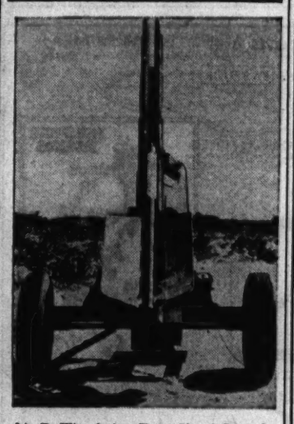

New Orleans, La., Jan. 28 (AP).—Navy Nurse Ann A. Bernatitus, after reading accounts of Japanese treatment of the heroes of Bataan and Corregidor, declared here today "I am more than ever convinced death is preferable to being taken prisoner by the Japs."

Miss Bernatitus, now head nurse at 8th naval district headquarters here, escaped Corregidor by submarine.

She said today that when it appeared none in the besieged fortress would escape death or capture by the Japanese she asked a navy medical officer to "save at least one bullet for me."

"He didn't promise, but I meant it," Miss Bernatitus said. "I just told him I had rather die than be taken prisoner by those people."

Rocket Tower

Rubber tired tower which shoots rocket propelled target for use in training anti-aircraft gunners.

Camp Davis, N. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—The army disclosed today that it was using a rocket propelled target which travels with the speed of a fast airplane in the training of anti-aircraft gunners at this big camp.

The target, about 5 feet long, is launched from a special tower. It has an initial speed of 450 miles an hour and a range of some 2,200 yards, depending upon the angle of release.

The gunners use 50 caliber machine guns and 20 and 40 millimeter cannon in firing at the rocket targets, and camp officers said the practice had improved their accuracy to a marked degree.

MOTHERS LAUD LIFTING BAN ON ATROCITY NEWS

The Rainbow chapter of the American War Mothers yesterday went on record as officially favoring the lifting of the ban against atrocity stories by the war and navy departments.

Enthusiastic approbation of the forthcoming publication by THE TRIBUNE and associated newspapers of the late Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess' account of his experiences was given by the members at their first meeting of 1944 in the Morrison hotel.

"Maybe this will awaken the American people to the need for sending more aid to Gen. MacArthur," Mrs. Alice Shinkle of 4425 Cortez street, said.

Mrs. Anna MacKay of 5440 Race avenue, added: "It seems to me that people have begun to let down in this country. The release of the Dyess story probably will make them realize that we must fight the Japs with everything we have.

Mrs. Anne Lewis of 5100 Cornell avenue, president of the Rainbow chapter, expressed her approval of the release of the Dyess story. "Americans can stand the truth, and the truth should be made known," she said.

STOLEN TRUCK FOUND.

A truck stolen from B. Wolfinsohn, 3245 West 16th street, yesterday was found abandoned several blocks away, but several sets of dishes had been stolen from its cargo, Wolfinsohn told police.

TEXANS DEMAND A VISITATION OF DEATH FOR JAPS

Home State of Dyess Is Fighting Mad.

Texas, the home state of Lt. Col. William E. Dyess, seethed with indignation yesterday over the barbaric treatment of American prisoners by the Japs, as related in official statements based on the stories told by Col. Dyess and two other officers who escaped from Jap prison camps. Col. Dyess, whose home was in Albany, Tex., was killed in a plane crash on the west coast last Dec. 22.

Demands for the crushing defeat of Japan and vengeance on the military leaders who countenanced the crimes against the prisoners came from every section of the state.

Knew Them Then.

Austin—"When I was in the cotton business," said Mayor Tome Miller, "I refused to do business with the Japanese, because even then I realized they are an uncivilized people who had only a little veneer of outside paint acquired by their imitation of western peoples. The cry 'Japan must be obliterated' should be uttered daily until we accomplish that end."

Dallas—"We had rather have known the worst from the start," said Mrs. E. E. Weiss of Plainview, whose son is in a prison camp in Burma. "Now the sorrow and suspense has begun again."

San Antonio—"It's time for us to get fighting mad," said Police Commissioner P. L. Anderson, the acting mayor.

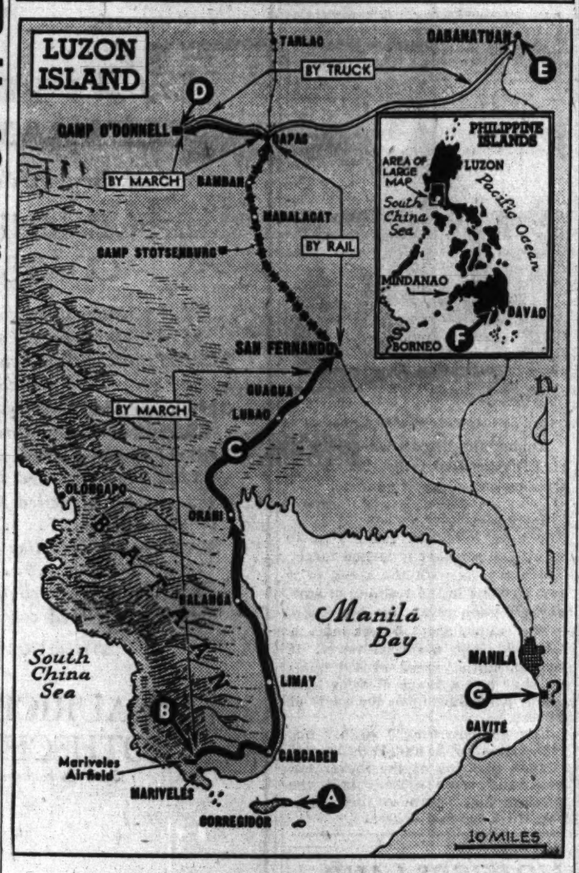

Wipe Them from Earth.

Andrew Dilworth, past Texas commander of the American Legion, said the atrocities "make me feel like we ought to wipe the Japs off the face of the earth."

"I had feared such treatment of American prisoners had been going on," said J. H. Calvert, past president of the chamber of commerce, "and the withholding of the news was inexcusable."

Maj. Jack Hawkins of Roxton, a marine officer who escaped from the Japs, indicated more will be told later of tortures inflicted on prisoners. He was with Col. Dyess during the fall of Bataan and Corregidor.

Scenes of Jap Atrocities

The letters on the accompanying map indicate localities in the Philippine Islands where Jap savagery took the heaviest toll of captured American and Filipino fighting men after the fall of Bataan, April 9, 1942, as described in a joint army-navy report.

The compilation of barbaric Japanese torture and murder was drawn from the official reports of three American officers who escaped from a Jap prison camp: Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess, whose personal story of his experiences begins in tomorrow's TRIBUNE; Lt. Col. S. M. Mellnik of the coast artillery and Comdr. Melvyn H. McCoy, U. S. N.

A [Corregidor] the fortified rock island off the tip of Bataan was shelled and bombed night and day for more than a month after the fall of Bataan. When all its big guns had been knocked out its defenders were overwhelmed by Jap landing parties. It was here that Mellnik and McCoy were captured.

B [Mariveles air field] was the starting point of the Death March of Bataan—a terrible 85 mile trek in the blazing sun, during which hundreds of sick and battle spent American and Filipino fighting men were clubbed, bayonetted, and shot to death, or were rolled in the path of heavy trucks and tanks to be crushed when they collapsed of exhaustion.

It was on Mariveles air field, at the start of the death march, that an American air force captain was beheaded because a few Japanese yen were found in his possession. Here, too, Americans and Filipinos were slugged and beaten and were robbed of all their personal possessions by looting Jap soldiers.

Col. Dyess was captured near Mariveles on April 9 and was among the hundreds of prisoners herded together on the air field the morning of April 10. There he witnessed many of the atrocities that were the Americans' first intimation of the horrors in store for them. In one of the groups of from 600 to 1,200 prisoners, he began the death march.

C [The Death March of Bataan] indicated by the heavy black line from Mariveles to San Fernando. Early in the march, according to Col. Dyess' official report, he began seeing men lying freshly killed along the roadside. Some had been bayoneted, others had been rolled into the paths of the trucks and tanks. At night he could hear rifle fire behind him as the Japs shot into the huddled forms of those who had dropped from exhaustion.

He made the entire march on one mess kit of rice and a few swallows of filthy water. In the heat of the day the men were forced to sit without cover in the direct rays of the broiling sun, Col. Dyess wrote. This came to be known as the oriental sun treatment.

The prisoners spent one night in a murky rice paddy, too small to permit lying down. On another night they were crowded into a filthy compound amid the dead and dying. At San Fernando the prisoners were put into tiny, unventilated box cars and hauled to Copas, Tanlac, province.

From there they were marched—many of the men in a state of collapse—to

D [O'Donnell prison camp] where for months they suffered additional brutalities. After a week there the death toll among American prisoners was 20 a day and among the Filipinos 50 a day. This was because of disease and the refusal of medicines and medical attention by the Japs, Dyess asserted.

In a short time the Americans were dying at the rate of 50 a day, while Filipino deaths had risen to 150 a day. To find men strong enough to dig graves was a problem. Of the men ordered out on work details, an average of 20 per cent died of their exertions and starvation. In some instances this was 75 per cent. In early summer the American prisoners were moved to

E [Cabantual prison camp] where Jap barbarism continued. Shortly after their arrival, the prisoners from Corregidor [A] began trickling in. Among these were Mellnik and McCoy.

In their official reports they told of Jap threats to massacre all prisoners taken from Corregidor unless Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright called on all forces in the southern islands to surrender.

G [The walled 92d field garage area] where balloons had once been kept, in which the defenders of Corregidor were confined for many days without sanitary facilities and with little food or water.

When the garrison in the south finally gave up, the prisoners were loaded into merchant ships, carried past Manila, then loaded into barges. They were taken almost to shore, then were forced to plunge into water shoulder deep and wade ashore, said McCoy. In this bedraggled condition they were paraded thru Manila and sent to Cabanatuan. In October, 1942, Dyess, Mellnik, and McCoy, with 966 other prisoners, were taken to Manila and loaded aboard a filthy prison ship which transferred them to—

F [Davao prison camp on the island of Mindanao]. Conditions were better here for a time and the death toll dropped materially. But savagery and cruelty continued as did the havoc wrough by undernourishment. It was from Davao that the three officers and several companions made their escape.

ASSERTS 90 PCT. OF YANKS HELD BY JAPS MAY DIE

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 28 (AP).—One of the leaders of the desperate band of Americans who escaped from a Japanese prison camp warned today that at least 90 per cent of all the American prisoners of war in the Philippines face certain death unless the quantity and quality of their food has decidedly improved.

The warning came from Comdr. Melvin H. McCoy, a prisoner for 11 months after the fall of Corregidor and one of the three officers whose experiences were related in the joint army-navy report on Japanese atrocities.

His Present Station.

The commander now is stationed on Bainbridge Island in Puget sound. He said: "It is important the public should know how the military prisoners are being treated.

"There's all the difference in the world between the military prison camps and the internment camps where civilians are kept," he said in an interview. "The Japs realize we have a lot more of their civilians interned than they have of ours, and therefore some of our civilians have received fairly decent treatment.

No Fear of Retaliation.

"But the Japs don't recognize that any of the members of their fighting forces can be taken prisoner, so they feel free to treat American soldiers, sailors, and marines as they please. They have no fear of retaliatory action because they simply ignore the existence of their comrades who have been captured.

"I never saw a time when the Japs made the slightest pretext of observing the Geneva treaty governing the treatment of prisoners of war."

ANNOUNCE RULES FOR LETTERS TO WAR PRISONERS

Because German authorities are interfering with the delivery to American prisoners of war of letters which bear patriotic slogans, Ernest J. Kruetgen, Chicago postmaster, yesterday announced special regulations for mailing letters to such prisoners.

To assure delivery, Kruetgen requested that all mail for prisoners of war be handed directly to postal employes. If the letter is posted at a letter box or slot, it should be placed inside a second envelope with this inscription, "Postmaster—Prisoner of War Mail." The outer envelope needs no stamp and should be left unsealed. Parcels which bear the slogans will not be accepted for mailing.

State department officials have protested the action of the Germans in confiscating mail in some cases because the postage stamp bears such themes as "Win the War" and "For Defense."

JIMMY STEWART GIVEN MAJORITY THO HE DECLINED

A U. S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 28 (AP).—Maj. Jimmy Stewart still wore his silver captain's bars at his Liberator base today, uninformed officially of his promotion from captain to major.

His friends yesterday said the former movie star had rejected a chance for promotion "until my junior officers get promoted from lieutenant." Today a public relations officer, disclosed that several of Stewart's officers have been promoted since the movie star startled his superiors by declining a time requirement waiver.

Stewart's required time in the captain's grade now has elapsed, however, and he became entitled to the promotion without the waiver. The promotion has not yet cleared the usual official channels, however, so Stewart still wears his captain's bars. A squadron commander, Stewart has piloted a Liberator on three raids.

Decorated

Pvt. Heidemann (left) and Lt. Rosenblum.

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 28 (AP).—Seven wounded veterans were decorated this morning by Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Bastion in ceremonies at Percy Jones General hospital. The awards included a Silver Star, two Oak Leaf clusters to the air medal, and four Purple Hearts.

Pvt. Bernard W. Heidemann of 312 South Campbell avenue, Chicago, was awarded the Silver Star for meritorious action in Sicily in August when he covered the retreat of his platoon and remained in singlehanded action against the enemy for 11 hours while his company retook the ground. The citation states that Heidemann's action resulted in establishment of a bridgehead.

Recipients of the Purple Heart medal included 1st Lt. Nathan J. Rosenblum, 2913 Division street, Chicago; and 1st Lt. Anthony J. Pappas, 2219 Greenleaf avenue, Chicago.

FORTRESS CREW CALLS DRAFT OF LABOR 'SLAVERY'

One 'Thru Fighting' if Bill Is Made Law.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—Branding President Roosevelt's proposed national labor draft as slavery, members of a Flying Fortress crew in England have written to Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] in protest against the measure.

The letter which Sen. Wheeler placed in the Congressional Record says the soldiers do not want their families broken up by officials with power to draft wives and mothers and fathers to "any damn place they see fit." The soldier, who wrote the letter on behalf of himself and his comrades, said:

"If this bill is passed, I for one am thru flying and fighting, for when my government invades my home, the only thing we have left, there is nothing left to fight for."

Firmly Against Bill.

The letter continues:

"In our army paper, Stars and Stripes, we have been following the debate pro and con on the national service law, and as crew members of the Flying Forts of the 8th air force we feel that we have a right to a few words. We would like to state and we may be quoted that we are firmly against the bill.

"We were led to understand that the law in question once caused a civil war and was settled for all time.

"Frankly, sir, we are sick and tired of having a few loud mouth politicians try to bring slavery back to the United States.

A Failure in England.

"If any one would care to see how miserably that same law has failed in England tell them to come over. It has ruined thousands of homes.

"We did not want to come over here and do not wish to be here now, but since we must we will, and are doing our best.

"However, if this bill is passed I for one am thru flying and fighting, for when my government invades my home, the only thing we have left, there is nothing left to fight for."

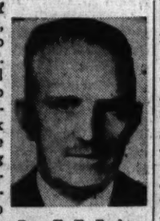

The letter was signed by a staff sergeant whose name has been withheld to spare him embarrassment.

CANDY STOLEN FROM TRUCK.

Fifteen dollars in pennies and an undetermined number of candy bars were stolen yesterday from a truck of the Chicago Canteen company, 4733 Gladys avenue, while it was parked at Washington boulevard and Canal street.

PREDICTS GAINS BY COMMUNISM IN WAKE OF WAR

No country in Europe has a chance of escaping communism after the close of the present war, according to Rep. Fred E. Busbey [R., 3d] who returned to his home district this week to address the annual meeting of the Manufacturers' Association of Chicago Heights and to confer on matters pertaining to his district.

Rep. F. E. Busbey.

Busbey, a member of the Dies committee and active in investigation of un-American activities for the American Legion for many years prior to his election to congress in 1942, said yesterday the confidence of European Communists was shown by the all-Slav congress called in Moscow within two months after Hitler attacked Russia. At this congress, he said, the Communist movements in various countries felt it no longer was necessary to remain underground and since have been operating openly.

Cited Case of Slavs.

He cited the case of Jugo-Slavia where aid is no longer given to Gen. Draja Mihailovitch, who has been fighting the Nazis continuously, but is now being given to Josip [Tito] Broz and his Partisans. There is no doubt about the communism of the Partisans, Busbey said. He described Tito's chief supporter in this country—Louis Adamic—as "the most dangerous man fighting against our Constitution, more dangerous even than Earl Browder."

Busbey said 50,000 copies of Adamic's book, "The Native's Return," had been printed at government expense and distributed by the war department to the army despite the fact the book favored communism. He said army officials admitted they had taken five pages out of the book before sending it to American soldiers, proof enough in Busbey's estimation that the book was not the type to be sanctioned by the government.

Aliens on Pay Roll.

Busbey said an investigation of the foreign language overseas division of the office of war information that occupies 10 floors of a New York office building disclosed that at least 50 per cent of the personnel was made up of aliens, with no attempt apparently made to trace their backgrounds. He said he made inquiries of the United States civil service commission and promised an investigation "so the people can learn for the first time how this department became so loaded with communists, left wingers, and fellow travelers and who is responsible for it."

President Cites Destroyer Which Helped Rescue 700

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii, Jan. 28 (AP).—The U. S. S. Nicholas, destroyer which fought off Japanese warships while helping rescue more than 700 survivors of the sunken cruiser Helena in the Kolombangara island battle in the Solomons last July 5, today received a Presidential unit citation. The award was made by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz to the ship's commanding officer, Comdr. R. T. S. Keith, who received it on behalf of his officers and men.

FEDERAL COURT ACQUITS FLYNN AND 2 OF PLOT

Find No Concealment in Bankruptcy.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 28 [Special].—Federal Judge J. Le Roy Adair this afternoon acquitted Mortimer B. Flynn, 59, of Knox, Ind., former Chicago millionaire coal dealer; Charles J. Tressler, 65, Chicago attorney, and Frank De Young, 42, head of the De Young corporation of Chicago, of charges of concealing Flynn's assets when he went into bankruptcy here in 1940.

Flynn was found not guilty of concealment and all defendants were acquitted of a charge of conspiring to conceal.

Charged Unlisted Assets.

Flynn, president of the Walk-on-Air foot support firm in Knox and described by his attorney as "a man who is making a comeback after going from a mansion to a farmhouse," had been charged with concealing Chicago real estate assets, wrongfully giving Chicago as his address, and with failing to list a diamond ring, diamond pin, a foot support patent, and a garnishment judgment in his bankruptcy schedule.

Judge Adair, after hearing five days of testimony, said he could find no evidence that the friendship of the three men was indicative of conspiracy. He ruled there was no concealment of real estate, since Flynn's Chicago property, which the court said had been shown of little value, was covered by trust receipts issued to Tressler and De Young as collateral for debts. The receipts were listed in the bankruptcy schedule.

Upholds Claims for Services.

The court upheld the listing of Tressler's claim of $25,540 for legal services and the listing of De Young's claim of $7,000 for loans.

Judge Adair said the evidence was "devoid of any indication" that Tressler lied in his claims for legal services.

The court indicated it was taking cognizance of defense charges that the prosecution of Flynn was based on bad feeling between Flynn and two Chicago attorneys who represented Flynn's creditors at bankruptcy hearings.

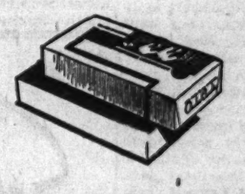

2,000 WORKERS IDLE IN DISPUTE ON JURISDICTION

More than 2,000 war workers remained idle yesterday at the General American Transportation company in East Chicago, Ind., as the result of a jurisdictional dispute between the United Construction Workers' union and the CIO United Steel Workers of America. B. M. Marshman, commissioner of the conciliation service of the federal department of labor, said conferees representing both sides failed to reach an agreement at a meeting in the East Chicago Elks club. The conference will be resumed today.

CRUELTY CHARGE JUST REPETITION, TOKIO DECLARES

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—In the first Japanese reaction to American and British disclosures of brutal Japanese treatment of war prisoners, the Tokio Domei agency tonight said in a wireless dispatch for American consumption that the charges were "a mere recurrence of the enemy's vicious propaganda."

The English language transmission, recorded by the federal communications commission, attributed to "competent military quarters" in Tokio a countercharge of "bestial acts of terrorism and inhumanity repeatedly perpetrated by the enemy."

Earlier a Tokio propaganda broadcast called upon Americans to promote "a peace for the world club."

The Japanese commentator discussed the "lonely men out here in internment camps" and said prisoners of war were going to present the first act of John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men" as camp entertainment.

Then he said that since the United States is a nation of clubs, "Why not promote a peace for the world club?"

"Ask yourself who will pay the bill," the Japanese propaganda speaker said. "Are the sacrifices of your soldiers worth while? Drop a line to your favorite newspaper or radio commentator."

Government monitors said no official Japanese reaction to the army-navy statement on atrocities had yet been reported.

THIS TOWN HAS 62 REASONS TO HATE THE JAPS

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 28 (AP).—This city, home of 62 men in Company A, of the 194th tank battalion, which was taken prisoner in the fall of Bataan, seethed today over reports of atrocities committed by the Japanese.

"This news should reawaken Americans to the obligations they owe the men and women of Bataan and Corregidor," said George Falconer, president of the Brainerd Bataan Relief association, composed of families of men who were in the 194th.

"I am buying an extra war bond, which I believe should be the duty of every man if these atrocities are to be avenged."

"I still feel that my husband is O.K.," said Mrs. E. H. Miller, wife of Lt. Col. Miller, who commanded the battalion. "I heard from him in August and again in October, when he was reported held in a camp in Japan."

Of the 62 Brainerd men with the 194th, one is known to have been killed in action and six have died of disease in prison camps. Only a few have been heard from.

F. D. R.'s Physician Says President's in Good Health

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—Rear Adm. Ross T. McIntire, President Roosevelt's personal physician, said tonight the President was "basically in fine shape for a man of 62—surprisingly good shape." He said he felt the President was "all right" from the health standpoint, ignoring the attack of influenza from which he is just recovering. "My feeling is," the doctor asserted, "he's had a good year—an awfully good year, considering what he's gone thru." Mr. Roosevelt will be 62 years old tomorrow.

STALIN PINS ON GOLD, DIAMONDS AS SOVIET OPENS

LONDON, Jan. 28 (AP).—The 10th session of Russia's supreme soviet [parliament]—the first since ratification of the British-Russian pact in June, 1942—opened today in the Kremlin in the presence of Marshal Stalin, the Moscow radio announced.

The broadcast, recorded by soviet monitor, said Stalin, dressed as a marshal, wore the golden order of a Hero of Socialist Labor and the diamond studded Order of Suvorov.

He was given a tremendous ovation before the sittings of the two chambers convened. The great hall was filled with more than 1,300 deputies and delegates.

The sessions approved a 1944 budget, a report on budgets for 1940, 1941, and 1942, and a proposal to transfer the commissariat of defense and the commissariat of foreign affairs to the union of republican people's commissariats.

This proposal suggests a far reaching change in post-war Russia. It would give the 16 soviet republics a greater voice in foreign affairs.

THE JAPS WILL PAY! THAT'S PROMISE OF U. S. MARINE CORPS

Chester, Pa., Jan. 28 [Special].—The Japanese will be made to pay for the brutalities inflicted on American prisoners of war and they will "live to regret" the death march of Bataan by American troops, Lt. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, commandant of the Marine corps, promised here today.

With obvious distaste for the subject, the ranking marine officer who knows of the Japanese from personal experience in the Solomon Islands, declared that the "stories that have come out are well in keeping with the character they [the Japanese] have shown in all contacts we had with them" on the Pacific battle front.

"The officers and enlisted personel of the marine corps know from personal experience that the stories are not exaggerated," he said.

Gen. Vandegrift came here to receive an honary degree of doctor of military science from the Pennsylvania Military college.

U. S. Only Convoys 2 Pct., Canadian Tells Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 28.—The current issue of the magazine Tiempo, quotes Gaspar Fauteaux, Canadian deputy, as saying Canada "has convoyed 40 per cent of merchantmen carrying war materials, the united kingdom, 51 per cent, and the United States only 2 per cent." Fauteaux visited here a few weeks ago.

1,000 More Miners Strike in Britain; Total 8,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Another 1,000 miners joined the Lancashire coal strike today, raising the total idle to 8,000. The miners ceased work in portest against the new $18 to $20 a week minimum wage rate decreed last week by a government tribunal. The Miners federation yesterday agreed to accept the revised pay scale.

RUSSIA LOOSENS GERMAN GRIP ON LENINGRAD LINE

Seizes Another Town on Road to Moscow.

LONDON, Jan. 29 [Saturday]—(AP).—The Red army cleared the Germans from all except one beleaguered center of resistance along the great double tracked Leningrad-Moscow railway yesterday. It also rolled steadily westward from Lake Ilmen [about 100 miles southeast of Leningrad] to cut the Germans' important Leningrad-Vitebsk supply line. These developments left the Germans only one major rail route out of the north—the Leningrad-Pskov-Warsaw line.

The virtual clearing of the Leningrad-Moscow line—the Russians already were fighting in the streets of the last German held town of Chudovo — was announced by Premier Stalin in a special order of the day.

Orders Victory Salute.

Stalin told of the capture of the large station of Lyuban, about 50 miles southeast of Leningrad, and four others along the line. He then ordered a victory salute of 12 salvos from 124 Moscow guns to mark the achievement.

When the line is repaired it will again permit Russia's two largest cities to exchange supplies and men.

The line was lost to the Russians in the early days of the German invasion two and a half years ago. It was laid along the bee-line route connecting the former czarist and the present soviet capitals. It was planned in 1851 when Czar Nicholas ruled a line on a map between the two cities and said: "Build it here." His engineers did.

The Russians captured 84 communities on the three sectors of their northern offensive.

34 Miles from Estonia.

With the capture of a town 50 miles southwest of Leningrad, the Russians pushing toward Estonia were 34 miles from the frontier. Another force, moving down a spur railway from Volosova which connects with the Leningrad-Warsaw line, advanced 14 miles southward in 24 hours.

These advances gave the Red army a front of almost 40 miles on both sides of the east-west railway to Narva and Tallinn.

Another force moving south from Krasnogvardeisk on the last German escape route from northern Russia, advanced 11 miles.

Far to the south in the Ukraine, where the Russians were nearest the Rumanian border, soviet forces again beat back a German counter-attack east of Vinnitsa. Sixty-five German tanks were destroyed and 1,200 Germans killed in this fighting.

GERMAN WAR BULLETIN

Following is the German Friday war report as broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press:

"Heavy defensive battles near Kerch and Perekop [Crimea], where the soviets yesterday started a fresh attack, and also southwest of Cherkasi [Dnieper bend] and east of Belaya Tserkov [southwest of Kiev], continue.

"The enemy attacks were repulsed. When the soviets were able to make slight gains of ground they had to pay for it with heavy losses in men and material.

"Our troops attacking southwest of Zhashkov and southwest of Pogrebishche [central Ukraine] gained further ground in the face of strong enemy resistance. In these operations they destroyed further enemy forces and 115 tanks.

Russian Attacks Fail.

"In the battle zone of Novograd-Volynski [west of Kiev] several strong soviet attacks failed.

"Between the Pripet and Berezina rivers [White Russia] all soviet attempts to break thru were frustrated in heavy battles.

"Northwest of Lake Ilmen and in the area south of Leningrad the defensive battle continues with mounting strength.

"In these battles the 61st infantry division from East Prussia under the command of Lt. Gen. Krappel and Estonian volunteer battalion 658 commanded by M'. Rebane particularly distinguished themselves.

"A total of 234 enemy tanks were destroyed yesterday on the eastern front."

SLAV PARTISANS SEVER RAILROAD IN SIX SECTORS

LONDON, Jan. 28 (AP).—Jugo-Slav Partisans, striking simultaneously, have severed the important Belgrade-Zagreb railroad in six different sectors, Marshal Josip [Tito] Broz reported today, while dispatches from Cairo revealed that Jugo-Slav spearheads were fighting near Belgrade itself.

Tito's bulletin, broadcast by the Free Jugo-Slav radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said sharp fighting was continuing around Tuzla and Zvornik in eastern Bosnia. Cairo reported that German relief forces had been dispatched to that area from Danube river bases to the north. According to these reports, Partisan bands hold commanding positions along the Drina and Bosnia river valleys thru which the enemy troops were marching.

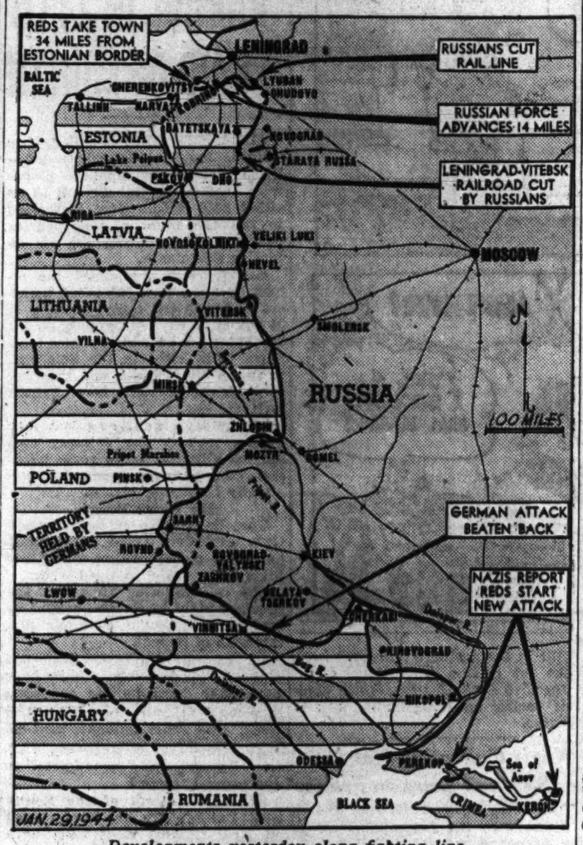

Tuzla, which the Germans captured on Tuesday after days of hand-to-hand street fighting, is 90 miles southwest of Belgrade and 50 miles northeast of Sarajevo, the Bosnian capital.

Fighting along the Croat coastal area between Senj and Novi-Vinodol was continuing, according to the Jugo-Slav bulletin, while Zagreb dispatches to Stockholm reported an allied bombing attack on the Italian port of Fiume, 35 miles north of Senj, which caused "considerable damage."

BORROWS HOSPITAL MONEY; HELP UP. George Dyer, 45 years old, a brewery worker who lives at Diamond Lake in Lake county, borrowed $60 last night in Libertyville to pay his wife's hospital bills, but lost the money a short time later when he was held up in Mundelein by a man and woman, he told police.

POLISH PREMIER TO BRING SOVIET DISPUTE TO U. S.

LONDON, Jan. 28 (AP).—Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk will leave early in February on his delayed trip to Washington, D. C., where he is expected to confer with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull on the Russian-Polish border dispute.

The leader of the Polish government in exile had planned the trip six weeks ago, but delayed it when the dispute was brought into the foreground again as Russian forces crossed Poland's pre-war eastern boundary in pursuit of retreating Germans.

To Go to F. D. R., Churchill.

It was believed here that renewed efforts to improve relations between Russia and Poland will be made at "the highest level," meaning Mr. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, altho Moscow only this week rejected an American offer to mediate the dispute.

Churchill conferred with the Polish leader recently and is expected to send a personal communication on Britain's views to Premier Joseph Stalin thru British Ambassador Archibald John Clark Kerr, who is cutting short his home leave to return to Moscow.

No Surprise in Moscow.

MOSCOW, Jan. 27 [Delayed]—(AP).—Foreign diplomats in Moscow, convinced that the Russians are not going to do business with the Polish government in London, expressed no surprise today that a United States offer to mediate the Polish question has been turned down here.

It seems apparent Polish-Russian relations will remain as they are until sweeping changes are made in the Poles' governmental setup.

Failure of the Russians to accept the United States' offer, however, came as a deep personal disappointment to Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

REPORT RUMANIA SEIZES JAP AID AND 2 SOLDIERS

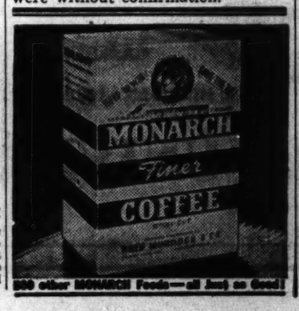

ANKARA, Turkey, Jan. 28 (AP).—The Japanese military attache in Bucharest has been arrested and jailed by Rumanian authorities on a charge of maintaining illicit radio communication with Moscow, according to a report from Bucharest.

The report said the diplomat attempted suicide when his residence was raided but was captured. Two Japanese soldiers who helped operate the secret radio link with Russia, with which Rumania is at war, also were reported arrested.

The Turkish government ordered the expulsion of Yosikozu Oda, Japanese representative of the Domei news agency, on the ground that he had written untruthful articles about Turkey.

U-BOATS SINK 11 ALLIED VESSELS, BERLIN CLAIMS

LONDON, Jan. 28 (AP).—The Berlin radio asserted today that German submarines had sunk seven ships totaling 5,100 tons and four destroyers in the last few days in attacks on allied convoys. The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, asserted that a Murmansk bound convoy of Liberty ships bearing planes and tanks to Russia has been "particularly hard hit." There have been no recent allied reports of attacks on convoys on the Murmansk supply route and the German claims of allied losses were without confirmation.

NAZIS' 'ATLANTIC WALL' POUNDED BY YANK RAIDERS

R.A.F. Night Bombers Head Out Again.

LONDON, Jan. 29 [Saturday]—(AP).—A powerful fleet of British bombers thundered toward Europe again last night, following up an intensive daylight aerial offensive yesterday over northern France.

During the day's operations American Liberators, supported by Thunderbolts and lighter R. A. F. forces, raided the Pas de Calais area, the portion of the Nazis' "Atlantic wall" closest to England, without the loss of a single American plane.

1,680 Ton Blow at Berlin.

The American's daylight attack came after a R. A. F. heavy bomber fleet had driven home a 1,680 ton blow at Berlin Thursday night and rocked Heligoland, the "German Gibraltar" on the North sea with a diversionary assault.

The Americans described their trip as a "milk run," encountering no fighters and little defense fire.

In addition to the American Liberator smash at military targets in the Pas-de-Calais area, R. A. F., dominion, and allied bombers struck other objectives in northern France and shot down four German fighters while losing six. The Nazi planes were bagged by Canadian flyers over the old cathedral city of Chartres, 45 miles southwest of Paris.

London Has 700th Alert.

London had a brief air raid alert last night—its 700th of the war.

Thirty-four British aircraft were missing from the attacks on Berlin, Heligoland, other targets in western Germany and northern France, and from mine laying operations.

ARMY CORPORAL 'GUARD' CAPTAIN TO ESCAPE TRIAL

Charges against John A. Seymour Jr., 29 years old, 6412 North Hoyne avenue, one of 11 alleged leaders of the Military Order of the Guards, arrested by government agents Thursday, will be dismissed, Assistant United States Atty. Richard G. Finn told Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday. Seymour, a technical corporal at the 6th service command, was named as a "captain" in the military order whose leaders were charged with wearing uniforms similar to those of the army and with possessing military insignia. Finn said he will ask permission of the attorney general to dismiss the charge against Seymour because it is believed he can perform more important duties by remaining in the army.

Once more history repeats itself . . . All roads lead to Rome . . . and our brave boys will be there soon bearing the flag of the 48 states of this wonderful country of ours. Like the Crusaders, our boys are fighting for Liberty and Freedom . . . their battle flag is the flag of Liberty and Unity. The light of Liberty and Peace will soon shine over Rome and the rest of the world. . . . Help our boys in this fine American spirit. . . . If you can't serve, you can save . . . A TAVERN, U. S. A., SCOURS SCOWLS FROM GIBRALTAR

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GILBRALTAR, Jan. 25 [Delayed].—High up the twisting streets of this hillside town you will find, if you know your way, a tiny corner of America tucked in among the plaster walls, red tile roofs, and green shutters of the Spanish houses.

They call it "The 40 Steps." It lies at the bottom of long, tumbling steps leading from Morello ramp and when you pass within its doors, you will find yourself back in the corner tavern, only it is an American tavern with international overtones.

It is here that some handsful of American soldiers and sailors who are from the small American garrison inside Britain's huge base return of an evening to forget the homesickness and monotony of life on "The Rock." It is the one place, too, that the lonely visitor can be sure of hearing pure Americanese.

The Cast of Characters.

"The 40 Steps" consists of two rooms, a kitchen and a sunny veranda. It also consists of Lola, the cook, Pepe, John, and John's nephew who live in the other rooms of this small villa and who rent these quarters to a group of enterprising American soldiers.

If you have any rank, you park it upon entering the door usually on an old upright piano beside the bar because the rule of the GI boss, Pvt. Curly Courtwright of Los Angeles, Cal., is "no rank inside."

The night this correspondent was taken down the 40 steps by Sgt. John E. Moore of Jersey City, N. J., we found a party in progress celebrating the birthday of Petty Officer 1st Class John Thurman of Gainesville, Tex.

A feast a La Lola.

A long table in the other room which was reflected in a stately glass wall mirror was heaped with platters of delicacies from the kitchen where Lola presides supreme.

Lola is handsome, but formidable and well protected from wandering wolves by her stout right arm and equally well respected for her culinary art.

From another piano in this room came the deep beats of hot boogie being pounded out by Thurman who for many months preceding the Italian invasion was the only American sailor in uniform on the European mainland. Against the bar lounged Lt. Charles C. Lerg of Detroit, Mich., who helps run the local Mediterranean air transport service.

Thus in typical American fashion these soldiers and sailors had made their own fun to avoid the Gibraltar monotony which makes those so afflicted "rock happy."

There is no service club here. The local movies which present few late pictures must be booked days in advance so crowded are they by British from the army garrison and the never ending stream of sailors from all countries who pour thru the streets filling Gibraltar's many bars.

"The 40 Steps" was first discovered more than nine months ago by Corp. Jim Pace who since has moved on to another station. He met Big John in Barclay's bank where John clerks, visited the hillside villa and fell in love with its sweeping view of the harbor.

Boxing Gloves—for Sport.

On a warm clear afternoon with the hot sun beating against the cool air you will find some of these soldiers on their day off lounging on the stone veranda or sipping their drinks in the adjacent stone patio. If the boys are in the mood, some of them will even don Curly's boxing gloves and mix it with Curly altho they know he was once a very sharp boxer back home.

And if you had a pair of powerful field glasses you might train them across the bay on the Spanish border city of Algeciras which the soldiers are occasionally allowed to visit in civilian clothes. If your glasses were strong enough, you might pick out a figure atop the town's Christin's hotel. The figure would be that of the inevitable German clad in civilian clothes watching thru his glasses and keeping track of the movement of ships in the harbor or of planes on "The Rock's" tiny airdrome.

But ordinarily here on the veranda of "The 40 Steps" the fierce demands of the war seem far away.

Leon Schaus (left) with Fred A. Gilson, chancellor of the Luxemburg consulate in Chicago, yesterday.

The people of Luxemburg are thoroly aroused against the Nazis, have organized an underground movement, and are eagerly waiting to welcome the allies as deliverers, Leon Schaus, secretary general of the Luxemburg government, said in Chicago yesterday.

He arrived here from Montreal and will remain until tomorrow to attend a card party and dance which the 33d Division War Veterans' association will sponsor in the Morrison hotel tonight for Luxemburg relief.

"Many Luxemburgers have been put in prisons and concentration camps," he said, "and many families have been deported to Germany. Strike leaders in Luxemburg factories have been executed by the Nazis."

Schaus estimated that 99 per cent of the people are hostile to Germany and friendly to the allies.

U. S. BAN ON OIL IS NOT POLITICAL THRUST—MADRID

MADRID, Spain, Jan. 28 (AP).—Authorized Spanish sources today said the suspension by the United States of oil shipments from the Caribbean area to Spain during the month of February had "no political significance." They said it was concerned rather with "negotiations of a purely commercial character." News of the embargo was not published in Spain.

Spanish sources noted that the question of oil and gasoline supplies for Spain had been the subject of frequent and complex negotiations.

U. S. Reveals Stand.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—The state department announced tonight that it is reconsidering general relations between Spain and the United States "in the light of trends in Spanish policy."

Pending that reconsideration, the department said, loadings of Spanish bankers with petroleum products for Spain have been suspended.

"The Spanish government has shown a certain reluctance to satisfy requests deemed both reasonable and important by the state department, and concerning which representations have been continuously addressed to the Spanish government for some time past," the announcement said.

Fails to Satisfy Allies.

It then listed these points on which Spain has failed to satisfy the allies:

1. Certain Italian warships and merchant vessels continue interned in Spanish ports.

2. Spain continues to permit the export to Germany of certain vital war materials such as wolfram [tungsten ore used in making armor piercing steel].

3. Axis agents are active both in continental Spain and in Spanish African territory as well as in Tangier.

4. Some portion of the blue [Spanish] division appears still involved in the war against Russia.

5. Reports have been received indicating the conclusion of a financial arrangement between the Spanish government and Germany designed to make available to Germany substantial peseta credits. Germany expects to apply the credits to augmenting espionage and sabotage in Spanish territory and to intensify opposition to the allies in the Iberian peninsula.

CHINESE THROW JAPS BACK IN NORTH BURMA

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 28 (AP).—American-trained Chinese troops have driven the Japanese from an area northeast of Taro in the Dalu river valley of northern Burma, the southeast Asia command announced today. Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy, a war bulletin said, and the Chinese captured war equipment from the fleeing Japs. Fighting still is raging eight miles northeast of Taro.

Farther south, in the Tiddim area of the northern Chin hills, allied troops on Wednesday surprised Japanese infantry digging new positions and killed two officers and several soldiers without loss. Japanese attacks on allied positions four miles southwest of Fort White in the Letha mountains were repulsed.

Allied troops made progress west of the Mayu region and in the north Razabil sector. Allied dive bombers yesterday blasted a Japanese camp at Mawlaik in the Chindwin valley.

Nazis Take Over French Stations for Broadcasts

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 28.—The German authority is taking possession of French broadcasting stations, it was learned here today. It has "leased" the Toulouse station for a 24 hour schedule and the Marseilles and Limoges stations for all night programs. These stations are stressing French participation in the "new Europe" as well as in "the fight against bolshevism."

BRAZIL HAILS 2D YEAR OF WAR IN A MARTIAL MOOD

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 28 (AP).—Brazil celebrated the second anniversary of her break with the axis today with hundreds of thousands of men under arms, more being called up each day, and an expeditionary force clad in greenish khaki almost ready for the jump to Europe.

The day was marked by requiem masses, mass meetings, and oratory.

Today Brazil's military men are moving toward fulfilment of President Getulio Vargas' promise that "our participation in the fight is going to be made directly in the theater of war," with a modern army.

The speeding tempo of preparations for an expeditionary force may be seen at Engenho-da Aldei near Recife, where a unit described by War Minister Gen. Eurico Gaspar Dutra as the 3d division of expeditionary force is undergoing conditioning.

Groups from the agricultural south have come to Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro and passed north to Recife. The class of 1922 has been in the process of being called up by local draft boards since December. Its members are donning Brazil's khaki and many are requesting foreign service. Indications are that at least three divisions will go in the first wave.

Today's celebrations find a Brazil whose president and commanding general have promised that this will be a year for revenge. Dutra early this month gave the people their 1944 motto:

"Let's make war."

Japs Using New Plane in South Pacific, the Tojo

GUADALCANAL, Solomon Islands, Jan. 28 (AP).—A description of the Japanese fighter plane known as the Tojo was issued today. Flyers say it looks like the army's P-47 Thunderbolt; that it's lighter than the P-47, the navy Corsair or Hellcat, and possibly less powerful but very maneuverable. It has a radial air cooled engine. The first Tojo shot down in this sector was bagged over Rabaul Jan. 24.

AMID PASTORAL SCENES OF CALM BATTLE RAGES ON

Tells of War Thru Farm Lands of Italy.

BY REYNOLDS PACKARD.

[Representing the Combined U. S. Press.]
[Distributed by the Associated Press.]

WITH THE 5TH ARMY SOUTH OF ROME, Jan. 27 [Delayed].—If a little boy playing with toy ducks, cows, chickens, and horses suddenly put some of his soldiers, artillery and tanks in the midst of them, then he would have an idea of what a strange battlefield this beachhead presents.

Today I watched one of the most important battles and was amazed to see how war with all its shelling, air bombing, machine gunning, sniping, and accompanying noise hardly affected the pastoral scene of calm.

The only signs of life showing an awareness of danger were the soldiers in their trenches manning guns, and the birds which darted about.

Cows Chew Their Cuds.

But cows continued to chew their cuds calmly while shells whippoorwilled over them in No Man's land. Hogs and pigs wallowed in the mud of their pens without the slightest fear. Roosters crowed. Even horses, which in the first few days of fighting on this beachhead ran wildly around at the sound of shells and airplanes, have calmed down.

At an advanced observation post commanded by Capt. William Corwin of Fargo, N. D., I could see our soldiers attacking enemy machine gun nests in barns and farmhouses. Haystacks were being used as cover by German snipers and high in one windmill, until knocked out, was a German observation post.

HORSESHOE NAILS SCARCE

BY DON WHITEHEAD.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY.—(AP).—Capt. Tommy Rose of Texarkana, Tex., doesn't see anything funny in the old jingle about a battle being lost all for want of a horseshoe nail. He needs horseshoe nails and finds them about as plentiful as diamonds.

"Our division," he explained, "has a lot of mules and horses for carrying supplies to the doughboys fighting up in the mountains. They often lose shoes on rough trails and, as any of us Texans know, they go lame if you don't get another shoe back on the hoof.

"Well, it's my job to find nails. So I began looking. We had $50,000 available for purchasing supplies and that sort of dough will buy several tons of horseshoe nails.

"But could I find any nails?"

Rose took another sip of cognac and shook his head.

Finds a Farmer with 12.

"I came back with 90 nails. I bought them by twos, threes, and fours and even found one farmer who had 12. Brother, horseshoe nails in this country are as rare as hen's teeth in Texas.

"And believe me, I know just how a battle could be lost for want of a horseshoe nail. The only difference is we did not lose the battle."

The job of furnishing one 5th army division with supplies and keeping transport moving is the responsibility of Lt. Col. Carl A. Phinney of Dallas, Tex. There are such incidentals also as motor maintenance, evacuation of the wounded, water supply, traffic control, and forage for animals as well as food for the men.

On one occasion it was found that troops fighting on the cold mountain heights were suffering because they did not have dry socks. A hurry call went out and 10,000 pairs of socks were flown from North Africa.

Each day a dozen 2½ ton trucks roll into the division carrying rations only. A division also consumes about 997,000 gallons of water a week and must be furnished, along with five tons of medical supplies, three truckloads a day of replacements for lost personal equipment.

TELLS HOSPITAL LIFE

BY WILLIAM STONEMAN.

[Chicago Daily News correspondent representing the combined U. S. press.]
[Distributed by the Associated Press.]

WITH THE 5TH ARMY BELOW ROME, Jan. 25.—Battle sounds are nerve shattering in any case on one of these bridgeheads, and they are multiplied by the gloom of blacked-out hospital tents.

I have just spent a night inside one of those tents. I had lost my voice, due to a cold contracted during the landing, and made the mistake of going to an evacuation hospital for medicine. They made me stay there all night. The bitter cold and the Germans made it one of the worst nights I can remember.

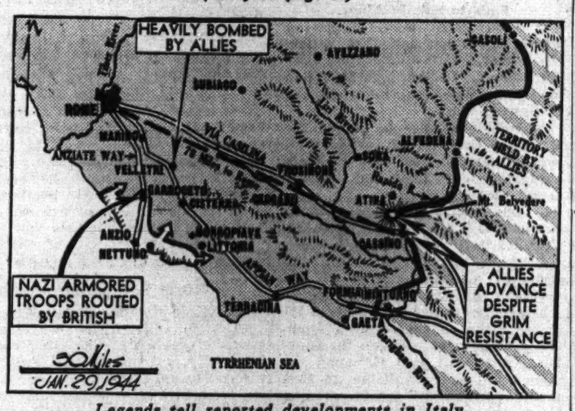

In the middle of the night, bombers came after our shipping and the night vibrated with the mingled sound of ack-ack and bombs. Soon afterward, all became quiet and we fell asleep, or almost, because it was as cold as sin and we had only three thin blankets.

Then at 5:30 a. m., there was another avalanche of sound as another wave of Germans came over. Everybody in our tent was wide awake and ordinary ailments were forgotten in the presence of the greater danger. Bombs shook our cots.

BULLET VICTIM SAYS ROBBER SHOT HIM, BUT COPS ARE DOUBTFUL

Ralph Snyder, 18 years old, 3303 Walnut street, told a story that he was shot by a robber last night after he was found wounded near Madison street and Francisco avenue. Police found a pair of brass knuckles and a screw driver in his pockets and Snyder admitted he had served a term in the Illinois State Training School for Boys near St. Charles for theft of an automobile. The police also found a bullet hole in Snyder's trousers pocket, which led them to believe he might have shot himself accidentally, and that the holdup story was untrue. He was taken to the Bridewell hospital.

"Beautiful Betsy," the Liberator bomber pictured on the back page, in a reproduction of a color painting by Gary Sheahan, Chicago Tribune artist-correspondent in the southwest Pacific, has a crew composed in part of men from Chicagoland, according to a communication from Sheahan yesterday. He wrote that the crew included Capt. Joseph P. Roth, pilot, Lincoln, Neb.; Flying Officer Elliott R. Zeiss, co-pilot, Downers Grove; Lt. Frank F. Gorham, bombardier, Homan, Me., and Lt. Gunner E. Peterson, navigator, Lake Geneva, Wis.

ILLINOIS YANK FIRST ASHORE SOUTH OF ROME

Arrives Two Minutes Before 'V' Hour.

WITH THE 5TH ARMY SOUTH OF ROME, Jan. 26 [Delayed]—(AP).—Five days of painstaking research have established that Pvt. Walter P. Krzysztofiak of Summit, Ill., was the first American ashore on the Anzio beaches south or Rome.

There were many claimants to the honor. Each unit that landed in the initial assault had one doughboy who believed that his GI shoes left the first imprint in the sands. But Krzysztofiak's claim is based on the indubitable fact that his landing boat scraped bottom two minutes ahead of "V hour"—2 a. m. Saturday morning.

Krzysztofiak was the bodyguard for Capt. Frederick Saam of Calumet, Mich. His particular job was to cut the Germans' barbed wire on the beach near Anzio so that Saam's men could swarm into town. It was a very important job for the 30 year old draftsman, who has a wife and a 2 year old son.

Enter First Building.

He was standing near the prow with Capt. Saam when the ramp went down. He stepped into a foot of water. "Cheerio and good luck," whispered a British sailor. Saam was at his heels.

Krzysztofiak was first at the barricade. While Krzysztofiak cut the barbed wire, Saam slipped underneath, climbed a wall, and emerged on a deserted street. He entered the nearest building, a three story apartment house, and ran to the rooftop.

His bodyguard followed, poking his tommygun into every room, then joining Saam on the roof. As soon as they lighted a signal flare the Germans began sniping from nearby buildings. In 30 minutes of fighting the town was cleared of Germans.

Third Sea Attack.

This was Krzysztofiak's third amphibious operation. Twice he had been cheated out of realizing his ambition to be first ashore. At Gela, during the Sicilian invasion, his landing craft was hit by a 20 millimeter shell. Blown into the sea, he swam for 30 minutes until rescued. At Majori on Sorrentine peninsula, west of Salerno, last September he came in on the first boat but four other doughboys beat nim to the beaches.

ARREST BARES NEW YORKER'S POSE AS SAILOR

Arrested by the shore patrol last night at Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue, Eugene Samuel Boxer, 24 years old, of New York, will be turned over to the federal bureau of investigation today on a charge of wearing a sailor's uniform illegally.

Eugene S. Boxer.

Boxer admitted to Lt. Comdr. Carl Stockholm, chief of the shore patrol, that he bought a naval identification card for $25 and the uniform he was wearing, complete with the insignia of a gunner's mate 3d class and service ribbons, for $30.

Then he started on a tour which took him to Boston and Detroit and brought him to Chicago Thursday night.

He was arrested by Chief Petty Officer Lee Sweitzer of the shore patrol.

"He was wearing glasses," explained Sweltzer.

"Is that bad?"

"When you've got the eyes to qualify as a gunner's mate 3d class you don't need glasses," Sweitzer explained patiently.

GLEN ELLYN COP KILLS HIS MAN IN GUN BATTLE

An unidentified man about 27 years old was shot and killed last night in a gun battle with a policeman in Glen Ellyn, Du Page county.

The shooting occurred in an alley in the rear of 526 Duane street, which is the office of the F. E. Wheaton Coal company. Patrolman Clark Scurrah was sent there in response to a report that a mysterious truck was parked in the alley.

Scurrah heard voices in the alley and called to the speakers to come out. Several shots were fired and Scurrah was wounded in the left forearm. He entered the alley shooting and heard some one running away. Near the truck he found the dead man, shot thru the heart.

Police said they believed the gun battle nipped a plot to rob the Malloy Liquor store at 524 Duane street.

17 CONGRESSMEN PRESS FIGHT TO ENTER SERVICES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—A group of younger members of congress intend to ask President Roosevelt personally next week to let them enter the army or navy and at the same time retain their legislative seats.

Seventeen members of the house attended an unofficial meeting called today by Rep. Boren [D., Okla.] and decided to write the President a letter which they will present as a group, possibly Monday, and then "talk things over" with him.

The President on Jan. 10 instructed the army and navy that "members of congress may not serve in the active components of the armed services."

Some of those meeting today said the President's instructions are an invasion of the prerogatives of congress.

GUADALCANAL VETERANS MOVE TO BOUGAINVILLE

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., Solomons Islands, Jan. 29 (AP). — The Americal division, comprising veterans of Guadalcanal and the 1st United States army troops to take the offensive against the axis in any war theater, have replaced the 3d marine division on Bougainville Island, Lt. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, commander of army forces in the South Pacific disclosed today.

The Americal, only army division with a name instead of a number, was named in a contest among its members.

The 14th army corps previously took over all operations on Bougainville in the northern Solomons from the 1st marine amphibious corps. The 37th army division, which landed earlier on Bougainville still is active.

Nazis Collecting Italy's Share of Levy on France

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 28.—In addition to the 500 million francs a day which the Germans are levying on France for costs of occupation, they are now receiving the one billion francs monthly which was Italy's share, it was said on reliable authority today. This demand was based on the fact that since the Italians withdrew they have been replaced by German troops. [The franc is valued at about 2 cents.]

BOMBERS BLAST RABAUL IN 24TH RAID OF MONTH

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, Jan. 29 [Saturday]—(AP).—Twenty-two more Japanese planes were shot down over Rabaul in an allied raid Wednesday, increasing to 390 the number destroyed or damaged there during the air offensive this month.

Headquarters announced the attack by more than 100 allied bombers and fighters today, making it 24 out of 26 days of January so far accounted for on which planes have flown from bases in the Solomons to smash air facilities and shipping at that northeastern New Britain fortress.

Wednesday's raiders lost four planes, making the January cost for the allies 60, altho some pilots and crews were rescued subsequently by search planes.

Hit Cargo Vessel.

Torpedo and dive bombers dropped their explosives into anti-aircraft positions, plane parking areas, and hit a cargo vessel in the harbor.

The raid followed an attack the previous night by South Pacific Liberators on Lakunai airdrome and the town of Rabaul.

[A Japanese war report yesterday claimed 144 American planes have been shot down by the defenders of Rabaul in four raids there this week. The Tokio announcement admitted the loss of 12 Japanese planes, two steamers, and "some losses" to Jap ground troops.]

Other Liberators of the Southwest Pacific's 5th air force, based on New Guinea, went back with Lightnings across the Bismarck sea to the Admiralty Islands for the fourth straight day Thursday and dropped 123 tons of bombs on those staging bases along the sea supply route from Truk to New Guinea.

Aussie Forces Gain.

On northeastern New Guinea Australian forces narrowed to less than 30 miles a coastal gap in which Japanese elements are trapped. The Aussies, moving west along the Huon peninsula, reached Klari, 11 miles past Sio and 29 miles from the last reported position of the American forces.

Madang, Japanese coastal base which is the next big allied objective in New Guinea, continued to be pounded by the air arm Mitchells on Thursday raided the air base at Alexishafen, just north of Madang.

To the northwest, between Madang and Newak, allied planes exploded supply dumps and damaged a 1,000 ton freighter at Hansa bay.

At Timor, northwest of Australia, Liberator bombers sank a 1,000 ton cargo ship and bombed the town.

Raid Nauru and 3 Marshall Isles.

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii, Jan. 28 (AP).—Seventh air force bombers resumed the air offensive in the mid-Pacific yesterday by blasting Nauru Island, west of the allied held Gilberts, and Wotje, Mili, and Maleolap atolls in the Marshall Islands.

The raid on phosphate producing Nauru was the first since Dec. 28. No American losses were reported there, but one American dive-bomber was shot down by ground fire at Mili and the total plane losses were described as light.

WOUNDED YANK ASSAILS APATHY OF HOME FRONT

Sgt. Robert Tambeaux, 18 years old, who quit classes at Kelvin Park High school, became a paratrooper and was wounded in Italy, has written his father, Michael, of 1811 North Lawndale avenue, urging that Americans be made more conscious of the war and the suffering and death it entails.

Pvt. Tambeaux.

"Don't they realize that every day and every minute Americans all over the world are sacrificing lives, limbs, eyes, and many other things?" he asked. "I've seen it and I've had it happen to me. We don't care what they do back home so long as they keep American ideals alive and back the boys over here.

"They can't do that by striking and some of the things they do. . . . But from the looks of things, our lives, our limbs, our future mean nothing to the business men, to the American public, to whom, in a sense, there is no war going on."

CHUTIST GORED WHEN INTRUSION VEXES ELEPHANT

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 28 (AP).—Stanley W. Akers, 21 years old, of Phoenix, Ariz., a transport flyer, bailed out, landed in an Indian jungle, was gored by a bull elephant, and kicked back into the bushes. But he made his way to a settlement.

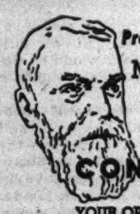

The report said Akers bailed out Jan. 17 when his plane engines failed while on a flight to China. Others landed in open spaces, but Akers fell in a bamboo thicket.

He began hacking a path; came out on a trail. Yards away was an elephant. The elephant charged, gored him in the rear of his thigh.

Akers was thrown but started running. The elephant kicked him with a forefoot and threw him deep into the jungle. The airman waited until the elephant left before setting out for the settlement. He is recovering.

SEDITION TRIAL OF 30 'POLITICS,' U.S. COURT TOLD

More Time Refused for Answer.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 [Special].—Charges that indictment of 30 persons for sedition here earlier this month was political action—"and if it isn't, why don't you let the trial go 'till after the next election?"—were made today before Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher, sitting in District court.

Henry Klein of New Yory City, counsel for E. N. Sanctuary, also of New York and a defendant, voiced the charges during arguments in which he opposed Feb. 3 as a final date for filing motions in connection with the indictments, and Feb. 7 as the hearing date for these arguments.

"Your observations are not suitable for this court and I am not going to consider them," was Justice Eicher's reply as he set the dates anyway.

Two Ask More Time.

Efforts to obtain additional time for filing motions were made by E. Hilton Jackson, attorney for Gerald B. Winrod, Wichita, Kas., publisher of the Defender, who said the indictment was "too complicated," and J. Edward Burroughs Jr., attorney for E. J. Garner, also of Wichita, editor of Publicity, who said that they were couched in different language from that of two previous sedition indictments, and may contain "hidden defects."

Burroughs insisted the government "has had since last April to prepare this indictment and yet expects us to file answers in two weeks."

Additional time was sought by Ira Koehne, attorney for H. V. Broenstrupp of Washington and New York, and for William Dudley Pelley, also named in the indictment. Koehne is not a member of the district bar and had failed to get local council to assist him, as required.

Another Asks Delay.

Another delay was asked by Frank H. Myers, appointed by the court as attorney for Charles B. Hudson, editor and publisher of America in Danger, and W. R. Lyman Jr. of Detroit, an officer of the National Workers' league, who said his civil practice was making it difficult to devote time to the case.

Efforts to obtain more time for answers and arguments were vigorously opposed by O. John Rogge, special assistant to the attorney general, who is directing the inquiry and who previously told the press he expected to make every effort to bring the 30 to immediate trial.

The government's first indictment under the sedition law enacted June, 1940, was returned in July of 1942.

REPORT BULGARS EMPTY 4 CITIES; FEAR AIR RAIDS

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—A Hungarian wireless dispatch, reported by United States government monitors, said today that the Bulgarian government had ordered four cities evacuated because of "war raid dangers."

The cities named were Plovdiv, provincial capital of 100,000 population on the Maritza river; Burgas, a port on the Black sea; Ruse [Ruschuk] on the Danube river 41 miles from Bucharest, and Pleven, a trading center on the railway between Sofia and Bucharest. Sofia, the capital, previously has been reported largely evacuated as the result of heavy allied air attacks.

The Berlin radio said that Gov. Erdjikoj had been dismissed as the head of the Sofia government and that Dimcho Sokoloj, former secretary-general of the ministry of commerce, had been named governor.

PLANE CRASHES IN SCHOOL YARD; 2 FLYERS KILLED

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 28 (AP).—Six hundred children at play in a Phoenix school yard escaped serious injury today after a medium bomber faltered in an approach to a near-by landing field, clipped off a power line, and crashed into the yard. Two of the plane's three occupants were killed.

Witnesses said the plane came in with one of its two engines silent and went into a spin when the pilot attempted to gain altitude. One wing sheared off a corner of the frame school building and sent a shower of splinters in the direction of the children.

Two youngsters suffered minor scratches from the flying fragments.

Report Morse to Quit WLB for Senate Race

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—Wayne Morse was reported tonight to have resigned from the war labor board in order to seek election as senator from Oregon. Friends said they understand his resignation already has gone to the White House. Morse, 43 years old, is serving on the WLB during a leave of absence as dean of the University of Oregon law school. He is a Republican.

SUMNER 'DRAFT' MOVE GROWS IN HOME DISTRICT

Congresswoman Urged to 'Stay In and Pitch.'

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Demands that Rep. Jessie Sumner drop her plan to retire from congress mounted yesterday in the 18th district. The folks in Kankakee, Vermilion, Iroquois, Edgar, Clark, and Cumberland counties say she cannot be spared from the fight to guard American interests.

Mrs. Helen Griffin of Grant Park in Kankakee county, Republican women's chairman, said that Miss Sumner's record of Americanism and alertness is so outstanding that it cannot be duplicated. She called upon G. O. P. chairwomen of the six counties to act now in the draft movement.

Ability "Credit to Sex."

"Not only is Rep. Sumner doing a wonderful job of expressing the sentiment of her constituents, but her ability is a credit to her sex," Mrs. Griffin said.

State Rep. Victor McBroom of Kankakee, county G. O. P. chairman, a leader in American Legion work, said that mayors and county officials are joining in the appeals to Miss Sumner to "stay in there and pitch." He visited her at her Milford home recently and wrote to her yesterday to say she must not quit.

"It will leave the district in an awful fix if she doesn't run," said Donald J. McFerron, Vermilion county chairman, farm owner. "Something must be done to get her to run."

He visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Sumner of Milford, the other night to ask that they intercede. They are not eager to keep her in Washington because it is "hard on her nerves," McFerron said.

A delegation called upon Miss Sumner's brother, Sheldon, Watseka banker, to get his help. He said he believed she would respond to the popular will.

Two Not Eager to Run.

County Judge Stephen Malo of Iroquois county has been urged to run if Miss Sumner won't, but he said this prospect does not interest him.

"Nearly everybody here thinks Jessie ought to run," Judge Malo said. "We all have to make sacrifices, and the public interest demands that she subordinate her personal wishes in the matter. Iroquois county is proud of her."

Robert Devine of Watseka, a paving contractor for 22 years and past commander of his American Legion post, also has been asked to run.

"Jessie should run," he said. 'Last night I sent her a telegram asking her to change her mind. She has six years of valuable experience. If I went down there I would be a freshman."

W. R. Stanfield, Clark county Republican chairman, declared that Miss Sumner's most unusual qualification is that she isn't afraid of anybody.

"She's a scrapper, and that's what we need," he said. "We've got enough congressmen who sit there and don't say or do anything worth while."

Will J. Vieregge, Iroquois county chairman, also has been active in the drive to get her to stand for reëlection.

BROWN RETURNS TO AIR MONDAY IN W-G-N SERIES

Known for His Work in Malaya.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Cecil Brown, radio war correspondent, who won international recognition for his eyewitness account of the sinking of the British battleship Repulse off Malaya, and his consistent struggle for freedom of expression, will return to the air—this time over W-G-N and Mutual. He will be heard Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 7 p. m., starting Jan. 31.

Brown resigned at CBS last fall because of differences over his comments on the news. He was tossed out of Rome in 1941 by Mussolini because he refused to submit to the Fascists' blue pencil. Censorship tangles with the British in Singapore caused the British to ban Brown from the air. He told the story of his fight for freedom of expression in "Suez to Singapore." He has won numerous citations for his enterprise.

Al Hattis, the "Kid Commentator" of WJJD, will present a special program at 11:30 a. m. today in behalf of the army air forces cadet reserve program. Lt. Steven Grosek of the air forces will be on hand to swear in a 17 year old Chicago high school youth. The whole program will be given over to informing high school boys about the cadet program for 17 year olds.

Robert Cromie, Chicago Tribune war correspondent, will be a guest on Bob Becker's Pet Parade over W-G-N at 12:15 p. m. today. Cromie will talk about the role of dogs in war as he has observed it in the Southwest Pacific. He will have a story to tell about Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney's pilot's dog, Churchill. This bulldog is not named for the British prime minister. Kenney's middle name is Churchill.

After he had appeared on the Treasury Star Parade—his sole radio chore while in the United States—Noel Coward dished out a lot of praise for the program's musical director, David Broekman.

"I think David is the best radio conductor you have over here," Coward remarked at a party after the broadcast. "Don't you agree?"

The gentlemen in the small circle were not quite sure. Two of them were well known radio conductors, but neither bore the name of Broekman.

GOV. SCHRICKER NAMES JACKSON AS U.S. SENATOR

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 28 (AP).—Samuel D. Jackson, Fort Wayne lawyer and former Indiana attorney general, tonight was appointed United States senator by Gov. Henry F. Schricker to fill most of the unexpired term of the late Sen. Van Nuys.

The governor made the announcement of Jackson's appointment at a special press conference called soon after Van Nuy's funeral and burial services were held here and at Anderson.

Jackson, a Democrat like Van Nuys, will serve at least until the November general election. At conventions this summer, both parties must fill two senate nominations—one for the interim between the election and the end of the Van Nuys term in January and another for a full six year term.

Lt. Heimberger commanded the second wave of barges that landed on Tarawa.

The broadcast portion of the entertainment, to be aired over W-G-N, WGNB and the Mutual network from 8 to 9 p. m., will star Marion Claire as Marietta, and Morton Bowe as Capt. Richard Warrington. Ruth Slater is to sing the role of Adah, and John MacDonald that of Silas.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, will speak during the broadcast.

The 4,000 seats in Medinah temple are expected to be fully occupied by purchasers of more than a half million dollars' worth of war bonds since the inception of the fourth war loan drive on Jan. 18. Tickets were given only to bond purchasers.

MILITARY NEED OF LOCOMOTIVES CUT BY A FIFTH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—Military needs for steam locomotives in 1944 have been slashed by more than 20 per cent as the result of shifting strategy, the war production board announced today.

The WPB transportation equipment division said that 741 large engines, weighing more than 80 tons each, and 162 weighing from 50 to 80 tons were dropped from the original schedule, which called for production this year of more than 3,200 locomotives. Revised orders require 2,000 large and 300 small steam locomotives.

Besides the military orders, the steam locomotive industry is scheduled to deliver 275 steam locomotives in the first nine months this year for use in this country, WPB said.

G.O.P. MAJORITY IN ILLINOIS IS SET AT 450,000 VOTES

Leaders Greeted by Capacity Crowds.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Greenville, Ill., Jan. 28.—After visiting 14 downstate counties, Gov. Dwight H. Green and Richard J. Lyons, candidate for United States senator, today predicted a 450,000 vote majority for the Republican ticket in Illinois in November.

Leading candidates of the Republican ticket, who have traveled 550 miles since Monday, continued to draw capacity crowds in Vandalia, Carlyle, Greenville, Hillsboro, and Carlinville. Each county furnished an overflow meeting as the Republicans moved thru the corn, oil, and soybean belt of Illinois.

Blames Bungling for Debt.

Lashing out at what he termed the "pre-war spending spree" Lt. Gov. Hugh W. Cross, candidate for reëlection, told his listeners that America would have a national debt of more than 300 billion dollars at the end of the war.

"That debt represents a mortgage of $10,000 upon every home in this country—large or small, rich or poor—and a major portion of that debt was created not by legitimate war time or peace time expenditures, but by wasteful, extravagant, impractical, administrative bungling," said Cross.

Lyons termed the national administration "incompetent, planless, and wantonly extravagant." He said that he would act in accordance with the principles of the Republican party's Mackinac charter regarding foreign policy, and would concentrate his efforts on forwarding legislation favorable to war veterans.

Benson Asks Vets' Aid.

State Sen. Arnold P. Benson, candidate for secretary of state, told his hearers that he had backed fully the attempt to get favorable laws by which service men could vote in the primaries. He charged that Chicago's city hall Democrats blocked the legislation so that soldiers will have difficulty voting by absentee ballot in the primary, altho they will have full opportunity to vote in the November election.

"Every state agency must be mobilized to assist in a veterans' rehabilitation program," Benson said, "and under my direction the secretary of state's office will leave no stone unturned to bring the war veterans a comprehensive program of relief and aid."

SENATE BOOSTS RECRUITING FUND FOR FARM LABOR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—Told that farmers face an increasingly critical man power shortage this year, the senate speedily approved today a 35 million dollar appropriation to expand the government's program of farm labor recruiting both at home and abroad.

The appropriation to the war food administration would make possible the importation of about 120,000 foreign agricultural workers this year as compared with 70,000 brought into the United States last year from Mexico, Jamaica, and the Bahama Islands.

The bill was approved by a voice vote and returned to the house for action on amendments raising the amount of the fund from the 27 million dollars previously authorized by the house, and leaving control of the program divided between the WFA and the extension services of the land grant colleges.

AGREE TO HOLD SECURITY TAXES AT 1 PCT. LEVEL

Conferees Throw Out 'Windfall' Levy.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—House conferees on the new tax bill today accepted a senate amendment freezing the social security tax at the current level of 1 per cent each on employers and employes thruout 1944.

The conferees also voted today to repeal a "windfall" provision of the pay-as-you-go tax law which had been intended to recapture some of the sudden income increases attributed to the war.

Had Choice of "Base."

This provision, hotly debated at the time pay-as-you-go was enacted, laid a special tax on the excess over a "normal" year's income, plus $20,000, and in picking normal years the taxpayer had his choice of 1938, 1939, or 1940. Senators on the joint committee contended the provision caused many inequities in addition to complicating tax returns.

A senate amendment lifting the federal excise tax on playing cards sent abroad for use of the troops was accepted, but the conferees struck out another section which would have permitted taxpayers to spread in quarterly payments the portions of their 1942 income taxes still due this year and next.

All but a few of the strictly revenue sections of the bill have been approved. In a fast day's work yesterday, the conferees checked their approval of a long list of excise tax increases and some rises in postal rates. However, counter to house action, they agreed not to double third class postal rates, but to leave them as they are.

Let Light Paper in Free.

Because of the war, the conferees voted today to allow duty free importation of lighter weight newsprint than at present passes thru the customs without tariff.

The amendment finally agreed upon points out that newspaper publishers are limited by governmental order as to the amount of paper they may use. The definition of standard newsprint was revised to include paper weighing 30 pounds per ream of 500 sheets, 24x36 inches, with a 5 per cent manufacturing tolerance permitted, and also to include rolls of paper 15 inches or larger in width.

ROCKFORD OPENS 1ST DOWNSTATE COURTNEY BOOM

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 28 (AP).—Winnebago county's Democratic central committeemen today became the first downstate organization to call upon State's Atty. Thomas J. Courtney of Chicago to seek the nomination for governor in the April primary.

B. J. Knight, county chairman, and Leonard Condon, state committeeman, said Courtney would be the party's strongest possible candidate downstate.

The committee also voted confidence in President Roosevelt, and indicated it would work for the nomination of a woman candidate for 12th district representative in congress to oppose Noah M. Mason, Republican incumbent, who apparently will have no primary opposition.

HOW TWO PLANS FOR ARMY VOTING WOULD OPERATE

10 Million Ballots Hinge on Choice.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—With the votes of more than 10 million service men and women at stake in this year's war time elections, congress is currently in a bitter controversy over what type of machinery should be provided for the balloting.

The dispute, into which President Roosevelt injected himself Wednesday in a message to congress, arises from two totally different approaches to the problem, each outlined in conflicting bills now before congress.

One plan, which is opposed by the President but has strong backing in congress, is known as the "state plan." It would preserve in the various states their constitutional right to print ballots for their absentee residents now in uniform and to administer the voting machinery.

Would Change State Laws.

Under this procedure, congress would also direct the state, where necessary, to change absentee voting laws so all service men applying for ballots would have time to receive, mark, and return them before election day.

It would further require the army and navy to expedite, thru air mail priorities, transmission of service men's post card applications for ballots to state officials, and the sending of ballots to and from service personnel. Such ballots would carry the names of all officials to be elected, from "President to constable," the same as ballots voted at home.

The administration or "federal" plan would set up a new and untried procedure which its opponents charge is illegal. This program assumes that many states will not prepare ballots in time for absentee voting by service men and accepts the expressed views of the army and navy that they cannot effectively send out and return millions of ballots from various states.

Seeks Uniform Ballots.

The administration or "federal plan" therefore directs that uniform federal ballots be printed and distributed by the army and navy to all service men and women, whether or not they ask for them. The ballots would be light in weight and would be shipped to war theaters in bulk in advance of the November elections.

It is on the question of state vs. federal ballots that most of the current controversy, involving the basic question of constitutionality, revolves.

Unlike regular state ballots, the proposed federal ballots would not enable servicemen to vote for all elective offices, nor would they carry any names of candidates.

Five Blank Spaces.

They would contain five blank spaces, covering federal offices only—President and Vice President [combined], senator, one congressman in the voter's district, and two congressmen at large [one in many states]. Thus, service men could not vote for any state, local, or judicial candidates on this ballot.

In each blank the voter could write in either the name of the candidate of his choice, or simply the name of the political party. The option of writing in the party is provided because service men in many instances may not know the names of the candidates, particularly of those running for senator and congressman in their states, and because the voter might not know in what congressional district he lives.

The federal plan, moreover, makes no provision for distribution in military theaters of maps showing congressional districts for the guidance of voters.

Distribution Provided.

The army and navy would be directed, under the program, to distribute to all military units lists of Presidential, senatorial, and congressional candidates and their parties to the end that service voters would know who the nominees are.

This would be done, however, only if "compatible with military operations"—thus raising the question of whether voters on some war fronts will know who candidates are. In the minds of some members of congress, there is doubt whether a vote by party, where the voter does not know whom he is voting for, would be legal.

The broader legal question raised by the federal proposal, however, is whether the federal government has the power, under the Constitution, to print and distribute ballots, and designate the time and place that service men shall vote.

Illegal, Foes Say.

The Constitution, advocates of the state plan observe, reserves to the states the right to decide the time, place, and manner of elections and to determine the qualifications of voters. Because of this provision, they argue, federal ballots printed, distributed, and collected by the government, would be illegal, inasmuch as there is no provision in any state law for such balloting.

Proponents of the federal plan have sought to meet this objection by providing in their proposed bill that local election officials will have the final authority to rule on the legality of federal ballots cast by service men.

The state plan proponents say this provision piles chaos upon confusion. They contend that if local officials count the federal ballots the votes will be contested in the courts, thus throwing election results thruout the nation in doubt. Or, they further argue, if some federal votes are thrown out this will also be contested, creating more uncertainty.

Course Held Justified.

The federal ballot proponents contend the use of federal ballots is justifiable as a war time measure to permit millions of service men, whom they contend would otherwise be disfranchised, a chance to vote.

They argue that congress set a precedent for setting aside states' jurisdiction over service voting in war time in a law passed shortly before the 1942 elections. The law waives all voting registration and poll tax requirements for service men during the war, notwithstanding any state laws to the contrary.

Some 28,000 ballots were cast in the 1942 elections under this law and its provisions are retained in bills currently sponsored by proponents of both the state and federal plans.

Backers of the state plan avow, however, that the use of federal ballots is unnecessary as well as illegal.

Delivery Called Possible.

It is their contention, contrary to published statements by navy and war Secretaries Knox and Stimson, that state ballots can be transmitted to all military personnel who request them and returned to their home election districts in time to be counted.

The bill for state balloting directs that service personnel overseas be given postcard applications for state ballots by Aug. 15, 1944. Three one way trips are then required, one for sending the postcard to the home state and two trips for sending the ballot to the soldier or sailor and returning it.

Official testimony by the army before congress shows that the average time for carrying air mail to the "farthest" war theater [in the far east] from Springfield, Ill., is 16 days [one way]. Thus, even for the most remote theater, three trips would take 48 days, whereas 84 days are allowed for the three trips between Aug. 15 and the Nov. 7 election, the state plan proponents explain. For service men in this country, they argue, the feasibility of state absentee balloting is obvious.

Allow Time for Sending.

The states are called upon in the state voting bill, moreover, to have ballots ready at least 45 days before the election, thus permitting at least that period for the round trip of sending a ballot to the soldier and having it returned.

Thus, it is argued, state ballots could be transmitted by the army and navy just as millions of pieces of mail are already being sent daily to and from soldiers and sailors.

Advocates of the federal plan retort that there is nothing in their proposal to prevent absentee balloting under state laws, but that they are merely recognizing what they term is its impracticability. Their bill directs the army and navy to transmit state ballots requested by personnel, but grants no mail priorities for them.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Margaret Davis, 810 West Michigan avenue, Urbana, Ill.]

THE QUESTION.

What was the most damage you ever caused due to carelessness?

WHERE ASKED.

The Garrick building, 64 West Randolph street.

THE ANSWERS.

Mary Kay, musician, 6459 Drexel avenue—Every time I placed my accordion on the front seat of the car I thought it would be safer in the case than on the floor. One time it bounced from the seat and landed on my foot. The instrument was damaged and I wasn't able to work for two weeks.

Aileen Lynch, beautician, Devonshire hotel—It was nothing but sheer carelessness that caused me to destroy a beautiful linen table cloth. I was cutting some heavy wool material on the table top. When I had finished I discovered I had been cutting thru the cloth on most of the pattern.

Evelyn Stein, telephone operator, 2926 Pine Grove avenue — I was going to wrap an expensive Swedish antique vase. I took it from the table and set it on the floor while I was unrolling a large sheet of paper. I stumbled on the vase and broke it into five or six worthless pieces.

Jackie Sharpe, dancer, 57 West 45th street, New York City—I left a lighted cigaret in an ash tray on the floor. Paper in the wire wastebasket caught fire. Before it was discovered it had burned part of the rug and two pairs of shoes representing my last two valuable coupons. I'm not careless with cigarets any more.

Corp. Jack Barry, 4948 South Lamon street—When I changed a tire on my car I was in quite a hurry and didn't tighten each nut individually as I should have. After driving for quite a distance the wheel worked off and then there was real damage to pay for. Luckily it didn't cause an accident.

Janet Donad, show girl, 6 Auburn street, Boston, Mass.—A little bit of carelessness cost me a $50 repair bill on a good fur coat. I hung it over a chair near a hot radiator. The fur became brittle and the backing cracked. It couldn't be worn until it was mended and then the patch was still conspicuous.

ASK DEMOCRATS TO MEET EARLY FOR ARMY VOTE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—Sen. Bridges [R., N. H.] laid plans today to force President Roosevelt's hand on a fourth term decision thru legislation requiring the names of Presidential candidates be printed on the ballots for the service vote. Such ballots would have to be mailed early.

Bridges said he would suggest Monday that the Democrats advance their national convention to a date early enough to list the ticket on overseas ballots.

The federal ballot form in the administration's bill carries blank spaces for President, Vice President, senators, and congressmen. The voter either could write in the name of his candidate or could designate only the party for which he is voting.

See Roosevelt Advantage.

Republicans argue that this pattern would give a "break" to the Democrats should President Roosevelt seek reëlection, because he has so long been associated in the public mind with the Presidency.

Bridges will offer his amandment next week when the senate resumes consideration of the service voting bill, caught in a welter of political oratory after the President demanded its passage in a message that spurned as "fraud" a senate-passed bill leaving the absentee voting job up to the states.

Bridges' suggestion for an earlier date for the Democratic convention resulted from the contention by some administration senators that names of candidates cannot be printed on the overseas ballots because the Democratic ticket won't be picked in time. The Republican convention will be held June 26. The Democratic date hasn't been finally fixed, but it is planned for middle or late July.

Vandenberg to Back Bill.

Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] stepped away from Republican opponents of the war ballot bill today, announcing he will support the measure to assure military voting in the November election. He will put in an amendment, however, in an effort to give state ballots equal standing with the federal ballots in mailing priorities to and fro.

Both amendments probably will bring renewed debate on the measure. Its administration backers already have announced they will resist every attempt to change the federal ballot proposal, revived by Senators Green [D., R. I.] and Lucas [D., Ill.] after a coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats beat the first attempt at a uniform absentee voting law more than a month ago.

ROWBOAT STOLEN FROM BEACH.

William Fagan, 1201 Chase avenue, reported to police yesterday that his 12 foot rowboat had been stolen from the beach at Chase avenue.

SOLDIER VOTE BILL SIGNED BY IOWA GOVERNOR

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 28 [Special].—Gov. B. B. Hickenlorper today signed the soldier vote bill shortly after the three day special session of the Iowa legislature closed. He said in a message to the legislators, "I am certain our service men will appreciate the fact that you have not attempted to limit them to voting for national offices only."

The house voted 107 to 0 in favor of a senate approved bill this morning and added four minor amendments which the senate quickly approved.

One lone house member refused to vote either way on the bill; he was Rep. R. B. Hawkins of Leon. He said he was in favor of the bill, but that it didn't go far enough; that it should have included war workers overseas.

THE BEASTS OF THE PACIFIC.

The American people have been given some idea of the bestial nature of our Japanese foe in the war department's summary of the experiences of Lt. Col. William E. Dyess and other American fighting men who escaped their Jap captors after Bataan.

The terrible details of the tortures inflicted on the American defenders of the Philippines will be told in Lt. Col. Dyess' story, beginning tomorrow in THE TRIBUNE. These stories describe an enemy of primitive savagery such as American soldiers have not encountered since they faced the Apaches.

The tortures and starvation that were inflicted on the American captives and their Filipino comrades in arms were not accidental. They were not the irresponsible acts of ignorant peasant soldiers or of subordinates inflamed by the heat of battle. They were a cruelly and coldly calculated policy of the Japanese government and the Japanese army. The commanders of the army knew what was going on. They visited the camps and saw the suffering of the Americans. They had, in fact, given orders that the tortures be inflicted. The violations of all of the rules of warfare and of the dictates of humanity were a carefully planned part of the Japanese imperial policy, which is to humiliate the white man and bar him forever from Asia.

The American people knew instinctively on the day of Pearl Harbor that the Japanese are our first, most bitter, and most dangerous enemy. Nothing has occurred since to change that feeling. It is deep in our hearts. The diversion of our principal forces to other theaters of war and against other enemies has not changed this feeling.

Twenty months have passed since the heroic survivors of Bataan were sent reeling and dying thru the death march that Lt. Col. Dyess described. The tides of war have swept far past the Philippines. Our forces in the Southwest Pacific have started the march back, but their gallantry cannot compensate wholly for their lack of numbers. The grand strategy that Pacific warfare shall be confined to holding actions until there is no further use for our troops in Europe has not been changed.

The American people have of necessity submitted to this decision and they have never for a moment let it slacken their ardor for the prosecution of the war on all fronts, but they know that the fight for which the nation is eager has barely been opened.

We face in the future the task of dealing not merely with Hitler and his gangsters, but with a race of Hitlers who have made gangsterism their state religion. We are going back to Bataan and from there to Tokio. Our debt to the Americans and Filipinos who fought so valiantly and hopelessly there, and are still, if they survive, subjected to the most fiendish treatment that a vicious enemy can devise, will not be discharged until a righteous sentence, writ in burnished steel, is pronounced at the heart of the Japanese empire. Hirohito and the subdevils who execute his policy must be left hanging for the crows to pick in some sacred Japanese grove. The American people are impatient for the real war to begin.

ILLINOIS LEADS AGAIN.

Veterans of many political campaigns have been impressed both by the large size and the earnestness of the crowds which have gathered downstate to hear the Republican candidates. Gov. Green, Mr. Lyons, and their colleagues on the ticket could not have expected a wider or a more sympathetic hearing than they have received at every stop the Republican caravan has made.

The facts are significant. A confused and unhappy people, their liberties and national independence threatened, is rallying to the men who are standing up for the people's rights. The crowds gathering at the court houses realize that these Republican candidates can be trusted. Unlike many and perhaps most other men in public life today, they have not been intimidated by the organized smear of the Roosevelt-Willkie faction.

Once again, Illinois is in the lead, true to her traditions. The people of this state, carved from the old Northwest Territory, never knew any allegiance other than to the United States. Their loyalty to America and American institutions is instinctive. Illinois that gave Lincoln to the nation is again showing the way to her sister states.

A FEEBLE CASE FOR A BAD LAW.

An Associated Press reporter questioned 16 of the 18 members of the senate military affairs committee and found that only one of them—Sen. Austin, the author of the measure—was unalterably in favor of President Roosevelt's labor conscription bill. This is the committee that will have to report the bill to the senate floor if it is to have a chance of becoming law.

Five of the senators on the committee said they would vote against the bill. Five others refused to pledge themselves definitely on the basis of evidence presented so far, but indicated they are against it. The other five are on the fence. It will take only 10 votes to kill the labor draft measure in committee.

Henry Stimson, the secretary of war who betrayed the Republican party to get a cabinet post, spent three hours arguing with the committee, trying to get it to accept President Roosevelt's dictum. Sen. Reynolds, the Democratic chairman of the committee, said "Secretary Stimson "didn't sell me a thing."

It is not likely that the aged secretary sold anybody else anything. Mr. Roosevelt threw the senile Mr. Stimson in as a desperation witness when the case already was lost, and the senators before whom he testified were able to judge his credibility and his motives accurately. They know him for a man who believes that America ought to be a colony and not a free and independent nation.

Secretary Stimson testified to one thing, however, that the senators and the citizens of this country know to be fact. He said that the United States army is bitter about strikes in war industry. This is patent and incontrovertible, and it is a bitterness that is shared by the vast majority of civilians.

Mr. Roosevelt and his New Dealers have allowed organized labor to break its "no strike" pledge, and everybody, including the soldiers and sailors who have been drafted to bear arms at $50 a month, knows it. The people and the fighting men want to know why. They want to know why, with the powers Mr. Roosevelt already holds and with the legislation congress has given him, war time strikes can't be prevented.

LIGHT ON THE DARLAN ASSASSINATION.

A year ago Christmas eve, Fernand Bonnier de la Chapelle, a 20 year old French university student, shot and killed Adm. Darlan. Two days later, after a hasty trial, a firing squad ended the young man's life. Many theories were propounded at the time to explain the assassination of Darlan. One was that the killer was in league with French royalists. Another was that he had acted for the axis.

The boy's father, Eugene Bonnier de la Chapelle, a French journalist, devoted the greater part of last year to an effort to clear his son's reputation and the family name, with the result that the French ministry of justice a few days before Christmas announced that a reexamination of the testimony revealed that the youth had not been connected with the axis. The evidence of his association with the royalists was always tenuous and this theory seems now to have been abandoned, also. It never was clear why the royalists should have desired Darlan out of the way.

On the other hand it has always been obvious that the presence of Darlan in North Africa after the landing was a serious obstacle to the ambitions of the De Gaullists. He had performed important services for the invading Americans in ending resistance to their landing, the value of his help had been recognized officially, and the De Gaullists feared that they could not supplant him, even tho Mr. Roosevelt had announced that Darlan's power would last only as long as he was useful to us. Besides, they hated him as a Vichyite. The English had been backing De Gaulle and Darlan was therefore in their way, also. In this country the left-wing furore against Darlan was embarrassing Mr. Roosevelt.

It is conceivable that the murder was inspired by the axis on the theory that Darlan had betrayed them, but this interpretation lacks plausibility, for Darlan, living, tended to disunite the allies to the advantage of the axis.

On Dec. 22 an Associated Press correspondent in Algiers sent the dispatch in which he reported the success of the father in clearing his son of the suspicion of being an axis agent. The correspondent continued, on his own authority, to list "facts which have become apparent, altho the full story may not be told until the many persons involved in the plot are dead."

First among these facts is that young Bonnier de la Chapelle was, in truth, an ardent De Gaullist, "used by older men who never have been brought to trial." These men gave the youth his gun and the opportunity to use it. The story of his royalist attachment was spread after the assassination for the deliberate purpose of confusing the situation.

Certainly this explanation fits all the known facts. The De Gaullists hated Darlan and wanted him removed from their path to power. The English felt the same way about it. His death caused no grief in London or in Washington. It does not follow necessarily that either in London, or in Washington, or in the allied military headquarters in North Africa there was any knowledge of the plot, but neither is it certain that there wasn't. Some day, as the Associated Press correspondent has said, the full truth may be revealed.

POST-WAR PLANS FOR SOLDIERS.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, the national selective service director, who has made a hobby of guessing in public about what will happen to the millions of Americans registered for the draft, said the other day that soldiers and sailors ought to be kept in uniform after the war is over until it is certain that jobs will be available for them.

When the soldiers and sailors have done their job of winning the war, they are going to want to come home just as fast as planes and ships can carry them, and any program to keep them in forced idleness in foreign army camps is going to be greeted with such a howl from the men, their relatives, and their congressmen that the planners will have to run for the timber. If any one thinks the boys are going to sit quietly in their barracks in Iceland and Iran until some New Deal payroller finds a job for them back home, he had better not repeat that thought while any soldiers are around.

Americans are used to finding their own jobs and picking their own environment, and our soldiers and sailors do not propose to do that by V mail.

MR. PEPYS YEARNS FOR SNOW.

29th Jan.—Have always suspected I wouldn't care much for a winter without snow, and now I know it, because I find this one dull. The old Viking blood in me from County Antrim craves for winter weather in all its expected horror, and so I have never wasted money traipsing off to Florida or California for January vacations. Have been studying the Old Farmer's Almanac to see when the next cold snap will come, and have found a curious entry for Feb. 17: "Auld Deer—the worst day of the year." Haven't the faintest idea what it means, for I am not acquainted with New England customs, but am looking forward to this terrific occasion.

The talk of the town has been mainly about the warm weather and the Persian lamb murder mystery, which proves that the people have become accustomed to the war and are ready to welcome any other subject that is unique and extraordinary. On account of the murder, I predict that the month of March will come in like a Persian lamb coat.

Am keeping a close eye on military affairs along the Appian way, where there is a new front for our soldiers, and am wondering how the tombs of the ancient Romans that border it will fare in the fighting to come. It is not a broad road, and the tombs, which have interested travelers for centuries, are close to its edges. But they are small affairs as ruins go, and there are bigger and better things to worry about.

Have done nothing this week but my chores, and met no interesting people except my cronies at the club and Sgt. Tom Riha, a poet of the Line, who came from the deserts of Arizona to tell me he liked soldiering, even in temperatures of 125 degrees. And now for a restful week-end with Form 1040.

WHEN MOM'S DOWN.

When Mother is under the weather,
Our household comes sort of unglued;
You know what I mean. It's easily seen
We're all in an unpleasant mood.

Pop struggles downstairs in pajamas
And fixes the furnace, and lights
The teakettle fire. You'd simply expire
To see Father put things to rights.

He turns on the light in our bedroom
And says, "Mother's staying in bed;
She's not feeling good." Then it's understood
We have to get breakfast, instead.

There's no cheery talk at the table;
We have to prepare our own lunch
And pack it for school, according to rule;
We're not an exuberant bunch.

When Mother is under the weather
There's no one checks clean necks and such;
And nothing seems right either morning or night;
I'm glad she's not sick very much.

Lament of a War Time Husband.

Now that Larry is helping with the war effort, the long-dreaded moment has arrived which comes in the life of every husband. She is staying downtown to play poker with the girls while I sit to home all alone except for li'l Choppy.

And here am I, a bride; a broom; no, I mean a groom [for horses, apparently] of only such a few short years. She doesn't love me any more, that's what, and if I had a mother I'd go home to her. I may go anyway.

There they are a-sittin'. I can see all of them. Larry, Evelyn, Lucia, Dorothy, Martha, Elizabeth, Molly, Ardath, Allene, Dolores, and the rest of them. O, my goodness, Larry is bluffing, as usual, and there goes her whole week's pay. Look, they are making up a fund now that the game is over, so she will have the full amount to bring home. Well, of all the duplicity I have ever seen! If I had known, I would have stayed single and kept on working myself.

Yes, sir, and the next night she will be so tired out from the poker game she will want to go to bed at 8:30. If I had known when I was small that I should be going to bed at 8:30 when I was grown up I should have stayed small.

Yes, and I know what I am going to do about it. I shall pout and screech, lie on the floor and kick my heels, and then I shall go out in the kitchen and sit on a stool and read my Peter Rabbit book. I shall wear a close fitting night cap, and on it there will be two great big rabbit ears, and if Larry says a word about it I shall twitch them at her.

And so long as I am reverting to childhood I shall get myself some blocks and learn all over how to spell cat. Then I shall get a little choo choo train, and I shall run it all over the kitchen floor so that she cannot sleep.

I'll show her who's the boss, boo hoo, hoo.

FOR HER WHO MOURNS.

O, mother sitting in the dusk,
Whose son will not come home again,
There are no words in all the world
To heal your wound, to lift your pain.

Yet we shall speak these few, frail words
That you may know how much we care,
How many hearts are stirred to feel
In your deep grief some humble share.

Be sure that countless lips, unknown
To you, have asked that you be given
Comfort in your sorrowing;
Be sure that God has heard in heaven.

Our thoughts of you are as a cloud
Of tenderness that softly lies
Upon you, where you sit alone,
A thousand memories in your eyes.

How Old Is Four-Figure Time?

Linemaster: You ask [Jan. 5] for the identity of the inventor of the 24-hour clock. I cannot tell you, but I can testify to its use 40 years before the first World War. About 65 years ago, in a town in New York, a weekly paper was started. The town had only a population of a couple of thousand and already had a Republican and a Democratic weekly. The new editor was put to it for a political horse to ride, and so he came out strongly for woman's suffrage and the 24-hour clock, to the great dissatisfaction of the reactionaries. Edward H. REPEATED COLDS MAY MEAN SINUS DISEASE.

CHILDREN who exhibit repeated colds may well be checked for the presence of sinus disease. In fact, we can assume that whenever a nasal discharge persists, some one of the bony rooms within the skull has become infected. Altho X-rays of all the possible sites of trouble should be studied, the ethmoids are probably the culprits.

But, despite the presence of profuse secretions, most of these tots continue to gain and to grow, which means that they are able to build a fair amount of immunity. Because youngsters are on the upgrade, the prospects of cure—should the condition be demonstrated—are better than with adults.

How do these spaces become diseased? Nests of organisms may hide in the areas following any acute illness such as whooping cough, diphtheria, measles, or scarlet fever. Little Johnny, with a running nose and red and inflamed nostrils, may demand more attention than father or mother should they display the same symptoms. If the little one will open the mouth, a string of pualike material may be observed clinging to the back of the throat. Unfortunately, this does not produce nausea. In consequence, it is swallowed, whereupon the gastric pouch may have difficulty in destroying a horde of germs.

If allergy complicates the situation, the outflow will be intermittent and will be accompanied by episodes of sneezing, itching, loss of the sense of smell, and cough. A careful search should be made to determine the "starter" and, when it can be avoided or omitted from the diet, the battle is won.

There was a time when oily mixtures, containing menthol, eucalyptol, or camphor, were thought to be valuable in clearing the airways. We now know that these substances may exert a delaying effect, hindering the outward passage of pus. In addition, mineral oil [liquid paraffin] may form a blanket over the mucous surfaces and thus interfere with function. Furthermore, the danger of oil pneumonia in babies, thru inhalation of droplets, makes this remedy more dangerous than useful.

There is no objection, however, to the cautious use of some one of the sulfa preparations, chiefly sulfathiazole. But this compound may be reserved for those stubborn cases which fail to respond to more conservative types of management. Children stand ephedrine very well and, when combined with a normal salt solution, small quantities may be employed with complete safety.

Recent reports mention amniotin, which appears to have the power of digesting pus and necrotic tissue, of stimulating repair, and aiding the sulfonamides in their action. There are many instances in which adding a minute quantity of this drug to dilute sulfathiazole has solved the problem satisfactorily. The tiny whips on the cells [cilia] remain undamaged and unhindered.

As we would expect, with some victims, the ethmoids will require drainage and a skilled nose and throat specialist should carry out the procedure.

THANKS TO S. E. P.

S. E. P. writes: You recently described the properties of vitamin K and attributed them to vitamin E. This must have been a typographical error.

REPLY.

The printer did his job 100 per cent. Perhaps I need new glasses. At any rate, "E" was read "K."

RETRACING HIS STEPS

Front Views & Profiles

The Romance of Words.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—The only industry in Washington is government, and most of the business of government is transacted via the tea table. As a result, the tea table business here is the largest in the country, every party being a party with a purpose, and if you have any fun at any of them, it is accidental. "You can have fun," said an inveterate tea-goer, "if you talk fast enough, but you have to talk mighty fast."

The tea table business leads us into the society columns of the average Washington newspaper, for the tea table business is their business, and they devote more words to it per issue than any other group of newspapers in the country. Written in dead seriousness, in what might accurately be described as deadly and breathless prose, they should be required reading for any one feeling down at the mouth, for they are as funny as any joke book. They deal in personalities, attire, and flowers, with an occasional heart thrown in, and are read assiduously by all who wish to be mentioned in them.

The brightest note in this week's ton of society syrup has come from a lady writer's moans about Ambassador Biddle's transfer from diplomatic circles to the military. Now that he is about to become a lieutenant colonel in the army, "the best dressed man in the world," sighs this lady, "will become strictly G. I." [When did the uniform of a lieutenant colonel become G. I., or government issued?] [A G. I. is an enlisted man.]

"Tho it's true," she continues pitifully, "that the same tailors can be commissioned to make broad shouldered Biddle's new uniforms, the tape measure lads' hands will be tied when it comes to color schemes and designs. . . . Biddle used to have a different suit for almost each week in the year, each of different material, cut, and color, with all its accessories. Now, instead of standing while the tailors measure or fit suits for Tony, his excellency will be standing in line to get his shots.

"But even if he must leave his crisp, custom made shirts, silk ties, and natty suits hanging in the closet gathering dust till the war is thru," she concludes happily, "for the time being he will probably take over the title of America's best dressed officer."

On that comforting note she abandons Mr. Biddle for a well dressed senator, but she certainly makes you realize what a sorry plight the home front is left in. But do you suppose Mr. Biddle's discarded-for-the-war suits and ties and shirts really will be hanging in the closet? And gathering dust? That there really is dust in Mr. Biddle's closet? Or that one closet will be enough?

This is the same lady who wrote very irritably this week that Pierre Clemenceau, the grandson of the Clemenceau, had been here in Washington for months, working quietly and diligently for France in a little office, and no one knew anything about it. She was very put out with this young man, whose beauty she described in detail, for not letting Washington know of his presence because, as she so aptly put it, every one would have been just dying to entertain him.

She also is the lady who has been fretting in print about what, if any, are the marital intentions of Otto of Hapsburg. She has been reading a lot of historical romances about the Hapsburgs, and these books have convinced her the Hapsburgs are born lovers, the "hard loving" Hapsburgs she calls them. She cites the romances of Emperor Franz Josef, Rudolph, and Archduke Franz Ferdinand with his morganatic wife, Sophia.

". . . and the couple were ecstatically happy until 1916," she says of the latter. "In that year the archduke and his lovely wife died in each other's arms . . . shot . . . the famous shot said to have started World War I."

Somewhere a bell is tinkling faintly. Could that shot have been in 1914, maybe?

HE SAYS IT'S OLD STUFF.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—In THE TRIBUNE of Jan. 25 appears an article that will amuse any old time machinist, under the caption "Tribune Award No. 18 Won by Polishing Trick."

With all due appreciation of the savings made, it still makes one wonder what sort of background the superintendent had that he did not know the scheme and its further possible refinements, and cure his troubles long ago. It also seems that the shop practice training of incentive officers of the navy may be lacking a little in some ways.

I feel sure that the necessity for a smooth finish and longitudinal "laying of the grain" is known well by every machinist who has really served an apprenticeship—as well as how to accomplish it. On page 311 of volume 1, "Modern Machine Shop Practice," by Joshua Rose, published in 1888 by Chas. Scribner's Sons, you will find everything for which this award is made, and much more.

It makes some of us old timers a little sore to meet this sort of thing so often, and to contact so many supposedly trained machinists of the army and navy who have but a smattering of the trade and instead of commencing where their elders left off, insist on making the same mistakes which have been so often made before.

As Oberlin Smith said, as the retiring president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers very many years ago, "It is surprising how many of our most brilliant inventions were stolen by the ancients."

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 21.—Mr. Hogue's complaint is surely justified in connection with the general practice of merchants in issuing separate checks to the same purchaser for small amounts and then adding sales tax to each check individually. These merchants base their remittance to the state on 2 per cent of their gross receipts, and when they collect a separate tax on each small check they are defrauding the public. It does not go to the state, but into the merchant's pocket. It is not a petty racket either. It amounts to a profit of material proportions.

STIMSON PROBE OF ARMY POLLS STIRS CONGRESS

Show Many Others Have Tested Opinions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—The eagerness of the war department to "investigate" the informal opinion survey made among soldiers in England by four friends of Chairman Spangler of the Republican National committee, is being studied with a wary eye by members of congress.

Stimson, in a letter to Sen. Green [D., R. I.], co-sponsor of the administration's federalized soldier vote bill, reported that as soon as press reports of Spangler's statement claiming Republican sentiment among soldiers were printed, the commanding general of the European theater was ordered to investigate and report immediately by radio.

This prompt action by Stimson's office is being compared in congressional circles with the freedom with which other persons and organizations poll the soldiers all over the world for political opinion.

A "Poll" from South Pacific.

Today's issue of PM, a New York newspaper, carried a poll from the South Pacific area conducted by International News service. This was printed by PM to support its contention that "soldiers do not want a military man for president."

Publication of the poll is the latest of several instances in which soldier sentiment has been purportedly tested without any complaint from the war department or from the administration.

Sen. Taft [R., O.] was blocked by Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.], another sponsor of the federalized plant to vote soldiers, early this week when he attempted to read a letter from Dr. George Gallup, conductor of a public opinion survey, telling of Gallup polls among the soldiers.

Democrats Claim 70 Per Cent.

Rep. Martin [R., Mass.], G. O. P. floor leader in the house, has called attention to the claims of Democrats that surveys of soldier sentiment show them 70 per cent in favor of the fourth term.

Sen. Bushfield [R., S. D.] yesterday called attention to the Gallup polls, and charged that Harry Hopkins, Presidential confidante, has also tested soldier sentiment for the fourth term.

Bushfield's statement was made after Sen. Taft had succeeded in inserting in the congressional record the Gallup letter blocked by Sen. Lucas earlier in the week. Taft then read Gallup's letter, pointing out that the question asked by the pollsters—"which party would you like to see win the Presidential election next year, the Republican or the Democratic?"—is the same sort of question soldiers would be asked to answer in voting the federalized "bobtailed" ballot.

Poll Reds on Bills.

Sen. Taft then called attention to a poll by the Young Communist league [now operating under the name American Youth for Democracy] which was made among soldiers in 16 states at railroad stations, canteens and other gathering places. The poll was on the question of the federalized vote bill and reported that 7,089 service men had been polled. At the New York canteen the poll was conducted by 30 young Communists, all of them girls, who talked to 900 sailors and soldiers, Taft said.

"Here we have a poll not only on a general question, but on a particular measure," Taft said.

CANADIAN FARM MACHINE SALES PLANNED IN U.S.

Continue Buying Here at Same Time.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—The senate was told today that the Canadian government is offering surplus farm machinery for export while American farmers are pleading in vain for implements which are being denied them in order that American farm machinery may be sent to Canada.

The Canadians, Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] told the senate, are seeking a market for their machinery among the very American farmers who are doing without the equipment vital to the war program that Canada may be supplied.

Sen. Wheeler placed in the Congressional Record a letter received from a Montana farm implement firm protesting the situation, along with a letter the company had received from the office of the Canadian government trade commissioner in Chicago.

Surveys Trade Prospects.

The Canadian government letter was signed by H. A. Spencer, acting trade commissioner. It read:

"In view of the shortage of farm implements and machinery at this time and the possibility of supplies from Canada in the near future, would you inform me if there could be a market in your territory for importations of Canadian farm implements and machinery? If so, would you advise me of the estimated tonnage or amount that would be marketable?"

Deprives U. S. Farmers.

"It seems mighty queer to me and to a lot of the rest of us Americans," the vice president of the Montana firm commented in his letter to Wheeler, "that the war production board and the war food administration are allocating farm equipment for export to Canadian and British firms and depriving the American farmer and rancher of equipment that he so badly needs, while at the same time the Canadian manufacturers apparently have a surplus of farm equipment and machinery that they in turn can export to the United States."

No information was available as to whether the machinery the Canadian government is offering might be some of that which the United States has allocated to Canada. Members of congress said, however, that they believe the machinery being offered is of Canadian manufacture, built under the Canadian and British "business as usual" program.

PLANNING FOR FUTURE.

H. A. Spencer, acting trade commissioner, said that his letter mainly was a feeler to find trends for post-war trade. He said Canada has no farm machinery for export now, but said that "there might possibly be a surplus for export by July."

"Canada manufactures much of its own equipment and in pre-war days has exported quantities to other countries," he said.

Spencer said he was seeking a distributor's point of view in addressing letters to four implement companies in Montana, Wisconsin, and Nebraska, asking if there would be a market for Canadian farm equipment.

Provide 100 Beds

Maj. Doris E. Epperson of the WACs was a guest of Mrs. Edward J. Kelly yesterday at a preview of the new free sleeping quarters for women in uniform opening today at Chicago Service Men's center No. 2 at 430 South Michigan avenue. The accommodations, which are on the fifth floor, provide 100 beds, a self-service laundry and a pressing room with six ironing boards.

There are an average of four beds to a room. A dozen rooms overlook the lake front. Walls and Venetian blinds are done in an off-white shade and the floors are covered with red linoleum.

PETRILLO NAMED IN SUIT ASKING $500,000 DAMAGES

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—James C. Petrillo, president of the AFL American Federation of Musicians, two other individuals, and two corporations were charged with coercion today in a $500,000 damage suit filed in Supreme court by a stockholder of the Lafayette theater of Detroit, Mich.

The stockholder, David T. Nederlander, charged the theater was compelled, under threat of strikes, to employ union musicians against its will. The theater specializes in dramatic productions which do not require orchestral aid.

Also named defendants were John S. [Jack] Ferentz, president of the Detroit Federation of Musicians, local 5, AFM; Jacob Rosenberg, president of the Associated Musicians of Greater New York, local 802, AFM; Lafayette Dramatic Productions, Inc., and the United Booking Office, Inc., a New York corporation.

TAVERN PICKUP YIELDS 100 TONS OF SCRAP PAPER

One of Chicago's biggest privately conducted salvage pickups got under way yesterday when the first fleet of the city's breweries and distributors' 1,200 trucks called at cafes and taverns for bundles of newspapers, magazines, cardboard, and other waste paper. More than 100 tons of paper was collected and a similar amount is expected to be obtained on each of three succeeding pickup days.

Frank J. Wetzel, administrative secretary of the Illinois Association of Breweries and head of the pickup, said all the paper was donated to be sold by breweries thru the war production board. Proceeds of the sale will go to the Chicago Service Men's centers.

Chicago newspaper publishers will consider new sources of obtaining waste paper when they meet Monday morning.

Giant candy bars were given by Otto Schnering, president of the Curtiss Candy company, to each of the first 1,000 children who left not less than 10 pounds of waste paper at the office of the company, 1101 Belmont avenue.

BRITAIN'S INDIA RULE LIKENED TO ATLANTIC CHARTER BY HALIFAX

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—Ambassador Halifax, in a defense of Britain's conduct in India, tonight said the crown was applying the principles of the Atlantic charter there "long before" the charter was drawn. Halifax, former viceroy of India, told the National Geographic society: "If, after the war, her people can establish an agreed constitution and desire to sever partnership with us, we have undertaken not to overrule such decision.

"I think we may fairly claim to have given her peace, in place of war; unity, in place of division; order, in place of anarchy; law, in place of the irresponsible working of despotic wills. We have sown in her people the seeds of self-government."

India will throw the Japanese out of Burma, he added, and that contribution to the allies will go down in history as notable.

PRICE ASKS ALL TO HELP GUARD INVASION SECRET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—Byron Price, censorship director, tonight asked the American people to guard zealously the biggest secret of the war—plans for the European invasion.

In a radio address, Price emphasized the tremendous stakes involved in the forthcoming assault and reiterated a warning against careless conversation and loose tongues. He said enemy spies are working feverishly to pry the secrets loose.

Price said the Nazis know the invasion is coming and that the armies and equipment are now being assembled on the British Isles. He said the enemy is rallying its spy network. "One good spy," he said, "if he delivered the proper information, would be enough to destroy the lives of many thousands of our fighting men and tip the balance toward barbarism and slavery for centuries to come."

JURY ACQUITS DEAN OF GIRLS' 4 A. M. VISITOR

Porter Craig of Harvey, a bus driver, who was charged with adultery after he was arrested in the apartment of Mrs. Janet Nicol Freckelton, dean of girls at Lindblom High school, at 4 a. m. on Nov. 27, was found not guilty in Municipal court yesterday.

A jury of six men and six women deliberated only 56 minutes after Craig and Mrs. Freckelton both denied they ever had been intimate and Mrs. Craig testified for her husband. A similar charge against Mrs. Freckelton was quashed Thursday on the ground that her apartment was entered illegally and evidence obtained was inadmissible.

Just Chatting, She Testifies.

Yesterday Mrs. Freckelton testified that she and Craig were just eating sandwiches and drinking coffee when her husband and police broke into the apartment.

William J. Freckelton, also a teacher, who is suing for divorce, led the raid on his wife's apartment at 11253 Hermosa avenue, Mrs. Freckelton said. She and Craig had attended a movie and returned to her home about 1:20 a. m. She said she immediately changed clothes, donning slacks and a blouse. Then she prepared lunch and she and Craig were discussing school problems when people began banging on the front and back doors and shouting to her to open the door.

"No one said it was the police," she said. "Finally I heard my husband's voice and then he broke the glass in the kitchen door, unlocked it, and rushed in."

Visitor Corroborates Story.

Craig, who said he had known Mrs. Freckelton since she was 13 or 14 years old, corroborated Mrs. Freckelton's testimony that the apartment folding bed had not been lowered during his visit.

His wife, who said she and Craig occupied separate bedrooms, testified that she and Mrs. Freckelton had visited in each other's homes and denied her husband ever had remained away from home all night except on the occasion of the apartment house raid.

FREE as the Air...

All places are accessible. Oceans, mountains, deserts, and boundaries, too, cease to be barriers in the realm of air.

When war comes to an end... what of commercial flight through unlimited air? What of our nation's air future?

To contribute to coming transportation needs and to America's stature in future world air commerce, Braniff Airways has planned and applied for new domestic and international air routes in order that the benefits of air transportation may be extended to all the people of our nation and to air-link the United States, Europe and Latin America. Four engine aircraft, the through operation of sleeper planes on both domestic and international routes and new war-born operating techniques are planned to bring to mail and cargo a measure of speed heretofore undreamed of, and to travelers a measure of comfort unknown.

Inspiration for it all is the belief that "free as the air" is more than a good, old saying... that it is a force for world good, and for healthful, needed expansion in the peace ahead. It is the principle of free enterprise by those skilled and experienced in their trade that has made American industry the most advanced and the most productive in the world. Commercial aviation can be no exception.

ONE CLEW! IT'S ALL POLICE ASK IN DRAKE DEATH

Make New Start in Hope of Solving Mystery.

Admittedly baffled over the murder of Mrs. Adele Born Williams, wife of a state department attache, who was shot by an unidentified woman in her Drake hotel room Jan. 19, police yesterday began reviewing the entire case in the hope of finding some heretofore obscure or hidden clew.

As a starter, Capt. Frank Reynolds, of the Chicago avenue station, and Assistant State's Atty. Joseph A. Pope, questioned or re-questioned more than 30 minor witnesses, most of them employes of the Drake hotel. The wholesale examination required four hours. No new information was developed. Other hotel personnel are to be quizzed.

"We're going all over this case with the old fine tooth comb," said Capt. Reynolds. "We'll work on the process of elimination. All we ask is one reliable clew."

More Lie Tests Planned.

The re-investigation plan is to combine old fashioned sleuthing with scientific methods, and as secretly as possible. Some witnesses will be interviewed at home, or at work, and some may be subjected, as a routine measure, to lie detector tests.

Ambulance attendants who drove Mrs. Williams to St. Luke's hospital, and nurses there who aided her will be questioned on the chance that some one may have heard a significant utterance by Mrs. Williams before she died. Approximately 100 persons to whom Mrs. Williams telephoned from the Drake after her arrival Jan. 6 will also be interrogated, likewise in the hope that some one may have heard a remark which would now, in view of her murder, be of value.

Studies Trust Agreement.

During the day Prosecutor Pope visited the Northern Trust company, and examined a $60,000 trust agreement drawn up between Mrs. Williams and her former husband, Edgar R. Born, chairman of the M. Born & Co., tailors, and father of her daughters, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody and Miss Elizabeth Born. The document was found in a safety deposit vault, along with $100,000 in $1,000 bills, securities, and gems.

Mrs. Goodbody, who was with her mother at the shooting and was fired upon, but unharmed, and Miss Born voluntarily took lie detector tests Thursday and proved that they already had told all they knew about the case. The best remaining theory is the killer was a thief. The victim's husband, Frank Starr Williams, reported that a black pearl and an aquamarine which she owned are missing.

HOW TO LOCATE BOOKIES ISSUE IN POLICE TRIAL

What peculiar ability did Henry Boerema have that enabled him to find gambling houses in the Hyde Park district?

Atty. Michael F. Ryan spent all day yesterday seeking the answer to this question. Ryan is defense counsel for Police Capt. Walter F. Healy, former commander of the Hyde Park district in proceedings before the civil service commission in which Healy's job is at stake.

Boerema is an investigator employed by the state's attorney's office. He testified he found a dozen or more handbooks in the Hyde Park district in which he was able to make 50 cent bets on horse races.

Capt. Healy was suspended from duty last October when Police Commissioner Allman became dissatisfied with police work in that district in enforcement of the laws against gambling. Allman, at that time, was making frequent appearances before the grand jury.

CALDWELL CASE ENDS WITH MAX IN A SOFT SPOT

Nol Pros Winds Up Conspiracy Count.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Jan. 28.—Max Caldwell, former Chicago labor racketeer, who was convicted last April of conspiracy to violate the selective service law and was sentenced to two years in prison— a sentence later revoked on appeal—will not have to stand trial again on the conspiracy charge.

Ernest L. Duhaime, assistant district attorney, today asked that the charge be dismissed, thus relieving Caldwell, who is conducting a night club in Miami, of one of his two worries. The other is the fear of an income tax investigation.

Caldwell's old union was the Chicago Retail Clerks Protective association No. 1248 [AFL]. In the summer of 1942 some rank and file members filed a suit asking that he be compelled to account for more than $900,000 of union funds. The books were missing and have remained missing, and only $62 cash was found in the treasury. Caldwell's explanation was that Michael Savachka, secretary-treasurer, had the books. No one knew where Savachka was.

Find Both in Miami.

After an intensive investigation, during which it was disclosed that Caldwell was an Indiana bootlegger who had been sentenced to jail for six months but had not served his sentence, he and Savachka were found here. Savachka was a draft dodger and both men were tried for conspiring to prevent his reporting to his local board in Chicago.

Both were found guilty in the federal District court here. Savachka, who had told a Tribune reporter he had been hidden and supported here for months by Caldwell, refused to take the stand against the union boss. He was sentenced to five years, given probation, and allowed to join the army.

On Caldwell's appeal the 5th Circuit court held that the lower court should have "sustained demurrers to the indictment" and that the conspiracy count was "inartfully drawn." It sent the case back for retrial.

Duhaime, who prosecuted the case, said today he wanted to carry the case of Caldwell to the United States Supreme court, but the attorney general in Washington vetoed it.

Still Waits on Washington.

He said he had no new evidence against the labor boss and that therefore he had asked permission to nol pros the matter.

It was learned that Caldwell has sold the $45,000 Miami Beach home he purchased from Frank Nitti, notorious gangster who committed suicide in Chicago. He has also given up a so called newspaper he published to get money from other night club owners—according to some of the club men—under threats to stage a walkout of their help and publicize their troubles.

The old Caldwell local union in Chicago has joined the CIO and still keeps up the fight to get an accounting. Members have reported they can get no help from the old AFL Clerks International.

Truckload of Smokes Worth $27,800 Is Lost

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with queries.]

P. L. asks: "Is there a rating for a 'caulker' in the navy ship repair unit and what degree of skill must he have?"

ANSWER: A person with a minimum of three years' journeyman experience caulking seams of wood decks of steel vessels and hull planking and decks of wooden vessels should be able to qualify for a carpenter's mate second or third class without any difficulty. The navy ship repair units need such men very badly to make repairs to hulls of wooden ships and boats damaged in battle or service, and to renew gaskets in watertight doors, air ports, and hatches. The two ratings mentioned have a base pay of $96 and $78, respectively, with an additional 20 per cent for sea duty or overseas assignments. An interview at the navy recruiting office, 321 South Plymouth court, will determine your acceptance and rating.

J. L. L. asks: "Will persons released from the army because they were over 38 be entitled to the severance pay provided by the bill before congress if [1] they were discharged, [2] transferred to the E. R. C.?"

ANSWER: Unless further amendment is made by the joint committee, it appears that men released to accept employment will be excluded unless they have had overseas service. It is doubtful that persons still in the enlisted reserve corps [inactive] status are "separated" from service, and hence they would be ineligible.

J. E. writes: "I was born in Canada and at the age of 14 entered the United States and have not taken out citizenship papers. Recently I received my 1-A classification and in entering the service I would prefer service in the United States navy but I am told that aliens are not acceptable, hence I could not be inducted into the navy. What would be best for me to do?"

ANSWER: You have a choice of two possibilities. The first would be to make application to your local board for induction into the Canadian forces [fill in form 502] or request that you be inducted into the Canadian forces as provided in local board memorandum 129 and 129-A. The second choice is to allow yourself to be inducted and sent to the induction station in the regular manner and request induction in the United States navy. If not acceptable to the navy, you would automatically go into our army and you could then request transfer to the Canadian forces thru the headquarters, Inter-Allied Personnel Board, Washington, D. C.

NOTE: R. S. W.: The first sentence in the answer to H. J. S. in Wednesday's column should have read: "In your case, your mother-in-law cannot qualify for dependency benefits." In this case his draft board was wrong because he had two dependent parents of his own and therefore his wife's mother could not qualify in addition because Section 120 [e] of the law clearly states "that not more than two [parents] of either spouse may be designated to receive an allowance."

NOTE: Mrs. R. G.: Women in the cadet nurse corps are not entitled to the "free" postage privilege accorded members of the services, and your daughter is making herself liable to penalties if she continues to send her mail "free."

NEW FOG NOZZLE TO CURB WATER LOSSES IN FIRES

Huge savings in losses from fire and damage from water used to fight fires are expected by the Chicago fire department thru use of an improved type of fog nozzle which has been developed in the fire department shops. Demonstrations of the value of the new nozzle were given yesterday to division marshals and battalion chiefs.

Ten squads will be equipped with the nozzles at once, and hook and ladder companies will get the new nozzles as soon as they can be produced. Fog nozzles of a less efficient type have been used by Chicago firemen on hand lines for some years.

The new nozzle consists of three heads set at 30 degree angles within a protecting ring. The heads contain baffling fins which break up the solid mass of water into fog. In an enclosed space fog absorbs a larger volume of heat than would a solid stream of water and at the same time tends to smother flame.

The new nozzle, according to Lt. Harry H. Wolff of headquarters office, will be especially valuable in fighting basement fires because the fog will penetrate places not reached by solid water and at the same time create a vacuum which will draw out smoke and absorb it.

WITHHOLDS SALE OF LINCOLN DEED STOLEN IN 1939

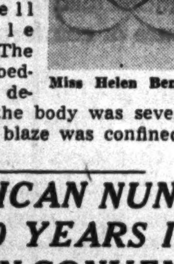

A deed written by Abraham Lincoln, and bearing his father's signature and his mother's mark, yesterday was withdrawn from sale by William J. Morley, Philadelphia auctioneer, after evidence had accumulated that it was stolen from the Grand Army of the Republic hall in the Chicago Public library in July, 1939.

Capt. Thomas A. Ambrose, president of the G. A. R. Memorial Association of Cook county, had seen the item listed in Morley's catalog and, thru William J. Grace, former state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, had requested Philadelphia police to investigate. It was learned that Morley had acquired the item from an eastern antique dealer who in turn had acquired it from a Paul Morris of Chicago who used a general delivery address in conducting his business.

The G. A. R. association, thru Grace, is taking steps to recover the deed. Chicago police are to try to trace Morris and ascertain how he acquired the document. The deed, dated Oct. 25, 1841, is one by which Lincoln's parents conveyed to him title to 40 acres in Coles county, Illinois.

AFL SEEKS TIES WITH LABOR OF LATIN AMERICA

Urges Joint Parleys for Co-operation.

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Jan. 28.—Plans for closer coöperation and a salute to the unfailing courage of Latin American labor leaders who have been exiled, jailed, or tortured for their democratic sympathies are contained in a message sent to the workers of Latin America by the executive board of the American Federation of Labor. The council finished its two week winter meeting here yesterday.

"Recent events affecting the democratic rights of workers of this hemisphere make it advisable and even necessary for the executive council to coöperate with the free and independent unions of Latin America in developing a concrete program for the future," the board said.

Must Plan Together.

"Such a program must be based upon mutual respect for the autonomy of the organizations which the workers set up in accordance with their own conditions and interests. Labor unions of the Americas must plan jointly to face the difficult days thru which we are passing, as well as those of the post-war period. Only thru such planning can we all move toward higher living standards thru the active participation of organized labor in inter-American councils."

The council recommended the labor movements of Latin America be invited to attend the meeting of the intertechnical and economic conference to convene in September and encouraged their labor leaders to come to this country to study so as to better understand mutual problems.

"For the immediate future," the council said, "we also recommend that particular attention be given by organized labor to the problem of food.

Raps Fascist Trends.

"We know the horizon has become darker during the last months for our Latin American brothers thru the formation of the coöperative state, based on the destruction of free and independent trade unions, which has been set up in one more American nation. We know that leaders of labor have been exiled, jailed, and tortured for their democratic sympathies. Because of their unfailing courage we salute them and extend our fraternal greetings."

ORLANDO TO GET HEARING ON HIS BID FOR LIBERTY

Sam Orlando, former Democratic precinct captain who was convicted May 23, 1941, on vote fraud charges arising from the 1939 judicial election, will go before the state parole board at Joliet Tuesday in a plea for freedom. He was sentenced to 1 to 10 years by Judge John F. Bolton and has served the minimum.

Orlando was acquitted at his first trial on charges of election stealing, but the state's attorney's office indicted him and three others on charges of having bribed the jury. He was also acquitted on this charge and then was brought to trial on another indictment charging vote fraud, and convicted.

Also appearing before the parole board will be Sam Urzo, 24, convicted of the hit and run death of Michael DiCicco on Nov. 11, 1941, and sentenced to 1 to 14 years, and Albert Zuris, 43, sentenced to 10 years as an habitual criminal after he was convicted Oct. 29, 1937, of staging two holdups with a toy pistol.

CIGARET BLAMED FOR BLAZE FATAL TO FIVE WOMEN

John O. Russell, attorney for the Lion Manufacturing corporation, 2640 Belmont avenue, where five women died in a fire Tuesday night, said yesterday an employe had admitted he had thrown a lighted cigaret on the floor near an oil washing tank and that the flames had spread before he and a fellow worker could stop them.

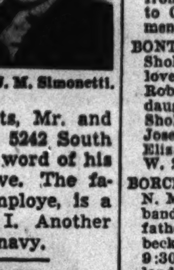

The employe, a man about 45 years old, was not at the inquest Wednesday because he could not be located, but he gave himself up to company officials shortly after the inquest because his conscience hurt him, Russell said.

The federal bureau of investigation questioned the man and turned its findings over to J. Albert Woll, United States attorney, who said yesterday no charges would be placed because the fire appears to have been accidental. The confessor was not held.

Russell said the employe formerly was an odd jobs man who had worked at the plant less than a week. The attorney added that the company does not officially permit smoking, but is forced to tolerate it to keep workers from taking jobs where they can smoke.

FATHER SLAYS TWO DAUGHTERS, COMMITS SUICIDE

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 28 (AP).—A Cambridge father who was on parole from a mental hospital stabbed two of his children to death with a butcher's knife late today, then committed suicide by drinking poison.

Police found Irene Brennan, 2½ years old, and her sister, Margaret, 5 months old, lying in a pool of blood in a bedroom of their home. Irene was pronounced dead upon arrival at Cambridge City hospital and Margaret died a few hours later.

Even as a police broadcast ordered the detention of George Brennan, father of the children, he was found lying in an alley, unconscious and suffering from poisoning. He died at Cambridge City hospital within a short time without regaining consciousness. Hospital physicians and police said he was a suicide.

New Arts Club Exhibit Will Be Opened Friday

BY JUDITH CASS.

DEVOTEES of modern architecture will find it difficult to stay away from the Arts club from Feb. 4 to 26, for the exhibiting artist during those dates will be Le Corbusier [Charles Edouard Jeanneret], one of the world's outstanding architects. On Friday the club is entertaining at tea from 4 to 6 p. m. to mark the opening of the exhibit, one of the first to coördinate Le Corbusier's paintings, drawings, and examples of architecture.

Mrs. Winterbotham Badger is designing the decorations for the tea table. Among those whom Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, hostess for the day, has asked to pour are Mrs. William Eisendrath Jr., Mrs. Daniel Catton Rich, Mrs. Harold Florsheim, Mrs. Paul Schweikher, Mrs. Richard Bennett, Mrs. Knight Cowles, Mrs. John Holabird, Mrs. John Root, Mrs. Oskar Gross, Mrs. Frank Hiter, Mrs. Edward Porter, and Mrs. Mellen C. Martin.

Le Corbusier, who was born in La Chaux-de-Fonds, Switzerland, became a naturalized French citizen and now is living somewhere in France. His forthcoming exhibit here is being assembled and installed by Carl O. Schniewind of the Art institute staff.

On the Calendar.

The hard times and box supper party which the Winnetka Historical society is giving tonight in the Winnetka Community house will be a prelude to a much larger celebration in which the society will share on March 10. On that date the organization will sponsor an evening meeting at the Skokie school, in coöperation with the village council, to mark the 75th anniversary of the founding of Winnetka as a village on March 10, 1869. Three thousand invitations already have been sent to the citizens of Winnetka to join in the festivities.

Tonight's party will carry on the society's tradition of having the second meeting of the year a purely social one. Instead of the old fashioned custom of bidding for the box suppers, each masculine guest will pay a flat sum of 75 cents and draw for his dinner and partner. Some of the society members whose baby pictures later will be projected on a screen are Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Windes, Samuel S. Otis, Barret Conway, Mrs. Frederick Dickinson, president of the society, and Mr. Dickinson; Mrs. Harry H. Barnum, Wallace Rumsey, Mrs. Charles Howells Coffin, Mrs. Harry P. Prouty, Eugene Rummler, and Mrs. Edward G. Trowbridge. Miss Marion Russell serves as program chairman for the party.

The roads around the Knollwood club will see their share of old fashioned rigs tonight, for a number of members are planning to drive to the club's first winter party in their own carriages. The crowd will assemble at 7 o'clock for a hayrack ride before dinner, to be followed by square dancing. The Fred Kochs will arrive at the club by horse drawn carriage, and the Donald Easters will bring the guests in a hayrack from their hot buttered rum party.

Some of those who will be gathering for the fun are the Donald Boweys, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund F. Mansure, Mr. and Mrs. George Rossetter, the Haven ReQuas, who also will give a cocktail party before the ride; the junior James E. Baggots, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sommers, Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Teeter, the Charles Steeles, Mr. and Mrs. Whipple Jacobs, and the William Duffs. The party is being given by the club's equestrian committee.

Week-End Events.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan M. Clement will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary tomorrow with a family party at the Lake Forest home of their son, Franklin G. Clement.

The 36th annual Plush Horse ball to be given tonight at the Bal Tabarin in the Hotel Sherman by the Town and Country Equestrian association promises to be the largest in the series. Many service men have been invited to the party, which includes dinner, dancing, and a floor show.

Students of the Katharine Gibbs school will entertain midshipmen from Abbott hall and Tower hall and students from the University of Chicago meteorological school at a tea-dance from 4 to 7 p. m. tomorrow at the school. The party is being called "Katy's Kanteen."

Subdebutante News.

The third in the current series of evening parties will be held at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the King Pin Bowling lanes in Wilmette, with refreshments served after an evening of bowling. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Chace, Mr. and Mrs. Holden K. Farrar, the J. Williams Macys, Mr. and Mrs. Myron H. Watkins, and Mrs. Francis T. Wilson will serve as hosts and hostesses for the young persons.

Celebrating the end of the semester, upper school students at the Roycemore school in Evanston will gather with their escorts in the gymnasium tonight to dance from 9 to 1 o'clock at the annual prom. Jeannette Kempf, daughter of the Lawrence A. Kempfs of Evanston and chairman of the student council, is in charge of arrangements.

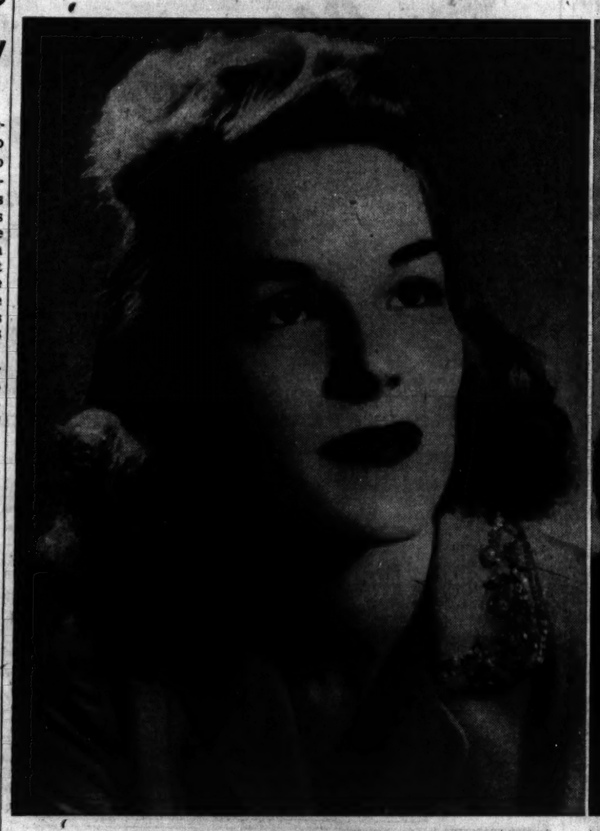

The faculty of Ferry hall will give a formal supper-dance tonight for 100 students and their escorts. The party will start at 7:30 o'clock in the north building of the school.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Highest Paid Woman Executive.

At the end of March, Sarah M. Sheridan, vice president in charge of sales and service of the Detroit Edison company, officially retires after 51 years in business. For several of those years she was the highest paid woman executive in America—a distinction undreamed of when she began to work as an office girl a half century ago.

Commenting upon her retirement the president of the company, A. C. Marshall, paid her a sincere and simply phrased tribute as high as any woman in business could hope to achieve.

"I have worked closely with Miss Sheridan for many years," he said, "and know her, first, as a fine and gracious gentlewoman and, secondly, as a business woman outstanding in the city and our whole industry in the technique of handling people and gaining their respect and coöperation."

We Can Learn from Her.

Any one of us in business can learn from Miss Sheridan, for we need to be reminded repeatedly of the value of being a fine and gracious gentlewoman first and, secondly, an outstanding business woman.

"The first thing I noticed about her was her voice," Alex Dow, then president of the company, remarked a few years ago. "She had a soft voice. . . . She knew everybody, always could tell the exact status of a customer's business, and had a remarkable memory for names, dates, and transactions, and had a way of handling the public without friction, untangling snarls and getting things done quickly, quietly, and efficiently."

Mr. Dow felt that "the qualities which made her succeed were exactly the same qualities which lead a man to success: fine executive ability and organizing power, a sense of justice and fair play which almost leaned over backward in giving the public a square deal, initiative, and the ability to make prompt decisions." At the time she was elected vice president in 1921 he summed it up thus: "She has done everything for the company but string wires."

Her Creed.

But perhaps her prime success lay in an imaginative grasp of the customer's needs and wants and viewpoint. Once she expressed her creed this way:

"All of our work originates with or develops from these 12 million transactions with the company's customers—day in and day out we do the same tasks in the same manner for different people. To us these matters become routine—but to the customer his transaction is a particular affair. To us it is like a thousand others—to him it may be an event. We speak of 'the public,' sometimes 'our public,' other times 'the dear public.' They are 'our public' and our 'dear public,' for without them we would have no jobs.

"But who are the public anyway? You and I and our neighbors and your father-in-law and his cousins, and the man in the next street. . . . If we think of all these people as individuals like ourselves instead of somewhat hazy figures lining up one after another to be dealt with according to certain routine, we will do much more satisfactory work."

Gay Blouses Important to Bolero Suits

BY REA SEEGER.

So much emphasis is being placed on the slim, trim silhouette of new bolero jacket suits that the average shopper seems to overlook the high fashion importance of the blouse collections. For the blouse worn with any bolero suit is as much a part of the costume as the jacket or the skirt.

The casual freedom of wearing a jacket and skirt duet, with or without a blouse, is gone for this season. Bolero suits, crisp, young, and very high fashion, have the briefest of jackets and the straightest of skirts. Therefore, the blouses must dramatize them, just as vestees, or gilets, dramatize other types of suits.

Blouses with long sleeves, preferably long, gathered affairs ending in cuffs, are ideal contrasts for bolero jackets; also blouses with interesting high neck lines that are tied with soft bows and frilled center front panel blouses. Since nearly all jacket sleeves are long and fashioned with flared cuffs to turn back, even more of a decorative blouse sleeve is necessary. And, while simple, tailored French cuffs are always good fashion, the more effective or dramatic cuffs are those with ruffled edges and those tied with bows.

Snowy white blouses, in heavy rayon, thick and luxurious like real silk, lead the list; next come delightfully sheer materials like organdy, chiffon, marquisette, and lace; third, handsome piques, eyelet embroidery and hand sewn lawns, dimities, and dotted Swisses. But gay colored blouses are something to envy, too; white splashed with a spray of handpainted flowers high on the left shoulder, white backgrounds spattered with coin size, brilliantly colored printed dots, candy stripes, and crackling beauties of patterned taffetas, surahs, and shantung silks.

INSTALMENT XVIII.
POLICE DISCUSSION.

Vyner's face was as expressionless as he could make it.

"How long did you wait for Dr. Horton, Mrs. Ambrose?"

"About half an hour. And then I got frightened again, wondering what was happening to Rena, so I went home. I ran all the way, but she was quite all right."

"And was she still asleep?"

"O, yes. My husband was so angry."

"He had missed you?"

"O, yes. He was out looking for me when I got back. Then he came in and was frightfully angry."

"What time did he get in?"

"I don't know—it must have been getting late—I know I was longing to get to bed."

"Did your husband say where he had been?"

Supt. Vyner sat in a solid armchair and faced the chief constable across a comfortable hearth. The chief constable was Col. Bostock, a wiry little man with a brown wrinkled face, bright twinkling eyes, and cheerful expression. He was 60 years old, and had the air of having enjoyed every minute of them.

Vyner had just used the word murder.

"You don't say so!"

"It's not me, sir—it's Dr. Frith. And Dr. Horton couldn't contradict him, tho he'd have been glad enough if he could. Of course if you put it to me, I'd say that Dr. Frith was in the right of it. It was murder all right. He was pushed, and I'd say he was pushed by some one who knew that he'd got the habit of standing by that parapet and having a look at the view."

"That's all very well, but who was to know what time he'd go to bed?"

"O, no, sir. But last night, you see, all those 10 people who had dinner with him, well, they'd heard him say he'd be sitting up in his study till 12 o'clock. He'd brought a serious accusation against one of them. You've got Miss Paradine's statement there—well, she denies the whole thing. She wouldn't have done that if she hadn't thought the others would back her up. What they hadn't reckoned with was my getting hold of Mrs. Ambrose before they'd the chance of telling her what to say."

Col. Bostock gave a short, dry sniff.

"Mrs. Ambrose? Let's see—she's Irene. Lydia's the red-haired one. Old Pennington's daughters. The girls went to school with mine. Wait a minute—there was something about one of them . . . it was the other one, Irene—girl who looked as if butter wouldn't melt in her mouth."

Vyner considered it time to recall his chief constable from these reminiscences.

"Well, sir, you see, once I had got that statement from Mrs. Ambrose it wasn't any good the others holding out. I had the sister in next, Miss Lydia Pennington—a very intelligent young lady, if I may say so—and she saw at once that the game was up. I read her what Mrs. Ambrose had said, and she agreed that it was correct so far as it went. Only she tried very hard to get it across that Mr. Paradine mightn't have meant very much after all, and that he expected every one in the family to do just what they were told."

"Well, that's true enough. Every one knows that. Very able man—very able indeed. Bit of an autocrat. Bit of a tryant, I shouldn't wonder."

"Yes, sir—that's the impression Miss Pennington wanted to give. There's her statement."

"Yes—yes. Well, it's all quite true. Who did you have next?"

"Mr. Ambrose. You've got his statement there. Very short and to the point. But he didn't like making it. Looked like fury when I read him what his wife had said. But he didn't deny it—said he had no idea what his step-father meant, but thought there wasn't much in it—said Mr. Paradine had been overworking, and considered he'd gone off the deep end about something that was probably not very important. When I asked him whether he was out again after he got home, he said yes, he went out to look for his wife. When I asked him how he knew where to look for her he said he didn't but she might have gone round to the doctor's because she was always getting into a state about the children and the telephone was out of order. It sounds a bit thin, you know, sir."

Col. Bostock said, "O, I don't know." And then, "Good lord, man, what are you suggesting—that Ambrose trekked all the way back to the River house to push old Paradine off?"

"Well, sir, when you say all the way back—it's not that far."

"Took them a quarter of an hour to drive it."

"Yes, sir—to drive it. But it wouldn't be more than 6 or 7 minutes by the footbridge and along the river path."

Col. Bostock gave a long whistle.

"The footbridge! Of course the Ambroses are in Meadowcroft. It's no distance at all by the footbridge. Did he say how long he was out, or when he came in?"

"He said he couldn't say—said he didn't look at his watch. And that doesn't sound natural to me, sir, because when a man's waiting for a woman, and especially if he's a bit worked up, why, he'd keep looking at his watch all the time—I've done it myself."

"H'm! Let's have a look at what the fellow says." He scanned the statement and put it down again. "Well, you know, Vyner, it might have happened just as he says. That girl Irene—Mrs. Ambrose—how did she strike you? Is she the sort to go rushing off for old Horton in the middle of the night like she says?"

"Well, yes, sir—she struck me that way."

"Not much of a head on her shoulders? She used to come about the house when my girls were at home, but I don't know that I've said three words to her since she married. But there was something about this girl Irene—I must ask my daughters when they come in."

The superintendent abandoned Mrs. Ambrose.

"I saw the other four men after Mr. Ambrose—Mr. Mark Paradine, Mr. Richard Paradine, Mr. Pearson and Mr. Wray. I didn't get anything that you could add to the Ambrose statements. There isn't any doubt that Mrs. Ambrose gave a pretty fair account of what took place. I didn't read them her statement. I just told each of them that both she and Mr. Ambrose had described a painful incident which took place at the dinner table last night. I think they're all telling the truth as far as they go, but of course they're not saying anything they don't have to."

"Quite—quite. Painful predicament for a family."

North-South were proudly using a system that prescribes a one club bid for hands containing 3½ honor-tricks, with an artificial one diamond response to show less than 1½ honor-tricks. So South blithely bid one club, and after a pass by West [who, knowing the opponents' system, also knew when silence was golden], North obediently responded with one diamond. East meekly passed and now South named his best suit, spades. West had the nerve and patience to pass again, and now it was up to North. Beyond question, he should have passed, but the psychological effect of that opening club bid was too much for him. Maybe South really had a few clubs, North thought; anyway, one spade couldn't be a very good contract. So North bid two clubs.

East passed again, and South now trotted out his other major suit, hearts, for his partner's consideration. West, however, got there first. He had passed long enough, he figured; the time for action had arrived if he was not to "miss his market" completely. So he doubled. North passed, and so did East, but now South went in for a little "maybe" thinking. Maybe North really had a diamond suit of sorts; certainly, South was not crazy about a doubled two heart contract, with his short trump suit. So South bid three diamonds. West doubled that too, and there the bidding stopped.

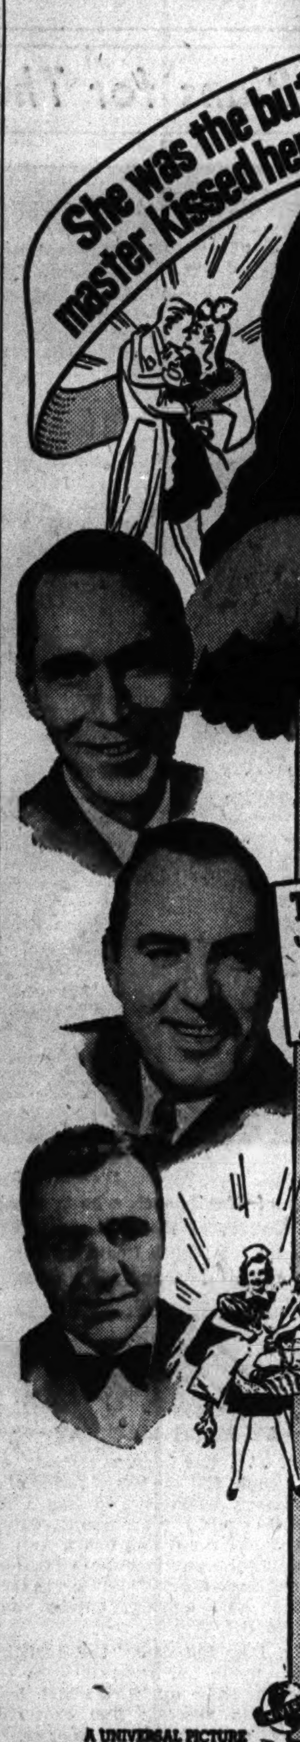

Poor North was not happy in his three diamond, doubled, contract. East got off to the beautiful lead of the diamond jack, and the defenders, reversing the usual order of things, drew all the trumps. Next, they collected four club tricks, and, to make a gruesome story at least short, North-South wound up with three tricks—the ace of spades and the A-K of hearts. Down 1,700!

Mother Should Probe Causes of Nervousness

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Did you ever try to think out and pin down some of the reasons why mothers become so acutely nervous that life is scarcely worth living, for either themselves or their children? I have so many letters from mothers who find themselves in this dilemma, and are absolutely distracted. So suppose I try to help a little by opening the windows mentally, letting in lots of light, and seeing whether we cannot pull out and examine some possible causes of mother's nervousness. Let us even be categorical and list them:

[1] Small rooms in small apartments have something to do with it. Cramped living is hard on most persons' nerves, especially when they have children.

[3] A congenitally nervous or extremely emotional temperament may be another element in the situation.

[4] Next we come to fatigue, and chronic fatigue in women is one of the biggest causes of irritability and lack of control. Putting aside actual ill health as a cause for the moment, this tiredness may be due either to attempting to do too much or to being a poor manager, or to just being one of those persons who hasn't much vitality.

[5] Lack of understanding of a little child's needs and nature, and an absence of sympathy with him often are responsible for impatience and easy irritability.

[6] And then a whole cluster of other causes may be at the root of the trouble, and each may contribute its share: things such as money, worry, conflicts with one's husband, or the serious interference of relatives.

Suppose, if you are really in a "state," you go carefully over that list of possible reasons for your trials and tribulations, and quite honestly check the ones you think tie up with your situation.

Kappa Alpha Thetas to Mark 74th Year at Luncheon Today

Alumnae and active members of Chicago and neighboring towns will gather at 12:15 p. m. today in the Georgian room at Carson Pirie Scott & Co. to observe the 74th anniversary of Kappa Alpha Theta, oldest Greek letter fraternity for women, at a founders' day luncheon.

The special guest for the occasion will be Mrs. W. F. Browder of Chicago, oldest living member, who will participate in a ritual commemorating the founding of the first chapter in 1870 at De Pauw university, Greencastle, Ind., then Asbury college.

In Illinois, Theta members support a project for handicapped children, and Mrs. B. C. Curtis, central committee chairman, will give a talk at the luncheon on case histories of children who have benefited. Miss Margaret Saurer will act as toastmistress, and Miss Marian and Miss Frances Beeler of Northwestern university will sing. Heading the arrangements committee is Mrs. Albert K. Sawyer.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

Brown sugar which has hardened in a block is difficult to use in cooking. Many homemakers call the food department to inquire about softening lumpy or rock-like brown sugar.

If the sugar is kept in a tightly covered canister, a glass jar with a metal screw-cap, or in the bread box, it will remain soft or will soften overnight or within a few days. To hurry the job so the sugar may be used immediately is more difficult. About the best method is to place the sugar in a bowl, wring a cloth out of extremely hot water, then place the cloth over the bowl. This process is repeated until the sugar absorbs enough steam to relax a bit. If the sugar is merely lumpy, not rock solid, application of a rolling pin may make it usable. . . . Brown sugar should always be packed firmly in the cup.

A related problem is that of softening hard cookies. Cookies made with molasses, honey, or other sirup often are extremely hard when first made but soften after a day or two, especially if stored in an airtight container. To soften cookies, or to keep them soft, store in a tightly covered canister or for a short time in the bread box. If kept in the bread box for any great length of time they may soften too much. A slice of raw apple in the top of the can or jar in which they are stored will speed the softening.

Crisp cookies should be kept in an ordinary cookie jar. Damp weather may cause them to soften, but in most cases they may be dried out again in a moderate oven. . . . It's well to bake refrigerator cookies in small amounts, so that they may be eaten fresh and crisp.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, CAL., Jan. 28.—I wonder if you feel as I do about Charles Boyer? He can play any romantic part that comes along for my pleasure. Well, he'll team up with Deanna Durbin in "Strangers." There'll be many who think Boyer is too sophisticated for Deanna, but the story's about just that. Again Felix Jackson will produce. Felix believes Deanna can stand on merit as an actress without song, just as Ginger Rogers did without dancing. . . . There's a deal cooking for Diana Lynn to play Irene Dunne's daughter in "Tonight and Every Night." . . . Director Tim Whelan will produce his own play, "Dr. Pilgrim's Progress," in New York next August. He's already engaged Donald Cook and Alan Mowbray for it. Now he's deep in the heart of another Sinatra picture.

Advice Free.

Orson Welles seems to think because he announced himself as a comedian he is one. Well, Orson better send an S O S for his Mercury players and get back to horror quickly or those who loved him on the radio will turn him off. . . . When Warners told me Marilyn Miller's picture would be "Silver Lining," they didn't know that the life of Jerome Kern was titled that. However, it was Marilyn who introduced that song. . . . Understand picture "Palladium Blonde" will star John Boles, if he can be pried loose from "One Touch of Venus." . . . Lt. Comdr. Doug Fairbanks is fighting yellow jaundice and flu at the same time.

Strange Ideas.

Katharine Hepburn kept the big boys, and I mean the big boys, at M-G-M squirming in their seats for two hours while she gave them the story of Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra," which she wants to do. If you've read it, you'll know Will Hays could never pass it. But the boys listened patiently. . . . I talked with Ingrid Bergman just after she got in from five weeks in Alaska. She said, "O, what a wonderful memory. It's such beautiful country. They're having a mild winter—not nearly as cold as I expected." . . . Boys there haven't seen "For Whom the Bell Tolls" yet, but "Casablanca" was a hit. She enjoyed talking to the fellows after and between shows and answering questions. They talked mostly about their children, asked about her child. Lots of them thought she looked like their sister or wife. Neil Hamilton and the three girls who sang and danced did it well. If our Hollywood stars knew what joy they'd be giving themselves—they'd all go. Said she, "I hate to fly, but I'm looking forward to going out again."

Come Now.

Uncle Sam won't like it. After Spike Jones and his band sold $93,000 worth of war bonds at U. S. C., the prexy there declared such entertainers appealed to mob psychology and are responsible for juvenile delinquency. Then he added to the assembled students that next time they'd want to bring Sinatra here. One of the students piped up, "We're working on that!" . . . Jim Dolan turned agent, signed 17 year old Tommy Lane. . . . Jack Oakie again is making headlines at Jim Dolan's club, but not the kind you can print. . . . Republic's sure gathering a cast for Newcomer Vera Hruba Ralston—Eric von Stroheim, Richard Arlen, Mona Barrie, and Otto Kruger. . . . Mother knows best. Rosemary La Planche, Miss America of 1941, was offered $5,000 for 10 weeks in a Rio de Janeiro night club, but mamma said no.

What a Change.

The Ross Sisters [Diamond Horseshoe], seen in M-G-M's "Broadway Rhythm," former Okies and once interviewed by John Steinbeck on their Dustbowl farm, have signed at Metro for $1,200 per week. These kids and their parents once worked for $1 a day! . . . Baby Snooks will soon be a grandmother. Even so, I wish I could tell you the advice Charles Mendl gave her not long ago about love, when she asked about it. . . . Creepy feeling listening to an announcement, "You're about to hear Jimmy McHugh's ballad 'The Music Stopped.'" Then sure enough it stopped for a news flash. . . . Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom cracked about a Hollywood star, "It's not hard to live on a small salary, if you don't spend it all trying to keep it a secret."

Art Institute to Put Rare 15th Century Carving on Exhibit

A carved wooden bust of St. Margaret attributed to Nikolaus Gerhaert of Leyden, 15th century artist, the number of whose surviving works is very small, will go on exhibit at the Art institute Feb. 1 in the recent accessions gallery to the right of the front entrance, the institute announced yesterday.

This is the bust which Dr. Oswald Goetz of the institute's decorative arts department saw one day last summer when he was wandering thru a collection in a New York store. He recognized Gerhaert's work even tho the bust had been badly painted and miscatalogued as a 16th century Spanish item. He knew not only Gerhaert's style and idiom but also the history of his lost works.

The Art institute acquired the St. Margaret and entrusted it to Joseph Ternbach of New York for restoring. When the overpainting had been removed the bust emerged as a carving of rare beauty. Dr. Goetz calls the St. Margaret "one of the most important sculptures of the late middle ages."

Deanna Durbin Attains a New Charm in Film

"HIS BUTLER'S SISTER."

A Universal picture, directed by Frank Borzage, starring Deanna Durbin, with Franchot Tone, Pat O'Brien, Alan Mowbray, Akim Tamiroff, and Frank Jenks, and presented at the Palace.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

This picture might be described as Deanna Durbin's "shining hour," for it shows her released from the gray cocoon of awkward adolescence, introduces her as a woman of charm and "pers" [see Walter Catlett's pronunciation of "poise"], and reveals a dramatic actress blessed with those two great gifts—intuition and sense of timing. All this, plus the boon of the lovely voice that had us gaga when she made her first appearance as a child prodigy.

And it's Deanna's 13th movie!

Nothing was spared to put her over. They gave her one of the best directors in the business and a cast to reckon with. Besides Franchot Tone, she has a retinue of expert leading men, headed by that star in his own right, Pat O'Brien, playing the butler whose sister she is. Other butlers, in a perfect rash of below stairs czars, are Akim Tamiroff and Alan Mowbray—and very swell! Of Mr. O'Brien I must state reluctantly that he just ain't no butler. Too much of the top sergeant in him. . . . He keeps, figuratively speaking, getting out of hand and slapping himself down. Can't get the hang of that gentleman's gentleman stuff. . . . Well—he was a good sport to try.

As Martin Murphy he buttles and valets for the debonair composer, Charles Gerard, who resides ritzily in a Park avenue penthouse. . . .

From this imposing address he has kept in touch with his little sister, Ann, who lives away off somewhere in a town called Centerville—studying voice. . . . This, Martin doesn't know. . . . And Ann is ignorant of Martin's activities. . . . She believes him to be a very rich man. So—one fine day she comes to visit him. While in New York she will sing for Charles Gerard and he will make her a star and. . . . That's what she THINKS. . . .

Let the picture reveal how she becomes a maid, the heart's desire of every butler—and chauffeur—in the building, and the mystery woman in Mr. Tone's life. Step by step the path leads upward, but it's a rough old road in spots.

Thru the Looking Glass

Today we want to sing a song in praise of an old and all but forgotten item, smelling salts! Don't snicker. They may be a bit Victorian, but they are wonderfully useful items in these hectic days.

If you travel without them you're missing a very good bet. Having done a good bit of globe trotting lately we can speak with authority—and some heat—on the horrors of crowded trains, hot ones, late ones, dinerless ones. And we can speak, too, on the food situation. When you travel nowadays for two or three days at a stretch you're apt to be hungry, to have the unsatisfied sensation that every meal you ate was more like a light breakfast than anything else. You stood in queues for them too.

A whiff of smelling salts—you can choose your flavor from a variety of good ones—is the best pickup we know of when sheer tiredness and discomfort and crowding upset you, as inevitably happens. The aromatic lift steadies your queasy stomach and helps clear the fog from your troubled, tired eyes. Using them actually will help avert a headache.

And when you have jitters, as all seem to be having them lately, your little flask of salts is a great help. A couple of deep breaths and your nerves are magically calmed. If your working conditions are such that you live in fear of hysterics some particularly mad, bad day, keep smelling salts in your pocketbook. They help you thru all nerve racking crises, from shopping in huge crowds to attacks of stage fright.

The Victorians had a good idea in smelling salts. War-harassed moderns should steal this leaf from their book. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Meeting Gives Spur to Benefit for Settlement

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

The luncheon rally that the board of the Northwestern University settlement gave yesterday at the Chicago Arena to spur ticket sales to its benefit performance of the "Ice-Capades of 1944" Feb. 29 at the Arena was a most informal affair, with Mrs. Roger Faherty, chairman of the benefit; Theodore Butz, a board member; Clyde Bedell, board president; Mrs. Norman Westerhold, a vice president, and others serving as waiters and waitresses. The highlight, as always at settlement meetings, was the touching and inspired talk given by Miss Harriet Vittum, who has spent 38 years as head resident of the settlement.

"There is no longer a senior boys department at the settlement," she told the luncheon guests. "It is represented by the settlement service flag which contains 392 stars, 11 of which are gold."

Picturing the settlement as a chameleon pinned to the lapel of the neighborhood and changing to meet the neighborhood's needs, she told of looking forward to the return from war of neighborhood boys with widened horizons and interests.

"Will they find us with our blinders on?" she asked. "Having had the best of diet, clothing, shelter, and care in the army and a proper pride in themselves, will they find the younger members of their families still existing in uncomfortable homes?"

The money that is raised at the benefit will go to carry on the work of the settlement, which has passed the half century mark. Two prizes will be offered during the evening, $100 and a $50 merchandise certificate.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Mrs. Bill K., Chicago—Many folks who are moving must store their furniture in attics or unoccupied rooms. Here's a precaution I take: I protect that part of furniture subject to moth attacks as I protect a woolen garment. The woodwork of furniture I wash with thick suds, follow with damp cloth, and dry. Then I apply a coat of paste wax and polish. After that I use heavy kraft paper to keep pieces free from dust. And I always keep in mind that a cold room is not as hard on furniture as a hot room.

Mrs. Andrew H., Cedar Rapids, Ia.—I never use clothespins for silks or synthetics. I just hang them loosely over a line or a drying rack.

Elinor G., Chicago—I soak my egg stain on table linen or garment in cold water before laundering it.

Card Party Today Will Benefit House of Good Shepherd

One of the larger benefits being held today is the annual card party for the House of the Good Shepherd, pioneer institution dating from 1859 for unfortunate women committed to the care of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

The auxiliary of the home, a service club headed by Mrs. George J. Aste, is sponsor of the party, which is set for 2 p. m. in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel. Mrs. James A. Conlan heads the managing committee.

The tradition of exquisite needlework associated with convents is a mark of the House of the Good Shepherd, and Miss Nellie Harper and an assisting committee have arranged for an exhibit at the party of the linens made at the home under the instruction of the nuns.

PENSION INCOME IN USUAL FORM SUBJECT TO TAX

Levy Also Must Be Paid on Part of Annuity.

(This is the tenth of a series of articles on the individual income tax.)

Income from pensions and annuities is generally taxable in full or in part, but some types are specifically exempt by law.

Old age and survivor's benefit payments under the social security act are exempt by law from income and victory tax. Pensions paid under the railroad retirement acts of 1935 and 1937 are exempt from any tax.

A war veteran of any country is exempt from tax on a pension, annuity, or other allowance for personal injury or sickness resulting from active service.

The ordinary retirement pay of a member of the army or navy no longer on active duty represents fully taxable income. Pensions and other compensation received by a veteran or his family for services he rendered in time of war generally are specifically exempted from tax by the law under which they are paid. Otherwise they are subject to tax.

Distinction and Annuities.

A distinction is drawn, for income tax purposes, between pensions and annuities. The distinction is that the beneficiary shares in the cost of an annuity but does not contribute toward the cost of a pension.

Annuities are fixed benefits received in consideration of previous payments or investments. The common forms are contracts issued by insurance companies in return for the payment of a flat sum by the beneficiary, and matured endowment life insurance payable to the beneficiary in monthly or annual sums.

Pensions commonly are payments by an employer to a retired employe in consideration of his past services, with the employe making no monetary contribution toward the cost of the pension.

In those cases where the employe and his employer both contribute to a retirement fund, the benefits received, altho called pensions, are treated as annuities for income tax purposes. Civil service and teachers' retirement pensions are familiar examples of pensions taxed as annuities.

Only Interest Taxable.

Income received in the form of a pension, as defined, is fully taxable. Income from an annuity, since it represents in part a return of capital invested by the beneficiary, is taxable only on that portion which represents interest on the money paid in.

The taxable portion of an annuity is fixed by law at 3 per cent of the cost until there has been excluded from gross income an amount equal to the amount paid for the contract or policy. Thereafter, the entire amount of annuity income is subject to tax.

The cost of a straight annuity is the single premium paid. The cost of an annuity paid under an endowment or other life insurance policy is the sum of the premiums paid. Annuity income must be reported whether the annuity is received as a gift or as the proceeds, to a beneficiary, of a life insurance policy issued to another person.

An employe who contributed to a pension fund can claim as cost only the amount he paid, and not any portion contributed by the employer.

How Pensions Are Taxed.

For a simple illustration, suppose a retired employe paid in $4,800 toward a retirement fund, and now receives a pension of $100 a month, or $1,200 a year. Only $114 [3 per cent of $4,800] is taxable each year until the untaxed portions aggregate $4,800.

Where a pension or annuity has been paid for only a portion of the year, only a proportionate part of each instalment payment must be included in gross income. This is determined by taking 3 per cent of the aggregate premiums or consideration paid, dividing by 12, and multiplying by the number of months covered by the instalment.

Pensions received from employes' trusts are treated as annuities. If the trust is exempt from income tax, the employe's contributions constitute his cost, and if he made no contributions the entire pension is taxable. If the trust is not exempt from tax, contributions made by the employer are added to those made by the employe in determining the latter's cost.

Husband Arraigned

MRS. ELSIE LA FORGE.

Jacques M. J. La Forge, 47 years old, 817 East 81st street, a language teacher at Englewood High school, was arraigned yesterday before Judge William J. Lindsay of the Superior court on a contempt charge involving the whereabouts of $700 worth of rare china and glassware. The charge was preferred by his ex-wife, Elsie, 31, of 10043 Morgan street, also a school teacher, who divorced him last Dec. 22. Her lawyers, Joseph H. and Norman Becker, charged that La Forge had failed to live up to a divorce settlement giving her the china and glassware, but La Forge's attorney, William G. Gillespie, asserted she had signed a receipt for the articles. Judge Lindsay ordered that the goods be sought, and continued the case to Feb. 4.

WRIT SMASHES HOPE OF EARLY TAX VALUATIONS

Philip W. Collins, Illinois revenue director, said yesterday that his hope of announcing assessment figures on railroads and capital stock early in February had been destroyed by a temporary injunction issued in Springfield, and that tax collections all over the state may be delayed for months.

The injunction was obtained in the Sangamon county Circuit court by 18 railroads. It restrains Collins from assessing at any ratio other than the 31 per cent he certified on Oct. 11 and withdrew in December after the Cook county assessor, John S. Clark, announced that he would assess at 100 per cent of actual value.

Fears Further Delay.

"We had planned to issue a final set of figures as soon as the Cook county assessment is complete," Collins said. "This injunction stops that and I fear it will have to go to the state Supreme court, which probably cannot consider it until it convenes in a regular term in March.

"Meanwhile the billing and collection of taxes in every county of the state will be paralyzed. All we can do is to be ready when the court says we can make an assessment. The delay and the litigation are due to the Cook county situation."

Collins said that Chief Justice June C. Smith of the Illinois Supreme court had refused on Thursday to issue an injunction, and that the revenue department had not been notified in advance of the Circuit court proceedings.

How Valuation Is Set.

State law requires that the revenue department assess railroads and utility capital stocks at a statewide average of valuation factors. The 102 counties assess at from 18 to 75 per cent of full value [in recent years Cook county's ratio was 37 per cent]. As Cook county has about half the wealth of the state, its weight preponderates and its 100 per cent stand probably will force the revenue department factor to something near 60 per cent.

This would save the railroads some money in Cook county, but cost them far more downstate. It is their contention that Collins had no legal right to increase the original 31 per cent ratio.

DELAY HEARING IN POLICEMAN'S SHOOTING CASE

Two charges of assault with intent to kill against Bernard Sweeney, 50 years old, suspended Chicago Lawn policeman, were continued to Feb. 18 yesterday by Judge Joseph H. McGarry in Felony court. He is accused of shooting Dominick Rozich, 16, of 3528 South Wells street, during a quarrel on a street car last Jan. 8. The boy since has undergone amputation of his right leg. Asst. State's Atty. Edmund Grant asked the continuance yesterday so that a full hearing may be had in Felony court before any attempt is made to present the case to the grand jury.

LIFE FOR TARPY, JURY VERDICT IN OFFICE SLAYING

J. Walter Tarpy of Evanston, 42 year old insurance agent, last night was found guilty in Criminal court of murdering his onetime friend and fellow worker, Walter G. Habenicht, and was sentenced to life imprisonment. The jury of eight men and four women deliberated three hours.

J. Walter Tarpy.

Habenicht was shot to death in his office in the Connecticut Mutual Life insurance company at 135 South La Salle street Oct. 4 after Tarpy charged into the office. Later Tarpy told police Habenicht was "the brains" of the mob that looted the vaults of the Portage Park State bank. It developed that Tarpy believed Habenicht used unfair methods to win an insurance sales contest.

Tarpy showed no emotion when the verdict was read. His attorney, William Scott Stewart, who had pleaded for an insanity verdict that would send him to the state security hospital at Menard, said he would confer with Tarpy's relatives about future steps. Judge Harold G. Ward said he would hear a motion for a new trial Feb. 4. Habenicht, who was 43, and Tarpy had worked in the same insurance office before Habenicht became office manager of the Connecticut company.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 28.—Capt. Ted Lyons of the White Sox and Pitcher Bernard Kuczynski of the Athletics are the only American league players in the marine corps. . . . Howard [Babe] Graves, son of Perry Graves, the Big Nine football official, is a sports writer for the Robinson [Ill.] Daily News. . . . This is the first year in which National Hockey league players have been guaranteed the equivalent of their regular season salaries for participating in the Stanley Cup play-offs. . . . There have been times in the past when players whose clubs were forced out in the early rounds of the post-season competition had to play for bargain rates, even less than the amateur scale. . . . Aside to Mrs. Nicholas Lind of Chicago: Cornelius Warmerdam's best vault in the Chicago Stadium was 15 feet 8½ inches, which also is the world indoor record. . . . In going from their hotel in French Lick to their new practice field in West Baden, Ind., the White Sox will have to cross a railroad track. . . . Even the daydreamers on the roster, however, will not be in danger; there is only one train a day each way on the line. . . . A Chicago press agent was in Joe Pozner's grill in the Chicago Stadium the other night after a hockey game. . . . He beheld a dour figure standing near the cigar counter. . . . Addressing the grouch, the P. A. said jovially, "Hey, Drizzlepuss, have a drink and cheer up!" . . . The somber gent replied, "I resent your familiarity and your prescription, and my resentment would be deeper if I didn't think you had me confused with Joe Farrell, the Blackhawk press chief." . . . The roisterer apologized, admitted he had thought he was talking to Farrell, and lurched away. . . . The singular part of the story is that it WAS Farrell. . . .

Joe Farrell.

Luis Firpo.

Mel Hein, veteran center of the New York football Giants, is starring as a basketball player in a Schenectady [N. Y.] Y. M. C. A. league. . . . Early figures indicate that all six clubs in the National Hockey league will show profits for the current season. . . . Only one prize fight picture hangs in the home of Luis Angel Firpo in Argentina. . . . That would be, of course, the shot of Jack Dempsey hurtling thru the ropes at the Polo Grounds. . . . Bill Baier of Chicago's Division Street Y. M. C. A., national junior singles and co-doubles handball champion, will be inducted into the navy tomorrow. . . . President Grace Comiskey of the White Sox says she will not accompany the boys to their French Lick training camp, as she did in 1943. . . . She'll wait until the resort band goes to work. . . . Mrs. Comiskey is an expert in all the more graceful dances and gave lessons when the carioca was in vogue.

Ten Years of Vice.

Da Vinci, who had worked for ten long years
On "The Last Supper"—his great masterpiece—
Was one day searching thru the prison tiers,
Where he had been admitted by police,
To find a Judas model. Suddenly
He stopped before a cell where a depraved
And leering creature looked up guiltily,
A creature past all hope of being saved.

He brought the doomed one to his studio
To pose for Judas, and while working there
He seemed to note an old familiar glow
Of goodness that was buried in despair;
And so he asked: "Have I not seen your face
Somewhere before?" The culprit bowed his head,
"Ah, yes! Ten years ago in this same place
I was the model for your Christ," he said.

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 28 [Special].—The undefeated University of Iowa basketball team won its 10th straight game tonight, 43 to 42, from Indiana university in the closing 40 seconds of a contest that was close all the way.

It was Dave Danner's setup shot in the last 30 seconds when he caught a deflected pass under his own basket that gave the Hawkeyes the victory and kept them in three way tie for the Big Ten lead.

With less than a minute to play, Ray Brandenburg hit from the side to give the Hoosiers a 42 to 41 lead. On a fast break, Iowa got two shots at the basket, but missed on both and Dick Peed recovered. His pass-out struck Postels' arm, bounced into Danner's hands, and he scored with a simple push shot to sew up the victory.

Danner Scores 17 Points.

Indiana took an early lead and was ahead most of the game, altho the lead changed hands eight times and the score was tied 10 times. Iowa, however, never had more than a two point lead, while the Hoosiers had leads of five and four points for a good part of the game.

Danner again paced the Hawkeyes' scoring with 17 points. He and his running mate, Dick Ives, together scored 30 of Iowa's 43 points. Paul Shields with 15 points, was Indiana's high scorer.

OHIO, 53; MICHIGAN, 49

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 28 [Special].—Ohio State's basketball team beat Michigan tonight in the final minute of play, 53 to 49, in a battle that saw the lead change hands 15 times. It was the Buckeyes' fourth Big Ten victory, against one defeat, while the Wolverines have now dropped six of their seven conference engagements.

The Buckeyes' superior height, with a starting quintet that averaged 6 feet 4 inches, was the main factor in their victory. Center Arnold Risen, 6 feet 8½ inches in height, led a second half Ohio drive and finished with 22 points. However, Michigan's Tommy King was the game's high scorer with 27 points on 11 goals and five free throws.

Game Tied at Intermission.

The first seven minutes of the game provided the fastest bit of action seen here this year, with the lead changing hands nine times before Michigan pulled ahead, 13 to 8. The Wolverines maintained a lead of four or five points until late in the first period, when the Buckeyes spurted to knot the count at the intermission, 23 to 23.

Midway in the second half Ohio built up a 44 to 35 lead, but King went on a personal scoring spree that finally gave Michigan a 45 to 44 edge. The count was worked to 49-49 when, with a minute to go, Jack Dugger put the game away with a free throw after being fouled by Don Lund. A goal by Don Grate and another foul toss by Risen accounted for the final score. The lineups:

PURDUE, DE PAUL PLAY TONIGHT ON STADIUM CARD

N. U. Meets Seahawks in Double Header Opener.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Purdue's undefeated Big Ten basketball leaders face De Paul in the second game of the Stadium double header tonight which holds promise of matching the closely fought contests last week. The Demons, after 13 consecutive victories, still are seeking a new start to end the debit marks on their record by Valparaiso and Marquette.

In the first game tonight the Iowa Seahawks make their Chicago debut against Northwestern which also owns a share of the conference leadership. The Seahawks have averaged 52 points for 13 games this season and have been defeated only by Iowa State. They evened this, however, in a return contest.

Northwestern Recovers.

Northwestern has recovered from its strenuous play last week-end when the Wildcats defeated Notre Dame and Ohio State on successive nights and two days later were defeated by Great Lakes. The latter defeat was the second of the season for Northwestern but the Wildcats won the first of the series from the Bluejackets and can explain that their opening defeat by Western Michigan possibly was due to the absence of Capt. Otto Graham.

Northwestern still is pursued by the flu bug, however, for Ben Schadler, regular guard will not start tonight. Schadler's place will be taken by Ronnie Schumacher. Jerry Carle, spirited guard, retains his position.

Kachan Back with Demons.

DePaul will present its regular lineup for the first time in two weeks as Ed Kachan, freshman guard, has won his bout with influenza. Kachan's spot in the Marquette game was taken by Dick Triptow, regular forward, who so impressed Coach Ray Meyer with his defensive ability that he probably will be retained at the back court position tonight. The change, if it is made, will send Gene Stump, who formerly paired with Kachan, to forward.

Jack Dean, forward, and big George Mikan, center, who holds the Stadium scoring record of 27 points, complete the Demons lineup.

Bill Lodge Ineligible.

Purdue will meet De Paul without the services of Bill Lodge, center and pivot man for the Boilermakers' attack. It was announced yesterday afternoon that Lodge, a navy V-12 student, would not be permitted to make the trip because of scholastic deficiency.

Lodge injured his ankle in the first game with Michigan last week and Steve Frazier, who took his place in the second game, will start tonight in the Stadium.

BADGERS PLAY GOPHERS

Madison, Wis., Jan. 28 [Special].—Coach Harold [Bud] Foster today named 11 University of Wisconsin basketball players to make the trip to Minneapolis where the Badgers return to the Big Ten basketball race tomorrow against the University of Minnesota.

The Badgers will depend on the same starting lineup that twice defeated Michigan two weeks ago. Ray Patterson will be at center, Des Smith and Don Dick at forwards, and Russ Wendland teaming with Bill Johnson at the guards.

The Badgers, twice beaten in the conference race but with three victories, must come thru with a victory to stay in the race at all. Minnesota has lost its four Big Ten games.

Wildcat Swimmers Will Meet Ohio State Today

Northwestern university's swimming team will wind up its home schedule today with a dual meet against Ohio State in Patten gymnasium at 3 o'clock.

READY FOR SEAHAWKS

Coach Dutch Lonborg of Northwestern's Wildcats talks things over with three of his stars. Left to right: Capt. Otto Graham, forward; George Felt, center; Nick Vodick, forward, and Lonborg. The Wildcats will play the Iowa Seahawks in the first game of tonight's double header in Chicago Stadium. Purdue and De Paul will meet in the second game.

ANGOTT DRAWS WITH JACK IN GARDEN BATTLE

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Before Madison Square Garden's first sell-out crowd in a year, Sammy Angott and Beau Jack went ten rounds to a draw tonight in a battle between the two recognized world lightweight champions—but with neither title at stake. Angott scaled 140 pounds, Jack, 138.

It was a slugging match from start to finish and the draw decision found favor with the fans. The Associated Press scorecard also showed an even verdict, giving each fighter four rounds and calling the other two ties.

Referee Frankie Fullam gave each five rounds, Judge Charley Draycott voted 7 rounds to 3 for Sammy, while Judge Marty Monroe cast his ballot, 6 rounds to 4 for Beau.

Gate Totals $84,870.

Tonight's fight, put on for the entertainment of 19,113 customers, who paid $84,870, served as a preliminary to the forthcoming activities agreed upon earlier today to solve the lightweight title muddle.

Under this agreement, Jack will risk his New York crown against Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia on March 31 here. Then the winner agreed to go against Angott May 26, also in the Garden.

LA MOTTA BEATS HARRIS

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 28 (AP).—Jake LaMotta of New York encountered surprising difficulty tonight before outpointing Ossie [Bulldog] Harris of Pittsburgh, Pa., in a 10 round bout in Olympia stadium. LaMotta weighed 158½, half a pound more than Harris.

Before 8,751 fans who paid $23,061, LaMotta got away to a good start but Harris opened an old injury over Jake's left eye in the fourth and Jake showed much more respect thereafter. There was no knockdown.

In another 10 rounder Billy Miller of Pittsburgh won his 22d consecutive victory with a unanimous decision over Jimmy Joyce of Gary, Ind.

Complete Plans for Ice Meet in Glen Ellyn

Justa Lindgren Retires from Illinois Staff After 40 Years

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 28 [Special].—Justa Lindgren, 65 years old, a member of the Illinois football staff for 40 years, announced his retirement from coaching today. Lindgren's tenure is possibly the longest at one school of any college coach associated with the game today.

Lindgren said he would submit his resignation to the board of directors of the university's athletic association. He has been associated with Illinois football teams 44 years, including four years as a player.

However, he said he plans to continue his work in the chemistry faculty.

An Outstanding Fundamentalist.

As Bob Zuppke's line coach, Lindgren became known as one of the outstanding fundamentalists in the game. In 1916, when the Illini upset Minnesota, 14 to 9, Lindgren was highly instrumental. He instructed the Illinois center to play a yard behind the line of scrimmage, a revolutionary practice at the time. Lindgren said today he still regarded Illinois' victory in that game as the greatest football upset of all time.

That was the famous occasion on which Minnesota had beaten all previous opponents by 40 or more points and the Illini had done well to break even in six starts.

Ring Lardner of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE wrote an open letter to the Illinois team before the game, advising the players to stop off in Chicago and enjoy a show, canceling the rest of the trip to Minnesota. When Illinois won, THE TRIBUNE ran the banner: "Hold on Tight When You Read This."

Starts at Cornell College.

That is still the most oft quoted headline in football.

Lindgren was graduated from Illinois in 1902 and signed as football coach at Cornell college, Mount Vernon, Ia. After two years he returned to Illinois to teach chemistry and coach football. Since then he has been line coach, except for one year, 1906, when he was head coach.

Illinois won Big Ten championships, in 1910, 1914, 1915, 1918, 1919, 1923, 1927, and in all those years only one man was head line coach. He was Justa M. Lindgren, today retired.

Veteran Boxers Return to Seek Golden Gloves

Mashino and Sparrow Enter Tournament.

Herb Mashino and Harry Sparrow, veteran amateur boxers now in military service, will begin their campaigns for Golden Gloves sectional championships Monday night in St. Sabina gymnasium, 78th street and Racine avenue. Mashino, a bantamweight, will represent Fort Sheridan, while Sparrow, a Chicagoan, will fight under the colors of the United States coast guard.

These veterans reached the quarter-finals of the Tournament of Champions last year in the Stadium. Sparrow, who before he enlisted had fought in Golden Gloves and the C. Y. O. tournament, entered the Tournament of Champions as winner in the Grand Rapids, Mich., Press tournament. A sparkling welterweight, who hits hard with either hand, Sparrow is intent on gaining the south side title and then qualifying as Chicago's city champion by winning in the finals in the Marigold Gardens, Feb. 14.

Harry Is Transferred.

A year ago Harry was stationed at Grand Haven, Mich., and thus entered the Grand Rapids tournament. He was recently transferred to the coast guard station at 91st street and the Calumet river. In the quarter-finals of the 1943 Tournament of Champions, Sparrow was beaten by Charles Busalacchi, Milwaukee champion, who now is stationed at Camp Grant, Ill., and who will compete for that army camp in the Stadium show Feb. 28, 29, and March 1.

Barney Bronstein, who also is in the coast guard, has enrolled in the St. Sabina sectional Monday.

Mashino is a native of Kansas City, Mo., and is the son of American born Japanese parents. He attended a military academy in Claremore, Okla., and Centenary college In his early amateur bouts, Mashino won the flyweight championship in the Oklahoma A. A. U. tournament

Lost in Quarter-Final.

Last year Mashino won the Camp Grant featherweight championship. In the quarter-finals of the Tournament of Champions he was beaten by Joe Luciana, Memphis, Tenn., champion from the Memphis navy station.

Monday's Golden Gloves bouts at St. Sabina will start at 7 o'clock. General admission is 75 cents and all seats are unreserved. Doors will open at 6:30 p. m.

SOLDIERS TO BOX

Chanute Field, Ill., Jan. 28 [Special].—Three soldier boxers from Chicago are members of the team from this camp which will compete in the Peoria, Ill., Golden Gloves tournament next Friday. Included in the Chanute team are Staff Sgt. Fred Cinereski, 350 West 56th place; Pvt. James Baratta, 208 South Karlov avenue, and Sgt. John Eames, 1935 North Francisco avenue.

Cinereski, a veteran of many soldier boxing cards here, will fight in the 160 pound open class. Baratta, who is post welterweight champion, will enter the 147 pound open competition, and Eames will take part in the heavyweight novice event.

HAWKS TO PLAY LEAFS TONIGHT; HOME TOMORROW

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago Blackhawks are in Toronto to play the Maple Leafs tonight, but most of the customers are unmindful of their absence from the city. The Hawks will be back in Chicago Stadium tomorrow night to engage the Detroit Red Wings, who have been more like buzzards in their recent swoops on the rest of the league. The Detroiters haven't lost in their last nine matches.

The Hawks, having whipped the Leafs, 5 to 3, no longer ago than last Sunday, have hopes of defeating the Leafs tonight, tho the game is to be played away from their beloved Chicago Stadium. One of the three games they have won away from Chicago was a 3 to 1 triumph in Toronto on Nov. 13. They aren't so sure about Sunday night's doings on the home rink.

Expect Capacity Crowd.

Staying on the subject of Toronto a bit longer, before turning to the Red Wings and tomorrow night's game in Chicago, it is mentioned that the Hawks last performed in Toronto on Jan. 6 and that evening absorbed a 6 to 1 spanking. The only Chicago goal was made by an amateur, a Toronto war plant worker, George Grigor. George is slated to play again tonight, but he will stay on his war job in Toronto.

And now for the game here tomorrow night, which probably will be viewed by a capacity crowd. The last time the Red Wings were here, on Dec. 22, the Hawks won by the rather startling score of 7 to 1. Many things have happened, mostly to the delight of the Wings, since that Chicago victory. The Hawks have added Goalie Mike Karakas and Defenseman Art Wiebe. The Wings have gone farther.

Detroit Team Strengthened.

The resurgence of the Detroiters is traceable to strengthening in all three departments. The defense boomed when the Red Wings obtained Flash Hollett from Boston. Then Manager Jack Adams came up with a miracle discovery in Goalie Asbestos Kid Dion and at about the same time the Canadian army gave honorable discharges to Murray Armstrong and Ken Kilrea, two brilliant veteran forwards.

NAVY PIER FIVE DEFEATS RADIO SCHOOL, 42 TO 40

Navy pier defeated the University of Chicago radio school, 42 to 40, in a Chicago Area Serviceman's Basketball league game last night to retain second place in the league standings. Fort Sheridan won a 47 to 40 decision from Camp Skokie to hold third place.

The Sailors were hard pressed in scoring their victory. Ahead, 19 to 17, at the half, Center Bob Damm and Guard Ted Banash paced the home team with 10 points apiece to avenge a loss to the radio school. Fort Sheridan led all the way, holding a 19 to 14 lead at the half.

Glenview holds first place in the league standings with six victories and no defeats. Last night's results give Navy pier seven victories and one loss, while Fort Sheridan has six victories and one loss. Lineups:

Renew Action in Petersen Meet Tonight

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The $32,000 Petersen Classic, bowling's richest extravaganza for the individual, will return to the ancient drives of the Archer-35th recreation at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon to open the final eight days of the battle which began last weekend. The target for the field will be the 1,564 with which 28 year old Charley Boehm, Highland Park, Mich., machinist, took the lead on last Saturday's opening squad and which was retained thru the efforts of six other squads to better it.

Expect New Leader.

The foul line clientele, however, expects that the Boehm total will be shunted out of first place thru the bowling of today and tomorrow, since a number of nationally recognized stars will go to the line in these two days. The tournament, which carries first prize of $5,000, second of $2,500, and third of $1,000, will continue daily thru next Sunday's final, which will find Ned Day, All-Star National individual match champion, making his thrust at the big money.

Waukegan Squad Scheduled.

Today's squad times are 12:30 p. m., 3:15 p. m., 6:15 p. m., and 9 p. m., while tomorrow's schedule calls for squads at 10:30 a. m., when an all-Michigan delegation will roll; 1:15 p. m., 4 p. m., 7 p. m. and 9:45 p. m.

Bob O'Farrell, former Cub and Cardinal catcher, will head a Waukegan group on today's 12:30 set. Other leading week-end pairings include the following:

TODAY.

3:15 p. m.—Edgar Winchester and Frank Serpico, Philadelphia; Clarence Hoffman, Detroit, and Edgar Koch, Milwaukee. 6:15 p. m.—Joe Norris and Walter Reppenhagen, Detroit, and Walter Wellman, Findlay, O. 9 p. m.—Cass Grygier, Detroit.

TOMORROW.

10:30 a. m.—Eddie Scott, Kalamazoo, Mich., and Bill Walsh and Jack Sharkey, Battle Creek, Mich. 1:15 p. m.—Frank Mataya, St. Louis. 4 p. m.—Joe Kissoff, Cleveland, O. 7 p. m.—Nelson Burton, St. Louis. 9:45 p. m.—Fred Bujack, Detroit.

The 10 leaders and their totals as the field goes into the final eight days, follows:

Charles Boehm, Highland Park, Mich., 1,564; Stan Korbas, Chicago, 1,550; Barney McCoy, Kansas City, 1,549; Ralph Eoff, Jacksonville, Ill., 1,539; Andrew Klopp, Chicago, 1,536; Jim Soptic, Kansas City, 1,535; Ed Cotter, Highland Park, Mich., 1,533; Andrew Piraino, Syracuse, N. LIFE COMPANIES FEEL THE PINCH OF BUROCRACY

Progress in life insurance resulting from the free play of the American competitive system would have been impossible if the business had been established under the present governmental burocracy, George A. White, president of the State Mutual Life Assurance company, Worcester, Mass., said yesterday. He addressed a meeting of the Executives' Club of Chicago in the Sherman hotel.

White asserted that the national administration's "arbitrary and artificial depreciation of interest rates under a managed currency for the obvious purpose of reducing the carrying charges on a mounting government debt" was partly responsible for the decline in insurance company investment yields from 5 to 3 per cent in the last 15 years.

Companies Show Coöperation.

He expressed the hope that future investment funds would not be "put in cold storage to become merely an adjunct to deficit financing," and declared the insurance companies had demonstrated their coöperation in war financing by investing more money in government bonds than the total represented by their increase in assets since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

White criticized the federal tax system which levies the same rates on white collar workers without benefit of increased salaries that it does on the war plant worker "who earns more in a week than he used to earn in a month." Pending bills to levy higher tax rates on those with war swollen earnings have little chance of passage, he said.

Altho insurance in force has reached 130 billion dollars, "the average coverage of American families is still wholly inadequate on any economic measure of worth," White said. If insurance had been begun as a bureau of government, the total assets of life companies never would have reached their present 30 billion dollar level, he declared.

CLEAR CONTROL BILL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—Legislation affirming "the intent of congress" that the insurance business be subject only to state control and not federal regulation was cleared today by the house rules committee for consideration from the floor. However, it is not expected to be taken up on the floor for several weeks.

Already approved by the judiciary committee, the legislation specifies that the Sherman and Clayton antitrust laws shall not apply to the insurance business.

CLEAR POLICIES URGED NOW ON RECONVERSION

Keller Warns Delay Means Confusion.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

President K. T. Keller of the Chrysler corporation last night called upon the government to make clear cut decisions of policy now on matters affecting the reconversion of industry to civilian production.

K. T. Keller.

Keller took issue with government officials who say the formulation now of reconversion policy would hinder production. The effect will be the contrary by raising the morale of industry, he said.

Keller urged that excess plant and industrial equipment remaining after the war be used to key up the efficiency of American plants to the highest possible point before any is shipped abroad for rehabilitation of other countries. He recommended further that the government tell now what government owned plants it will retain after the war for military purposes; also what privately owned industrial facilities will be needed in peace time to support the military services.

Delay Means Confusion.

Decisions made now by the military leaders will expedite the difficult job of changing over America's war plants to peace production. By delaying decisions unnecessary confusion will result to complicate a highly complex operation.

Specifically he urged that operators of government owned plants be advised at once if they are to be permitted to operate the facilities after the war; that arrangements be made for prompt removal of government machinery from private plants to avoid interference with peace time production; that a settled policy be adopted for the disposition of surplus equipment and materials owned by the government.

He suggested that government equipment and materials in both privately owned and publicly owned plants be put up for sale now under a "sensible pricing and disposal procedure" with the provision that it remain where it is as long as military needs require.

First Shipment Is Made.

Keller outlined his recommendations in a speech before the Economic Club of Chicago in the Stevens hotel. He also disclosed the giant government owned Dodge plant in Chicago, operated by Chrysler, has made its first shipment of production engines.

He said the plant will be turning out in substantial volume engines for the new superbomber "before many months." He also related a story of the immense plant's construction in which many novel methods were employed.

Describing the situation in which industry will find itself when the war ends, Keller said:

"Over 50 billion dollars of prewar, privately owned manufacturing plants and equipment has been increased by about 15 billion dollars of government owned plants and equipment. Visualize all this in terms of building and machinery, and add to it the stockpiles of all sorts of supplies owned by the government, which it is estimated will amount to 50 billion dollars when the war ends. Then you will have some idea of the physical size of the job.

No Demarcation Line.

"Bear in mind that what is privately owned and what is government owned is not nicely separated. Government owned machine tools, for example, are scattered all thru privately owned plants and vice versa. And the same thing can be said of materials."

The changeover to peace time production will be difficult, by comparison with which the shift to war production was simple. For that reason adequate preparations are of the utmost importance, he declared.

"It seems altogether sensible to me that decisions should be made now," he said. "That would be post-war planning of the most effective and practical kind. It would not take industrial executives off their war production jobs; and more than anything else it would expedite getting back to peace time production."

Termed Tool for Peace.

There is the opportunity to equip America's industrial system superbly with surplus machines built during the war, he said. With America thus adequately prepared industrially for war she will be tremendously influential in preserving peace.

Great strides have been made in machine tool development since the beginning of the war, he reported. These developments can be adapted to our peace economy and result in the elimination of outmoded machine tools driven from line shafts.

"We should see that America's shops and plants are equipped to produce the highest standards of quality at high productive levels," he said. "And to the extent that our surplus machines are needed here to replace the 10, 20, and 30 year old machines with which we went into this war, they should be left at home and utilized.

"Before we decide to pick up plants bodily and ship them abroad let us make sure that America, in its desirable efforts to rehabilitate the world, shall continue to be equipped itself with the best facilities for producing these essentials."

Referring specifically to synthetic rubber plants, in which millions have been invested by the government, Keller said that the United States should protect its own ability to produce all its rubber requirements. The same protection should be given industries producing other strategic items such as alloy steels, he said.

The future of the plant that Chrysler operates in Chicago will be determined by the policy adopted by the government for disposal of emergency facilities. It is the largest industrial plant in the world and ultra-modern in its design and equipment.

Ground Broken in 1942.

Chrysler was assigned to build the plant early in 1942 when the plane for which it was to supply engines was still in the blueprint stage. Ground for it was broken in June, 1942. Today the plant consists of 19 buildings with total floor space greater than that of either the Merchandise Mart or Washington's Pentagon.

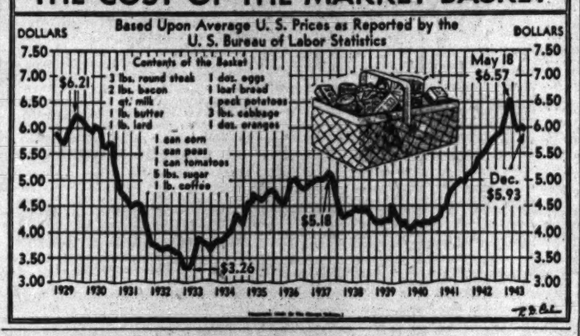

The No. 4 building, housing the main machining center, covers 80 acres. When fully equipped it will contain 7,000 machines, Keller said. To operate these machines will require 1,200,000 tools, jigs, dies, and fixtures. Gauges and small tools run the total up to 5 million.

The engines the plant has shipped up to now were referred to by Keller as "production" engines, that is engines not produced under fully developed mass production methods. Mass production will be in full swing "before many months," he indicated.

Keller was introduced by Richard Wagner, president of the club. About 800 club members and their guests attended the meeting.

CAPITAL POOL URGED TO AID IN FINANCING SMALL BUSINESSES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—Establishment of a capital pool by banks, investment houses, and insurance companies to make loans to and buy stock in small businesses is suggested in a publication issued today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

"By pooling the risks and making a small insurance charge to cover the inevitable losses, much new venture capital could be furnished by private enterprise on a sound basis without getting our government involved in all sorts of ventures," says a bulletin, entitled "Small Business, Its Place and Problems."

The bulletin was prepared by Emerson P. Schmidt, economist of the chamber's committee on economic policy.

WPB Moves to Taper Size of Stockpiles

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—Two major moves of the war production board which became known today indicate the United States is planning to taper off its aggressive stockpiling of critical raw materials.

The actions, not officially announced but verified by official sources, were:

1. The board set a policy to govern the size of stockpiles. The formula: Three months' supply at the full war time rate of use; or one year's supply less the amount which the North American continent can produce.

Told to Inform Allies.

2. All WPB division directors were instructed to take steps to see that England or other allies concerned are notified "at a very early stage" when important changes are planned in programs for importing and storing materials which foreign countries have helped to supply.

The proposed size of stockpiles under the new formula was considered modest enough to allay industry's apprehensions of a vast government hoard of metals which may be dumped on the market at the war's end with disruptive effects on the nation's economy.

The new stockpile formula would not put a ceiling on the accumulation of any materials whose supply was subject to special uncertainties, officials said.

Programs Under Review.

An interoffice letter from Charles E. Wilson, WPB vice chairman, contained a long list of critical materials whose supply programs are "under current review" by the combined raw materials board and on which CRMB should be consulted if any changes in public purchase, importation, or stockpiling are planned, he said.

The list included aluminum—of interest in view of the current surplus and congressional agitation for stoppage of Canadian imports—and some articles which are still highly critical, including mica, rubber, lumber, and shellac. Other materials include wool, chromite, copper, cotton, burlap-jute, nitrates, hides, iron ore, lead, leather, manganese, magnesium, molybdenum, graphite, mercury, nickel, rotenone, steel, sulphur, tin, tungsten, zinc, and cobalt.

A FORD WORKER IS REPRIMANDED AND 1,700 STRIKE

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 28 (AP).—A Ford Motor company spokesman reported tonight that 1,700 of the 3,400 night shift war workers at the Highland Park plant had gone on strike.

He said a shop committeeman of the United Automobile Workers [CIO] union had been called into the labor relations office to explain his smoking in a restricted area. Other shop committeemen followed him, and when the management refused to deal with the whole group they departed and called 1,700 aircraft engine workers off the job.

PASS RAYONIER DIVIDEND; PROFIT MARGIN REDUCED

Directors of Rayonier, Inc., reported yesterday that the board has decided to take no action on payment of a common stock dividend because of diminishing margins of profit resulting from increased costs of production, ceiling prices, and the closing of a plant over a jurisdictional dispute.

INDUSTRY GROUP PROTESTS FIXED PROFITS ORDER

A fixed percentage of profit in varying industries, such as proposed in a directive issued by James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director, applying to cancellation of war contracts begun but not completed, was condemned yesterday in a resolution adopted by the directors of the Illinois Manufacturers' association as "dangerously inconsistent with the proper conduct of war industries."

It called attention to the principle accepted in negotiation and renegotiation of war contracts that "the margin of profit should be no more than obtained normally by the contractor in his trade or industry."

The Byrnes directive set a maximum profit margin of 6 per cent and excluded costs of peace time reconversion in calculating expenses.

Trucking Men in Dire Strait, Says Eastman

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Unlike most other transportation agencies whose finances have been strengthened by the war, the for-hire trucking industry is in dire financial distress, Joseph B. Eastman, director of the office of defense transportation, said here yesterday. He spoke before the annual meeting of the National Council of Private Motor Truck Owners—an organization representing about a million privately operated trucks—in the Stevens hotel.

"Dire is a moderate word in the circumstances," Eastman asserted. "It is difficult to overstate the precarious situation of motor truck transportation. It is a marvel to me that the operators have been able to carry on and do their vital part in the war effort so effectively thus far, and there is little prospect of any quick and large relief."

New Revenues Insufficient.

Eastman explained the situation was caused by the fact that in many instances bigger revenues due to heavier traffic and improved loads have not been sufficient to overcome mounting expense resulting from increased wages and poorer quality workers as the older employes go into the war, the general increases in prices, and adverse operating conditions caused by deteriorating equipment.

Eastman's statement emphasized recent warnings by a number of leading Chicago truck operators that unless financial relief is obtained many trucking lines may fail and thereby cripple the vital truck transportation system.

Whereas in 1941 about 700,000 truck units were sold for civilian use, the combined sale in 1942 and 1943 was only about 100,000 units and there will only be about 88,000 new units available by the end of this year.

Truck Service in Demand.

"All this is in the face of a much greater demand for motor truck service than in 1941," he continued. "The conditions with respect to tires and repair parts are much the same. It is obvious that the motor truck industry has been living in the last two years on its fat and is now down to a state of semi-starvation."

He said that unfortunately for the truck industry it is in direct competition with the army for many of the things it needs—new equipment, tires, and repair parts—and the army must come first. However, truck operation is indispensable at home and the industry cannot be starved too long.

Altho the next few months will be a critical period for the trucking industry, Eastman said he hoped that before the next winter sets in conditions will be better.

Col. Fred C. Horner, chief of the highway section of the transportation corps, read an address by Maj. Gen. Charles P. Gross, chief of transportation, telling of the vital role of transportation in the war.

SMALL PLANTS WIN JOBS AFTER WMC DECISION

Chicago's respite from a WMC designation as a critical labor shortage area was followed yesterday by a substantial volume of work for small metal fabricating plants of the city and suburbs.

Victor Fabian, district manager of the Smaller War Plants corporation, disclosed that prime war contractors had released enough work under subcontracts to keep all of these plants busy for some time. Some contracts already had been placed with the smaller metal plants, he said, and many inquiries had been made in the wake of the WMC decision to keep the city in its present No. 2 status on man power.

He said there are 1,157 small metal working plants with 45,578 employes in Chicago and suburbs with unused plant capacity. Of these, 636 are operating at less than 60 per cent of normal capacity and prior to yesterday had work that would be completed in less than 60 days. Of the others, 396 were operating at 60 to 100 per cent of prewar capacity, but had expanded materially and needed work to keep operating. The other 125 reported "much open plant capacity." Both groups numbered more than 18,000 employes each.

CITY OFFERS 94 MILLION FOR 'L' AND CAR LINES

Kelly Plans Unified Traction System.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Attorneys representing the present owners of the surface and elevated lines were studying late yesterday a proposal that the companies sell their interests to the city for an aggregate price of 94 million dollars. If the offer is accepted Mayor Kelly proposes to go ahead with a plan to merge the lines with the Chicago Motor Coach company and operate a single traction corporation under municipal ownership.

The bid was handed to counsel for the L and the surface lines at a meeting in the mayor's office in the morning. In the afternoon the attorneys reported the offer to Judge Michael L. Igoe of the federal District court, who is in charge of the receivership of both firms.

Keep Reorganization Alive.

Judge Igoe ordered that negotiations be continued and that a report be made to the court on Feb. 11. At the same time he considered the possibility that the municipal ownership scheme might fall thru and instructed the attorneys to keep alive proposed plans for reorganization and unification of the properties under private ownership.

The 94 million dollar figure is subject to interpretation. The city offered to pay the present security owners of the surface lines 75 millions and allow them to retain free cash in their coffers, the amount being estimated at 8 millions—a total of 83 millions. Elevated road security holders were offered 11 million dollars and would be allowed to keep certain real estate not vital to transportation operation.

City Gets Traction Fund.

To carry thru the deal on this basis, the city would have to raise 86 million dollars in the financial markets. However, the surface lines would have to turn over to the city 27½ million dollars in a depreciation and renewals fund, so that the physical properties of both companies actually would be acquired at 58½ millions.

Under the proposals the two companies would have to clear up all taxes and take care of accident and other claims growing out of their operations up to the time of sale.

An acceptance would be looked on as a big step toward municipal ownership. But it would still leave a great deal to be done—the drafting of an ordinance, approval by referendum and proof [which can be had only from the Illinois Supreme court] that it is legal for the city to finance its purchase with revenue certificates.

Acceptance Is Debatable.

On this last point the mayor said that he had every assurance that could be given now that banking houses were ready to furnish the purchase price money at a reasonable rate; say 3½ per cent.

Experts were divided on whether the security holders would accept. One said that it was the best deal they "would ever get." Others pointed to the financial setup of the surface lines. First mortgage bondholders are regarded as sure to want 100 per cent on their 72 millions of bonds, which have paid 5 per cent interest since 1907. This would leave only 11 millions to divide among the owners of 58 millions of junior securities.

In the bond markets yesterday all bids for Chicago transportation bonds were withdrawn on the first reports of the city offer. Later there was activity, and surface lines first mortgage bonds were sold as high as 81, up two points from preceding sales.

GRAIN ADVANCE IS TRIMMED BY PROFIT SELLING

Reports that the office of price administration would make no immediate change in the ceiling price on cash oats gave the grain market a strong undertone yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Oats advanced 1¾ cents a bushel and other grains about 1 cent before the upturn was checked by profit taking.

Oats closed 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents higher. Wheat was ¾ to ⅞ cent higher and barley ⅛ to ⅝ cent higher. Rye reacted about 1½ cent from the top and closed ⅛ to ⅜ cent lower.

The OPA announced that members of the grain exchanges would be forced to help prevent unearned markups in merchandising charges on wheat and corn being added to the ceiling price.

Charge Mokan Seeks to Curb Owners' Rights

The Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company stockholders committee which is seeking to oust W. G. Maguire from the presidency said in a letter to stockholders yesterday that the present management is planning a voting trust for Mokan's Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company capital stock. This would leave stockholders no voice in the management, the committee charged.

Farm Machine Pool Is Used Politically, Deere Aid Charges

Moline, Ill., Jan. 28 [Special].—Altho the amount of farm equipment which manufacturers are permitted to produce this year has been raised to 80 per cent of 1940 or 1941 production, the industry's effort to distribute machines where most needed is meeting serious interference from politically inspired regulations promulgated by the department of agriculture, Ralph B. Lourie, vice president of the John Deere Plow company, charged tonight.

"On schedule 1 and 2 goods, manufacturers were ordered to retain in a reserve pool 20 per cent of their authorized production, to be subject to later determination as to distribution by the department of agriculture in Washington," said Lourie in addressing a regional meeting held under the auspices of the agriculture industry committee of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

Says His Fears Are Confirmed.

"I feared that this 20 per cent withholding 'kitty' would become a sort of political football, and it looks as if my fears were going to be realized. Goods which we had asked for certain states are being delivered to other states, with the result that we shall likely be unable to sell certain machines in the designated states while being compelled to pass up orders from farmers in other states urgently needing the goods."

As an example, Lourie said his company had been advised that the department was planning to order the industry to divert 1,299 disk harrows from Iowa and 1,449 from Illinois, with Wisconsin scheduled to get many of them. Because of a difference in farming methods "the department should know that there is not anywhere in Wisconsin the same requirement for disk harrows that there is in Iowa and Illinois," he said.

Schedules Ordered Changed.

Lourie said Deere Plow schedules for the distribution of potato diggers were ordered changed. The quantities involved were small, but "it may be questionable whether we can find buyers in Kentucky for even four potato diggers, and yet we have to ship them or else keep them." Of the company's allotment of 495 corn planters from the reserve to Iowa, 122 have been transferred elsewhere.

"There is the further threat to this reserve pool because, I understand, the USDA is planning to give the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration considerable quantities of farm equipment for occupied countries, which would come out of this 20 per cent reserve," Lourie asserted.

Corn Capital Moves Up the Road a Piece

Crane, Mo., Jan. 28 [Special].—This little town in the Ozarks has become the "nation's corn capital," a title held fleetingly by nearby Monett until national attention was directed to it a couple of weeks ago.

Shippers taking advantage of high OPA price ceilings and low railroad rates, have sent more than 400 carloads of corn here in the last week. Nearly 100 were routed thru the town today.

Not Even Clear Track.

"We don't have a clear track," complained Charley Jones, station agent for the Missouri Pacific, as he tried to keep abreast of more business than the town has ever seen. He said that 2,500 cars would arrive this month unless somebody calls a halt.

Most of the grain is shipped here with the bill of sale for Crane to take advantage of the higher ceiling prices on corn in Barry and Stone counties, then diverted to other destinations in Tennessee, Mississippi, Texas, and Louisiana.

A Corn Deficit Area.

The OPA ceiling is $1.19½ a bushel, against $1.18¾ at nearby points. Freight rates are lower because this is a corn "deficit" area.

Hurried OPA regulations halted the flood of corn at Monett and this town is expected to receive similar attention from the agency soon. The grain trade has been warned against shipping practices that put Monett on the corn map. Most of the shipments to Crane were reported made by farmers and country elevators.

EXTENDED FLOOR CREATES UNEVEN MARKET IN HOGS

Unsettled by the recent extension of the $13.75 floor price to 330 pound hogs, the market for heavy butchers developed into an irregular affair within a wide price range. A few 300 to 330 pound butchers sold unevenly higher. Declines occurred in all stock over 330 pounds.

Despite the slump in extremely heavy stock, the average moved up 5 cents, to $13.35, highest since Jan. 3. The $13.75 "floor" was paid mostly for best loads of 210 to 280 pound hogs.

Packers were unable to buy all hogs offered, and 7,000 head, most of them "government weights" above 250 pounds, were unsold at the close of trading.

Weakness prevailed in the market for most classes of cattle. A few steers and heifers were steady, but this was offset by some declines in others. Weaker prices were paid for most beef cows, canners, cutters, and bulls. Calves sold steady.

Lambs slumped mostly 25 cents. Top loads sold at $16. Best old ewes were reported at $8.25.

WFA TO DIVERT MORE BEEF FOR MILITARY USES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—The war food administration today directed packers operating under federal inspection to set aside a larger quantity of beef for the military services.

The order will give the services about 30 per cent of the current production of beef. It came a day after the office of price administration announced increases in ration point values of most cuts of beef, effective Feb. 1.

Under the WFA order packers must set aside at least 80 per cent of all canner and cutter beef for the armed services.

Prior to today's order, packers had been required to set aside specified percentages only of their output of commercial, good, choice, and utility grades of beef.

ILLINOIS HIGH COURT ASKED TO CONSIDER RECESS IN SALES TAX

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28 (AP).—The state Supreme court was asked today to consider ordering the state revenue department to cease collecting any sales tax for nine months or until a 73 million dollar state treasury surplus falls below 15 millions or to collect only one-half of the 2 per cent levy for a period of 18 months.

The request was made by James O. Monroe of Collinsville, Ill., editor and publisher of the Collinsville Herald, and a former Democratic state senator. He asked court permission to file an injunction complaint which contended the state is collecting unnecessary funds thru the 2 per cent retailers' occupation [sales] tax.

STOCK MARKET PRICES ADVANCE IN SLOW TRADE

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—A bullish profits report by Bethlehem Steel, released after yesterday's close, raised stock market spirits appreciably today and prices in general advanced.

From the start strength was displayed by selected steels, rails, and specialties. Altho assorted liquors and isolated favorites came back 1 to 4 points, fractional improvement was the rule at the close. Dealings were slow thruout.

CHICAGO STOCKS GAIN.

Fractional gains were well distributed thru the Chicago Stock exchange list yesterday, but volume receded to only 17,000 shares. Middle West corporation and General Finance, the most active issues, rose ¼ point each. Alfred Decker and Cohn preferred advanced 7 points to its highest price since 1929, apparently in response to the company's plan, subject to approval of stockholders, to offer 5 per cent debentures and cash in exchange for the preferred stock and accumulated dividends.

RAIL BONDS RISE.

New York, Jan. 28 (AP).—Rail bonds advanced again today, many reaching the highest levels in nearly seven years.

Acme-Wiley Company Wins Ordnance Award

Acme-Wiley corporation, engaged in processing and packaging war materials, yesterday received the Chicago ordnance award for meritorious production.

NEW YORK PORT BOND INTEREST HELD TAX FREE

May End Treasury's Drive on Cities.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28 (AP).—The Tax court of the United States, citing the need to encourage facilities for both motor and air travel, refused today to support the treasury's contention that interest from bonds of such public enterprises as the New York port and Triborough bridge authorities should be taxable.

The tribunal at the same time declined in the two long pending test actions to rule whether there is any constitutional bar in taxing the income from some 20 billion dollars of state and local government bonds.

Specifically the Tax court held that both the port and the Triborough bridge authorities are political subdivisions and are entitled to the exemption provided in present income tax laws for their securities. Five members of the 16 judge court dissented and one did not participate.

Predicts Final Victory.

Frank C. Ferguson, chairman of the Port of New York authority, commented:

"In light of the respect with which decisions of the United States Tax court are treated by the Supreme court of the United States, we trust that this decision will mark an end to efforts to interfere with the fiscal affairs of the states and cities."

The majority opinion pointed to "the great 'motor age' of the last quarter century," asserting that it called for the development of vast highway and parkway systems thru combined efforts of federal and local governments.

Both the port and Triborough authorities are multimillion dollar enterprises. The former operates several bridges and tunnels connecting Manhattan with New Jersey; the latter operates the elaborate Triborough bridge in New York City.

Larger Needs Forecast.

"The future may see an even greater need for the creation of local facilities adapted to the necessities of air transportation," the decision said. "It is hard to conceive that a statute tending to encourage and assist in the contribution of public improvements by debt burdened localities should have been intended to stop short merely because the method selected for financing such accommodations to current needs is the issuance of obligations secured by facility revenues as opposed to the levy of special assessments upon benefited properties."

The treasury, following thru on long standing administration efforts to wipe out the tax exemption of all government securities, said it would appeal the decisions immediately to the Circuit Court of Appeals. Whatever the decision is there, it was assumed that the loser would appeal to the Supreme court.

The fight over state and local government bonds has been a bitter one. Opposed to the treasury's contention that income from the securities should be taxable has been the argument that to remove tax exemption would place a burden on states, cities, and towns by impairing the marketability of their bonds and forcing them to carry a higher interest rate.

State Street Council Fetes Retiring Head of The Fair

Directors of the State Street council met yesterday in the Palmer House to bid farewell to James S. Schoff, retiring president and general manager of The Fair. Schoff, head of the department store since November, 1939, will become president of Bloomingdale Brothers, a New York City department store. The Fair's new president is expected to be elected at the annual meeting in April.

Help Wanted Advertising Omitted Only on Saturdays

Because of newsprint restrictions, Help Wanted and Employment Agency advertising is temporarily omitted from Saturday issues of the Tribune.

Despite drastic regulations limiting the size of employment offers, omission of them on Saturdays is now required in order to utilize to the best advantage of readers and advertisers the total weekly supply of newsprint allocated to employment advertising under the Tribune's paper conservation program.

For Chicago's biggest job directory, consult the big want ad section in tomorrow's Sunday Tribune—which prints twice as many job offers as all other Chicago Sunday newspapers combined.
